Air Mail News

DONALD E. DICKASON, Editor,
Wooster, Ohio

(Coöperators will find their names listed each week. If a reply be necessary, enclose a self-addressed stamped envelope.)

About once a week I receive a request from someone that I furnish him with advance information on events that turn up too late to appear here. I should like nothing better than to do this, but it is simply a physical impossibility. It's all I can possibly do to keep up these notes, and the truly voluminous correspondence proceeding from them. A carbon copy of each writeup goes to R. A. Brooks for his bulletin service, and to Sec. L. B. Gatchell for the A. A. M. S. Bulletin, and to E. D. MacLennan, cover manager for the Cleveland Air Mail Society, and they broadcast the usable information to a great many of you, I know.

Stephen H. Smith, Honorary Secretary Aero Philatelic Club of India, sends me a most complete check list of all Indian flights, which will be invaluable to all collectors of these covers.The 1st issue of the Air Mail and Precancel Journal has put in its appearance, published at 3127 Nicollet Ave., Minneapolis, Minn. Gives promise of being a very worthwhile paper, and a sample copy will doubtless be sent on request.William G. McAdoo has submitted a proposal to the P. O. Dept. offering to carry air mail across the continent for $2.10 per lb., as compared to the much higher rates now in effect. This opens up various possibilities such as all first class mail by air, more stops, etc., which will bear watching.

Official Items

You'll note I said "items" instead of "flights" this time, as I have something to chronicle which I have not seen mentioned any place at all thus far. Included in a lot of covers recently received for a forthcoming auction were two mailed from Nicaragua to Canal Zone Sept. 7, franked with the orange surcharged air mail stamp, with overprint inverted! Inquiry from the owner furnishes the information that these are two of three which were spotted in this mail, and that he knows of no others in collectors' hands. I should be much interested to know whether this error has turned up elsewhere.Same lot of covers includes another FAM I had not before seen—first flight Cristobal to Buenaventura and Tumaco, Colombia, May 24th—cachet in black.

First mail from Argentina by the completed FAM 9 route was reported in New York, Oct. 23rd. I regret to say that none of my covers have showed up, so I can't give the details yet. Letters left Buenos Aires Oct. 12.George Street shows me a cover from this flight addressed to Cuba, of which he says there were but 20. This bears no cachet, but has the Buenos Aires "Via Aerea" cancellation of the 12th, backstamped the 21st. He says also that no mail directly from Chile to Buenos Aires was accepted, but only mail in transit, that is, mailed from points farther north, and passing through Chile en route.You will do well to consult last week's Stop Press column for information about the first Venezuela-U. S. mail, soon to come.

At the same time Canal Zone was using the cachet mentioned last week for the first Argentine flight, mail left Panama on the same flight bearing a small first flight cachet "Primer Vuelo Colon-Argentina." I repeat—watch Panama as well as Canal Zone on these flights.I note an advertisement for the first flight Tela, Honduras-U. S., for Sept. 21st. Another new one on me.

Major C. M. Lopez and Dr. Walter Hess send valuable data on the West Indian flight. Total letters from San Juan, including mail sent from Miami, Cuba, Haiti, and San Domingo, as follows: To St. Thomas—5,619, St. Johns—2,719, Port Castries—2,378, Port of Spain—4,251, Georgetown — 2,448, Paramaribo — 5,935. About 30% of these from San Juan alone, the balance from the other terminals named, mostly Miami, of course. Letters received at San Juan from Miami, postmarked Sept. 22, and were dated at Miami anywhere from the 12th to the 20th, and were cacheted at San Juan. Mail from Miami after the 20th received the cachet at Miami, and does not bear the San Juan postmark at all. There are a few extra varieties for you, all right. As intimated last week, only southbound mail from St. Thomas, V. I., was supposed to receive the cachet, though I received one sent northward with it on. Mail received addressed to San Juan was as follows: From Paramaribo—435, Georgetown—545, from Port of Spain—501, Port Castries—571, St. Johns—656, St. Thomas—946. At Nassau, Bahamas, were received the following: from St. Thomas—20, Port Castries—17, Trinidad—13. Yeah—just try for complete coverage of all old and new points on this route!

Greenfield, Mich., is the little old-time town which Henry Ford has established as his museum of Americana at Dearborn. Apparently a post office is part of the equipment, for on Oct. 21st, the occasion of Mr. Edison's visit and the accompanying celebration, there appeared a cancellation from Greenfield, machine type, "Edison Celebration — Light's Golden Jubilee — 1879-1929." This, accompanied by the unofficial cachet for the return of the National Air Tour to Dearborn, makes an attractive cover.

Referring to the Georgia flood mail mentioned last week, Geo. C. Harvey tells me he has covers, supposedly carried by the special service, backstamped Millen, Ga., Oct. 5, Swainsboro, Oct. 3, Waynesboro, Oct. 1, and Augusta, Oct. 5. Victor M. Saurez tells me that Mexico will celebrate Aviation Week the first week of December, and that 2 special stamps will be issued, values 5c and 15c, Mexican. Doubtless a special cachet also, and I'd suggest covers and money order

A prominent stamp dealer doing thousands of dollars worth of business a year writes as follows:

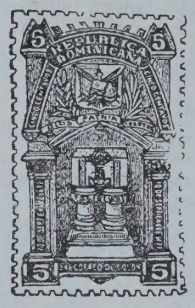
"In regard to my advertisement in ST. NICHOLAS MAGAZINE, I must say that my first venture into the Stamp business was twelve years ago by placing a four line advertisement in your magazine. This brought me so many high-class customers that I believed there was money in the Stamp business which gave me confidence to continue same. I find that one reply from ST. WHEN ordering stamps write "As per advt. in MEKEEL'S"

Dominican Republic, 1899

By A. C. LeDuc.

In Feb., 1899, a set of stamps was issued by the Dominican Republic to raise funds to build a mausoleum for the remains of Columbus. The set consists of eleven values besides minor varieties. There are eight different designs to the set, all of which are elaborate, and in spite of the size of the stamps they appear to be crowded.

The 1 centavo pictures the voyage of Mendez from Jamaica to the island of Santo Domingo. This stamp comes in brown-violet and in green. The 2 centavos shows Enriquillo's rebellion and is printed in rose. The 5 centavos, in blue, shows the sarcophagus of Columbus.



The 10 centavos shows an emblematical figure of Spain guarding the remains of Columbus. This stamp is colored orange and is an upright oblong as is the 5 centavos.

The 20 centavos, brown, shows a picture of Toscanelli replying to Columbus, while the 50 centavos, green, pictures Las Casas defending the Indians. The one peso, printed in a grayish-blue shade, shows Columbus at the Salamanca assembly. The two pesos, in a brown upright oblong, depicts the mausoleum of Columbus in Santo Domingo Cathedral.

There were two more values added to this set (both in black) the following year, namely a ¼ centavo in the design of the 5 centavos, and a ½ centavo in the design of the one peso.

Balloon Post

During the Franco-German war of 1870 Paris was for a time entirely surrounded by the enemy and the French resorted to an ingenious expedient for communicating with the outside world. A balloon corps was organised and during the siege no less than 65 balloons were sent up carrying mail for outside points. A great deal of this mail reached its destination, as many of the aeronauts were able to land in places friendly to the French. No special stamps were issued in connection with this service though an enhanced rate of postage was charged and the letters were generally marked "Par ballon monté".

Bits of Information

Bollo Della Posta di Sicilia.—An inscription appearing on the stamps of Sicily meaning "stamp of the Post of Sicily."

Bollo Della Posta Napoletana.—An inscription shown upon all the stamps of Naples which signifies "Stamp of the Neapolitan Post."

Bollo Postale.—An inscription shown upon the stamps of the small republic of San Marino meaning "Postage Stamp."

Bollo Straordinario Per le Poste.—The inscription shown on the so-called newspaper stamp of Tuscany issued in 1854. Its literal meaning is "Stamp extraordinary for the post." The stamp was not a postage stamp in the strict meaning of the term but represented a fiscal tax collected on newspapers coming from foreign countries.

Brunei

I. A British protectorate in northwest Borneo situated between the territory of the North Borneo Company and Sarawak. It has an area of 4,000 square miles and a population of over 10,000. Until 1888 it was an independent Mohammedan state and its Sultan was at one time overlord of the whole of the island of Borneo. Its capital, Brunei, is chiefly built on piles. Postage stamps for use in this Protectorate were first issued in 1906.

II. Some years ago a set of stamps purporting to be a genuine issue for the state of Brunei made their appearance but the history attaching to these labels is so unsatisfactory that they are now generally believed to be a bogus emission. The central portion of the design shows a small vessel on a large expanse of water with a mountain in the background. On each side are palm trees and at the top a five-rayed star is shown.

Avisporto-Maerke

The only inscription appearing upon a series of Danish stamps which are intended to prepay the postage of newspapers sent to non-subscribers. In Denmark newspapers can be ordered through and paid for at any post office, and they are then delivered by the postmen unstamped. These stamps, therefore, are only used on newspapers sent in bulk to the news agents, or on those that are not subscribed for through the postal department.

Study Your Stamps

Oranje Vrij Staat.—The Dutch form for "Orange Free State" as shown upon the earlier stamps of the country now known as the Orange River Colony.

Oriental Inscriptions.—Many stamps bear no inscriptions in Roman characters but are lettered in Arabic or other Oriental devices. Under this heading we find such stamps as Afghanistan, many of the Native States of India, Abyssinia, and Turkey. Those of Afghanistan are usually circular in shape and the center is filled with a tiger's head or a further inscription in native characters; those of Abyssinia show a portrait or a lion with a flag; those of Turkey show a star and crescent; while those of the Indian States can only be identified by reference to the illustrations in a catalogue.

P.—This letter, overprinted on various stamps of the Straits Settlements, denotes they were intended for use in the native state of Perak.

Posthorn.—A posthorn, surmounted by a crown, forms the design for the early newspaper stamps of Austria and Hungary.

British New Guinea

A British colony comprising the southeastern portion of the island of New Guinea or Papua, which is situated at the extreme northeast of Australia. It has an area of 90,000 square miles and a population of more than 350,000. It was proclaimed a British colony in 1888, and at first the ordinary stamps of Queensland were used there. In 1901, a special set inscribed with the name of the colony, made its appearance. In 1906, the name of the colony was changed to Papua, necessitating the overprinting of the stamps on hand and (in 1908) the issue of a new series bearing the new name.

T motto on each variety is "Light and Li erty." The 12 centavos stamp of t commemorative series of 1902 of the D minican Republic shows a torch bear at one side and an arc lamp on the oth side.

Corner Letters

These were letters running in alph betical sequence introduced into the low angles of the first postage stamps issu in Great Britain as an extra safegua against forgery. In 1858 letters we placed in all four corners, those in t upper angles being the same as those the bottom corners, but in reverse orde This system of lettering the stamps w not entirely discontinued until the Kin Edward stamps made their appearan in 1902.

PONY EXPRESS ENVELOPES

and originally carried legal documents from San Francisco to officials of the territorial courts, all the way on fleet "Pony Express" horses from San Francisco to the interior.

The $1,300 cover was described in the auction catalog as "a gorgeous rarity," with which enthusiastic language the half hundred philatelists present thoroughly agreed.

It bears on its two faces a vertical strip of five of the 25-cent blue Pony Express stamps, another single (No. 6798) a Wells, Fargo frank, type V, on a 3-cent U. S. envelope (No. 2330), with a block of four and a single of the 3-cent U. S. No. 65, all "tied" to the cover with large circular Wells, Fargo express, San Francisco, cancellations.

The other prize piece, selling for $1,110, is considered even more unique than its sister envelope, and if ever offered again at auction is expected to touch $2,000 in price. It bears "a beautiful block of six" and a single of the Pony Express 25-cent red stamp (No. 6799), on a 3-cent U. S. envelope No. 65, with Wells, Fargo label type V, all tied to the envelope with the Wells, Fargo San Francisco cancellation, and a "Too Late" cancellation as well.

These philatelic rarities were recently exhibited in New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Boston, and drew high mail bids from eastern stamp collectors. A score more Pony Express and Wells, Fargo covers sold at prices ranging to several hundred dollars each.

"I am happy to keep these interesting souvenirs of pioneer days in California," said Parker, after the sale. "They will be part of the collection I will show at the Oakland stamp exhibition Friday, Saturday and Sunday of this week."

Los Angeles is rapidly becoming a philatelic center, with half a dozen recognized dealers in stamps, frequent auctions by the Watson firm, B. W. H. Poole, Charles S. Thompson and California Stamp Company. A score or more local collectors and dealers will attend the Oakland exhibition. The American Philatelic Society will hold its annual convention here in 1932, the Olympic games year.

"PLATING"

Many of my readers must have been puzzled on occasion by references to the plating of stamps. While this is rather advanced Philately, it is one of the most fascinating phases of the hobby, and it is at least worth while to know what it means.

Philately, in its best sense, is a study of everything which will enable us to build up the history of a stamp, or an issue of stamps, from the moment when the idea of issuing it was first put forward, down to the present moment—for the history of a stamp is never completed, as it may be forged or faked at any point in time and Philately includes the study of forgeries and takes as well as of the genuine stamps.

Now if we have a stamp which was printed by a process which resulted in small individual differences occurring in the design of every stamp in the sheet, and no complete sheet of that stamp is in existence, it is of great interest to try and reconstruct a sheet from such fragments as may be available, in order that we may see how many stamps there were in the sheet, and in what order these minor variations occur. (It is rather more complicated than that, in many cases, but I am treating the problem simply, on the assumption that every stamp in the sheet we are trying to reconstruct is different in some minor detail from the others.)

Obviously the biggest step we can take is to find the largest blocks of stamps obtainable, and, after these, whatever smaller blocks and pairs, either horizontal or vertical, we can secure. Copies with marginal paper attached are also helpful as they indicate stamps from one or other edge of the sheet. We shall also have a quantity of single specimens of the stamp we are studying and we shall have carefully examined these and made ourselves familiar with the minor variations in the design, which we can identify as being of regular recurrence.

Now, taking our largest block as a starting-point, we look at the other blocks and see whether any stamps on them have minor variations in the design which we can also identify on stamps in our big block. Let us assume that we have a block of nine, each stamp of which shows minor variations in the design. We will call them A to I.

A B C
G H I

Now we have a vertical block of six stamps, and we find that the two stamps at upper right show characteristics which prove that they are the same as stamps D and G on our block of nine. Laying the two blocks so that they overlap, we have now identified the positions of four more stamps, thus:—

A B C
J D E F
K G H I
L M

Examining our pairs, we may find one in which the right-hand stamp is the same as K in our block of six. This gives us another addition at the left of row K G H I, and if this pair has marginal paper at left it proves to us that the vertical row of which J K L form part is the second vertical row from the left of the sheet.

Continuing the process it will eventually be possible, if sufficient material is found, to reconstruct a complete sheet with the different stamps arranged in the same order as they were when the sheet left the printing press. Obviously all these stamps will not have been in the same sheet originally, but as each complete sheet is the same, we have reconstructed a complete sheet, or have "plated" the stamp of which it is composed.

Apart from the design and marginal paper, other factors can be taken into account, particularly the watermark. If the margins of the sheet were watermarked with words or inscriptions, marginal copies can be placed in their relative positions by a careful study of the portions of the watermark which are shown, while if a large watermark covering the entire sheet is a feature (such as the watermark of the first Queen's Head stamps of India) the position of individual stamps in the sheet may often be identified by the portion of the watermark they show.

This philatelic jig-saw work, besides calling for accuracy of observation, provides the excuse for an intensive hunt for stamps, and in the case of a stamp difficult to obtain, it may be years before the keen student finally completes his reconstruction.—Gibbons' Monthly Journal.

U. S. DEPARTMENTALS

We have a very fair stock of these stamps, including some really fine cancellations. These much neglected stamps are slowly getting harder to find; and of some there were but few printed—as for instance—the 90c Justice, of which but 3600 copies were ever issued.

Collectors wishing to complete these issues will find almost every variety in our stock, including some of the Specimen Surcharges that are just as collectible as the reissues with which they were issued at the Centennial.

Correspondence is gladly welcomed and personal calls much desired.

STOCK MARKET DOWN

Although there has been a great bear stock market during the last several weeks, nevertheless, there is certainly a real bull market for fine United States issues, and as a result, cash to any amount is available for really important single items, or collections, which can be purchased at a price which will net even a fair margin of profit at today's substantial quotations.

While I possess one of the finest stocks of United States postage and revenue issues in the hands of any professional, nevertheless, it is necessary to constantly buy in order to supply the numerous requests.

As a rule, items cataloguing under $10. are not especially wanted unless in quantities, nevertheless, I am wiling to purchase even these at substantial prices, when in collections with rare items.

At the present time, I require everything in the way of choice early issues in mint blocks and superb mint singles. Choice covers, as well as outstanding used pieces, are desired.

Anything of importance in the way of the 1847 issue will be of interest. In the issues from 1879 on, only outstanding blocks, errors and inverts are required, in addition to the higher denominations in blocks.

Other things wanted, are Postmasters, Carriers and Locals, nicely tied to the entire cover, Department stamps in mint blocks, and on entire covers, the rarer Postage Due in mint blocks, Revenues—pairs, strips and blocks, imperforate, and blocks part-perf. and perforate, as well as the rarer 20th century, all of the inverts, especially the rarities, Confederates in mint blocks and on covers.

I offer the same class of stamps to the interested buyer.

Washington Letter

By PHILIP H. WARD, JR.,
Box 2175, Middle City Sta., Phila., Pa.

(U. S. oddities and varieties will be noted in this department. If reply be necessary, enclose self-addressed stamped envelope.)

Postal Regulations

The Postmaster General has called a conference to take place in Washington on November 11, 12 and 13, 1929, at which time, he desires to discuss with large users of mail, certain changes in postal laws and regulations, which have been suggested from time to time by mail users.

The first session which will be presided over by the Third Assistant Postmaster General, Frederic A. Tilton, will open on the first day at 10 o'clock, at which time, there will be a discussion of first-class mail, especially in reference to business reply cards and envelopes. At the afternoon session, views will be given on non-metered first-class matter.

The second day's meeting will be devoted to third-class mail, at which time, rates will also be discussed. At the afternoon session, fourth-class mail, as well as other mail sent at a rate less than first-class postage, will be talked about.

On the last day, the morning session will consider second-class mail, whereas the afternoon will be devoted to miscellaneous subjects. All interested in the modification of the postal laws and regulations, are invited to present their views at this time.

Current Oddities

Mr. E. L. Dithridge calls attention to the varying shades of the "Fallen Timbers" stamps. They are to be found even on the same sheet.

Several readers have called attention to sheets of the same stamp, as well as the "Ohio River Canalization" stamp, in which the plate numbers did not print.

These are found quite frequently in most of our recent issues.

Errors

In the Chronicle, listing the Ohio River Canalization stamps, plates No. 19838-19841, were through a printer's error, listed as "curved" plates of four hundred, whereas the little ditto marks should not have been placed under the word "curved" as the stamps are all printed from the flat plates.

Mr. H. W. K. Hale calls attention to discrepancy in the Pierson chart of United States issues and suggests its correction. He writes as follows:

"I think the readers' attention should be called to the error in listing No. 519. As the experienced collector will know, this is the 1908 imperforate, No. 344, with value expressed in words, subsequently perforated 11 by 11. Therefore, the figure '519' should be placed on the third line of the chart and not on the fourth line; but in the same column, of course."

Canal Zone

Mr. Edward Stern of the Economist Stamp Company has located a new Canal Zone error, namely, the 5c blue Roosevelt, flat plate variety, in which the word "CANAL" is found inverted.

This is from the top row of one of the lower panes, hence, all of them have straight edge at the top.

A NARRATIVE COLLECTION

By H. N. SMEETON.

A narrative collection? What is th Just a form of collecting that I trie short time ago and found rather am ing. Briefly, the idea is to find a sub round which to write a narrative, ill trating one's story with appropr stamps. In my own case I chose "Trav illustrating my subject with air mail map stamps. As it was a first atte at this class of collecting, I deliberat refrained from serious writing up, c fining my narrative to more or less morous lines. The result could not described as a notable addition to science of philately, but as a propaga stunt it could be made into a very defi asset. In this way.

Although the narrative ignores usual details of philatelic writing such as printings, perforations, wat marks, etc., it presents the stamps in s a way as to attract the attention of veriest philistine.

In my experimental narrative collect I mounted an average of four stamps page, arranging the stamps on the side, and writing the narrative on right of the pages. In this case reading matter to each stamp was m or less "self-contained" (though whole made a coherent narrative), s left about an inch space between stamps, connecting the narratives by li terminating in arrow heads ——> In this way continents and oceans w quickly crossed!

If the notion were to be tackled se ously, one could get together some v interesting stamp books. I have an u to form such a collection, taking "View as my subject. To make the narrati really interesting would involve one much study and searching for facts c cerning the subject chosen. Incidental one's store of knowledge would be much the richer at the end.

Such a collection need not entail v great expense as regards buying t stamps. One is not forced to inclu every stamp issued bearing on the su ject of one's narrative. Personally, should choose my subject, then go to t catalogues and compile a list of the m suitable stamps for illustrating my na rative. Then would follow the planni of the display, considering what form t narrative shall take, and the best meth of "illustrating" it. The stamps cou be purchased in the rotation one requir them, and the narrative could be co tinued as one got the stamps.

It would not, in the strictest sense, pure philately, and no doubt serious st dents of our hobby would look upon su collecting with disdain. It would, ho ever, be very attractive stamp collectin Also, it opens up a vision of somethi that at long last will attract the attenti of the outsider to the joys of collectin

SPRINGFIELD, ILL., ENTERTAINS

Recently, the Lincoln's Home Philatelic Society, Springfield, Illinois, invited members of the Chicago Philatelic Society to spend an evening as its guests, and Dr. Hennan, C. F. Mann, B. L. Voorhees and C. E. Severn took advantage of the opportunity to foregather with their Springfield friends. A meeting was held on October 26th, at the office of Mr. Raymond V. Bahr, with the following Springfield men in attendance: Dr. Homer P. Macnamara, president, Raymond V. Bahr, George Defraties, George Doying, Edwin Galbreath, A. J. King, Clarence G. Kohler, Henry Mischler, Carl Rauth, John Ruckel, Melvin Spencer and W. A. Steiger. An excellent dinner preceded the meeting where the visitors became well acquainted with their hosts and then all repaired to the quarters of Mr. Bahr, which are fitted admirably to serve as a philatelic rendezvous. Mr. Steiger showed his album filled with striking air mail covers, which in some respects is unique. It includes scores of "pre-pioneer" flights, if the term may be used to describe town to town trips on which letters were carried by the pilots, who verified the covers by autographing them. The regular air service has not yet been established by the government on these point to piont routes. Other collections of merit were shown, and then Mr. Bahr's extensive philatelic possessions had the table. He displayed his U. S. in sheets, booklet panes and plate-numbers, as well as in other settings. His air mail are celebrated for their number and variety, and we cannot imagine a more representative lot of them. The thoroughness with which Mr. Bahr collects is worthy of comment, but it would be an endless task to enumerate the attractive pieces in his huge collection.

The philatelic tales told by Mr. Steiger stopped the show; his vantage point in the postal service gives him a good observation spot. Henry Mischler gave reminiscences of his many years of philatelic service, and he invoked the spirits of some of the old guard in an interesting way. Others provided their share of the entertainment, and if ever late hours were justified this was the occasion.

The Chicagoans were taken to a visit to Lincoln's old home and to his monument by their hosts who did all in their power to ensure a most enjoyable outing as well as a philatelic inning for them. Closer communion for companion cities, say we all.

THE MANAGING EDITOR.

Our Press Review

By C. A. HOWES, Editor.

Le Philateliste Belge which comes to our desk is a well gotten up and attractively printed monthly now in its ninth year. A fine portrait of former King Leopold II, he of the long, white beard, which we know mostly in profile on the Belgian stamps, though a younger portrait appears on the Belgian Congo issue of 1887, appears on the cover. The September number announces the death of three prominent European philatelists, William Bigwood, who had been president of the Belgian Society of Timbrologie (they still cling to this early French term for Philately), and who had been prominent in various exhibitions as well as instituting the medal of Philatelic Merit; Henry Kruseman, a specialist in Holland and Colonies and Brazil; and Michel van Gelder, a specialist in the rarities in European stamps, who received a palm of honor at the New York exhibition of 1926.

Articles on the Belgian perforations of 1863 and the work of a counterfeiter who specialized in cancellations applied to Belgian and Belgian Congo stamps to enhance their value are interesting to specialists in Belgian stamps. From several pages of "Information" we glean that there will be a special stamp of 4 francs issued for the Philatelic Exposition at Antwerp, that a new issue with King Albert in helmet is in preparation to be produced by heliotype process, and that the new Charity issue of six subjects will soon be ready. There is to be a philatelic exhibition in Algeria in May, 1930, under the auspices of the French Philatelic Societies of North Africa (Algeria, Tunis and Morocco).

The subscription is given as 2fr (8 cents) per number at 31 Ave. de Haverskerke, Forest, Brussels, Belgium.

The Madrid Filatélico is still hale and hearty in its 32nd year of publication. The September number presents an account of the philatelic exhibition and congress at Le Havre, France, last May, and has a "boost" for the coming Antwerp exhibition in 1930. An article on the "Golden Jubilee of the Electric Light" tells about the Edison celebration in this country. Collectors of Venezuela will be interested in a study of the last two (three) issues of similar designs printed by Waterlow & Sons in 1914, and again from 1924 to 1929, and by the American Bank Note Co. from 1915 to 1923. Quantities of the various values ordered during these years and the shades of their various printings are noted in an extended table which will appeal to Venezuela specialists. Various notes of interest, a plea for the preserving of "original gum" on unused stamps, and an extended Chronicle make up a quite interesting number. Published by M. Galvez, Cruz 1, Madrid 12, Spain, at 5 pesetas (72c) per year, post free.

The October number of the Journal Philatelique de Berne has an interesting article, illustrated, on the different postmarks of the city post office of Bremen. Also a dissertation on the Rayon stamps of Switzerland with the ribbon at the left partly erased, a minor variety of interest to specialists, which seems to be somewhat in dispute between a defective plate effect or a defective printing result. Illustrations of the forthcoming "Pro Juventute" issue show a most beautiful set, three having charming landscapes, one of which includes the Lake of Lugano. A fourth value is dedicated to the memory of Nikolaus von der Flüe (1417-1487) who was an Alpine hermit of great influence among the people. He was beatified in 1669, and is the patron saint of the original Swiss Cantons. The head represented is a beautiful Christlike portrait. Under the "Review" we note another "squeeze" on collectors—the "Orval" stamps of Belgium have been surcharged with a crown and double "L" to commemorate the laying of the cornerstone of the new abbey by Prince Leopold. Also that in the first few weeks the new Vatican stamps were sold to the amount of over 56 million lire or nearl 3 million dollars! We are also warne under "Counterfeits" to look sharply fo counterfeits of more or less recent su charges on British and Colonial stamp A very interesting number. Subscriptio 3 Swiss francs (60c) from Zumstein Co., Berne, Switzerland.

RANSPORTATION OF MAILS UTILIZES VEHICLES OF DIVERSE TYPES

By W. Irving Glover, Second Assistant Postmaster General.

The office of the Second Assistant stmaster General could well be called bureau of transportation for, in its administration, the Second Assistant Postster General has jurisdiction over the isions of railway mail service, interional postal service, air mail service, route service and mail messenger vice. These five services transport ll by dog sled (in Alaska), by mule, horseback, by horse and wagon, by tor boat, by motor, by fast speeding road trains, by vessels to the four ners of the world and airplanes speed- over 25 routes within the boundaries the United States and nine air routes the neighboring countries north and th of us.

Each of these divisions has its impor- t responsibilities to the Government. ey are cogs in the great wheels of the tal service which, ofttimes, I believe, ld well be called the department of mate service relations because the ctions of the Post Office Department ch the 115,000,000 people of this coun- practically every day and, without the ious forms of transportation as enurated, certainly there would be a very erial slowing down in the delivery of r letter, your newspaper, or your parpost package.

roblems of the Post Office Depart- t have usually been problems of transtation and so it was in the early days 918 when the Department had a vision , some day in the future (it knew not n), great quantities of mail would be ried through the air and so from that y date, i.e., May 15, 1918, it has neered the way, and has developed an mail service which is outstanding in field of aviation the world over.

he Post Office Department never had nind that it would continually operate air mail lines of the country, but it the picture that, after the establish- t of several of the lines and the of to the aviation world that mail ld be transported by plane—not only the day time but by night—that it ld turn the operation of the Govern- t line, which has always been the bone of the air mail service (the line reen New York City and San Francis- over to private operation and the her development of the air mail lines he country would also be under pri- operation.

, today, the country is practically net- ked with air mail lines. There are 25 routes flying 44,662 miles daily, of ch practically 25,000 miles are flown ight. Cities, whose total population unts to over 65,000,000 of people, are direct air mail routes and, with the her extension of the air mail lines ch the Postmaster General has in mind, it will not be a long while before every city of any size in the Union will be tapped by an air mail line and the borders of the country will be shrunk to even smaller proportions than they are at the present time.

The air mail service of the Post Office Department is no longer in an experimental stage. It has been demonstrated that it is feasible and possible in every way. Continual improvements in the art of flying as regards speed, safety of the mails, the character of the plane, lighting and radio communication, are taking place in the air mail service and the operators have been anxious to render the maximum of service to the Department.

If the air mail map were to be drawn today there is no doubt in the minds of the Post Office Department officials that there would appear many changes in the same. It has been proven that the various short lines of the country have been expensive ones to the Department and, no doubt, longer lines would have been put in operation wherever possible, and, if these longer lines were in operation today, there would be a more efficient service rendered to the patrons of the Department than it can accomplish now.

The Post Office Department encourages the use of the air mail service wherever it will render service, save time and be of real benefit to the user. The Department does not encourage the promiscuous use of the air mail service but advocates an intelligent use of the service and, even with this intelligent use, the poundage carried will be of tremendous proportions and will continue to grow. There can be no gain to the user of the air mail if a letter is sent by this service in a plane leaving a certain city late in the afternoon and arriving at the office of address too late for carrier delivery, and the letter would receive first carrier delivery on the following morning if it were sent at the ordinary 2-cent, first-class, rate.

Really, the great saving in time in the air mail service is effected on the longest routes. There can be no comparison between the air mail and the railway mail in the time saved between New York and San Francisco, Los Angeles and Seattle.

Statistics of the Post Office Department show that a large percentage of first class mail is moved after the peak load of the day has passed in the post office, that is, in the period from 5 to 7 p. m., and naturally this mail is worked in the post offices and railway post offices at night and this condition will remain true for all time in the air mail service that the greatest efficiency rendered to the user of the air mail will be given by the air mail service where handled at night.

The Post Office Department will continue to encourage an intelligent use of the air mail service.—United States Daily.

also believed to rank among the finest in the country. Mr. Brazer, an indefatigable club worker and philatelic enthusiast, is an authority on the subject of U. S. Proofs and Essays, and at present is engaged in collaborating with the producers of the Scott Catalog in identifying and pricing many items of this class hitherto unknown and unrecognized.

The writer will show a specialized treatment of the die and plate varieties of the U. S. 3c green of 1870, 1873 and 1879. This collection including shades, papers and cancellation varieties running into the thousands, is believed to compare favorably with a similar collection recently broken up by Warner Bates.

The Club charges no admission and does not exact any fees from its member exhibitors, the expenses of the entire show being borne by the Club. THIS THING CALLED CACHET

By E. J. Newcomer.

Dear Ed:

The old pen has got so rusty I dunno if it'll say what I want it to. But this here Cachet fever, now, has got under my hide, having come home to roost, if you know what I mean, and I got to speak out in meetin'.

The American Legion has a Convention here last week, and the boys licks up quite a lot of cannon milk, if you get me, but what I wants to get at is that Chris, the Secy. of the local Airlines, which pulls off a Air Derby during Convention, he hears about this here Cachet business, so he fixes up a fancy one and sends notice of it to the stamp papers. Thinks maybe it'll put the old town on the map and won't hurt the airmail none. Gets the P. M. in cahoots with him. Your sheet barely mentions it, along of forty others, but one of your rivals gives it the Big Spiel.

I dunno which has the most pullin' power, if you get me, but anyway, Ed, would you believe it? Covers begins pilin' in to Chris and to the P. M., and long about night before the Big Time, Chris gets snowed under and hollers to me for help. So I goes over to Chris' house, and he has the dinin' room flooded with the things. (Lucky his old woman was away). Well, we gets some of those covers separated out for the three days of the Derby, because Chris, he's up-to-date and figgers on usin' a different color for each day. And I gets busy on the dinin' table with the Cachet marker, while Chris opens some more mail, and I swats the first day with red, only part of the time it was purple, and the second day with black or blue or whatever it was, and the third day with green.

And some of them covers would a made you see pink. Did me. Time they got all the fancy out o' date stamps on 'em (Chris learned more about stamps that night than he ever knew before), and address, and return address, and red, white and blue dew dads, weren't no room for 'ary Cachet. So some of 'em I has to swat top of somethin' else. Some fellers got no idee of Chic, as they say in Paree, more'n a rabbit. Straight edge stamps, stamps way off center, stuck on crooked; and one guy he cuts 10c Lindys in two and uses half on a cover and writes "no 5c airmail available." I bet that were a lie, because that guy lives in one of the biggest burgs this side N. Y. No 5c airmail—! Well, I hain't no time nor no authority to argue with him, so I Cachets him, and let's the P. O. clerks do the cussin'. Probly if he gets 'em h a-tall, they'll be in the "prepared for but not issued" class.

Some birds wants signatures, no mear autografs, and the P. M. had a grafed some, only he's a wise old and only autografs those addressed young ladies. (At least, he hopes the young.) So take it from me, boys you want valuable P. M.'s autogr address your covers to your sweethea And then try to get 'em back. W Chris, he autografs some, as Daddy the Scheme, I guess, and then some t want the Pilot's autograf. Chris he s they ain't gonna be no Pilot, this ma startin' by train, so he asks me to a graf those. Which I does, me never been off the ground. But then I w Official Pilot of the Cachet, weren't Long about midnight, when the n beer give out, the covers did too, and took stock. Had over 3000 of 'em. that ain't Worship of the Great Cachet, as Cap Street'd say. And fo measly little one horse Derby. I di even go cross street to see it. Take n tho, boys, second day water carrier sp a bucket of suds on the landin' field, covers mailed that day are sure to valuable some time. Don't part with ' (Covers with suspicious lookin' stains due to near beer gettin' spilled, not plane landin' in Podunk R.)

I forget, no yarn ain't complete wi out a Scotcher. One guy sends us cover with 2c stamp and three slips paper, and writes, "Please put Cachet each day on separate slip of paper enclose in cover." But we gets e with him. We don't put no Cachet on cover. Any time I produce four separ and distinct Cachets, count 'em, for cents, which I don't get anyhow, know about it. And so will you.

We was goin' to cremate the Cac marker with appropriate ceremonies, the near beer was all gone and it too darned hot to start the furnace a how. So I suppose by now the kids h got the wall paper all Cacheted. S Ed, not a bad idee. Wall paper w Your Favorite Cachet, Done in Ec Nude, Henna (no, the old hen's whoopee any more), and Biege. H ing you are the same,

Yours,

J

THE BADEN-POWELL STAMP

HIGHLY VALUED POSTAL SOUVENIRS OF THE SOUTH AFRICAN WAR

By Douglas Armstrong.

The elevation to the Peerage of the Chief Scout calls to mind the storm of captious criticism nearly 30 years ago that centred round the appearance of his portrait upon one of the local postage stamps issued during the siege of Mafeking.

Ill-natured attempts were made in those days to represent this act as a form of lese-majeste. Influence was even brought to bear upon Queen Victoria herself by detractors of the hero of the hour, and for a time this threatened to prejudice his career.

Although the incident has long since been forgotten it is only recently that General (then Colonel) Baden-Powell's position has been completely vindicated by publication of the Memoirs of Colonel Herbert Greener, who was actually responsible for the designing and issue of the Mafeking stamps.

In the course of these reminiscences he declares that the local post stamps were actually prepared without the knowledge of the Commanding Officer. When a sheet was finally submitted for his approval the first question he asked was: 'Why my head? What about the Queen?"

It was explained that with the limited facilities at their disposal it was feared that justice could not be done to the Queen's likeness, and being occupied with more important military matters he allowed it to pass with the remark, "Well, I don't quite like it, but as you have gone so far, you had better carry on."

Undeserved Criticism

"The last thing that crossed our minds," writes Colonel Greener, "was that members of the garrison would stick these stamps on letters despatched through the post office to friends outside in addition to the ordinary postage stamp.

"This led to misunderstanding. Unkind and misguided people spread a report that they were an emergency issue of official stamps, and said unpleasant things about the Commanding Officer in that connection, which were quite undeserved. The fault—if there was any, which I don't admit—lay with Lord Edward Cecil and myself.

"I might also mention that Major (now General) Sir Alexander Godley, was asked for an independent opinion about the design, and quite agreed that it was a good idea and most appropriate for the purpose for which the stamps were required."

The Siege stamps of Mafeking are numbered amongst the most interesting and valuable relics of the Boer War. En passant, it may be noted that the most complete collection of these historic issues is that of His Majesty the King.

They were prepared in the beleaguered town during its investment by the Boer forces which lasted from October, 1899, to May, 1900, and are of two distinct kinds.

First we have various contemporary postage stamps of the Cape of Good Hope or Bechuanaland Protectorate overprinted "Mafeking Besieged." These were surcharged with new values which were employed to prepay letters smuggled through the enemy's lines by native runners to the North and South, between March 24 and May 17, 1900.

They were provided for use upon civilian correspondence by authority of Lord Edward Cecil, the overprints being applied at the office of the local newspaper, The Mafeking Mail.

The Cause of the Pother

The second series, the cause of all the pother, was a purely local affair for franking messages from point to point in the defences during lulls in the bombardment and was produced by a photographic process upon ferrocyanide paper in sheets of twelve stamps by Dr. D. Taylor.

There were two values only, 1d showing Sergt. Major Goodyear of the Cyclist Cadet Corps on his bicycle, designed by Dr. W. A. Hayes, and 3d with the head of Colonel Baden-Powell, for which Capt. (now Colonel) Greener, D.S.O., was responsible.

Following the relief of Mafeking the Siege stamps were officially demonetized by order of the Cape Government, but to collectors they remain as historic souvenirs of a gallant defence.—Bazaar.

Auction Sale of Pratt's Confederate States Stamps

By PHILIP H. WARD, JR.

On October 31, 1929, Mr. George B. Sloane sold at the Collectors Club in New York, a choice lot of Confederate States from the collection of State Senator Thomas H. Pratt, of Kingsport, Tenn. The sale included a fine lot, not only of covers, important because of their stamps, but a number of Prisoners of War Letters, Army Field Cancellations, and the like. They are described as undoubtedly the "finest in existence" and were awarded the Gold Medal at the Midwestern Philatelic Exhibition in Cleveland. Another collection consisting of general issues were added to the lot.

Among the handstamped postmaster provisionals, a Montgomery, Ala., No. 40, with small part of cover gone, sold at $17.20. A Statesville, N. C., No. 133, impressed on a letter sheet, very fine, reached $21.50. Among the provisional adhesives, used on the entire cover, an Athens, Ga., 5c purple, tied to small cover, in excellent condition, except upper left corner margins slightly clipped, brought $54.25. A Charleston No. 22, with small rectangular section cut from the upper left of the envelope, went at 19.73. A Danville, Va., 5c black on buff, with small part of the design missing at left, sold at $45.50. Among the Provisionals not on cover, a Knoxville, Tenn., 5c carmine No. 65, unusually fine, although close at top, brought $53.00. A Memphis, 2c blue, complete reconstructed sheet of 50 stamps, as illustrated and described in Pratt's book, sold at $107.50. A very fine Mobile 5c went at $10.25. A Petersburg, Va., 5c red No. 112, with horizontal crease, sold at $30.00, a second copy with ornaments slightly touched at top and right brought $35.00, and a third copy in remarkable condition, described as a corner stamp, reached $50.00.

The sale contained the three periods of the New Orleans, 5c Provisional, copies selling in accordance with condition, at prices ranging up to $17.00, the latter price being paid for a very fine unused copy of the Third Period. Two copies used together and tied to a single cover of which one was very fine and the other slightly cut into at bottom, brought $46.00.

Among the General Issues, used on cover, a 5c green used from Sumter, S. C., March 23, 1861, brought $14.00. A similar cover from Davidson College, N. C., illustrated, sold at $14.25. A horizontal pair from stone 1 used from Richmond reached $16.00. A similar cover from the same town, stone 2, went at $12.00. Copies of the 10c Patterson on cover ranged from $19.60 to $23.50, the latter price being paid for a copy tied with a "Wartrace, N. & C. R. R." postmark. Two copies of the Hoyer and Ludwig on separate covers, brought $12.75 each. The 5c blue of 1862 used on official envelope from the War Department, Nitre Bureau, Official Business, stamp being from stone 3, sold at $29.50, while a horizontal pair from stone 2 from Sparta, Ga., cancelled in bright red, reached $36.00.

The outstanding piece of the 10c rose was an extraordinary copy with remarkable margins used from Gainsville, Ala., which sold at $76.00. A second cover of the 10c, used together with, and partly covering a horizontal pair of the 5c green, from Mobile, reached $33.00.

Two singles of the 5c Local Printing from Chester Court House, S. C., cancelled in emerald green, very fine, changed hands at $14.00, while a 2c brown with light crease on cover from Athens brought $21.75. A very fine copy from Richmond brought $56.00, and a further fine copy from the same town on an official envelope of the Treasury Department reached $42.00.

Of the "TEN" covers, prices varied from $13.50 to $67.50, depending upon condition, the latter price being paid for a striking, outstanding cover neatly tied with a blue Richmond postmark. An outer line, showing two frame lines and cancelled, Montgomery, Ala., July 4, sold at $66.00, while $56.00 was paid for a cover showing the outer line at top and left, and partly on the other two sides. The stamp had been torn away from the cover, but skillfully replaced.

Among the "Off Cover" pieces, an 1861 5c green horizontal strip of five, stone 2, full o.g., brought $75.00. A block of four of the 10c, excellent margins, fresh color, o.g., but with light creases, sold at $68.25. A single 2c green, blue town cancellation, slightly thin, reached $29.00. The "TEN" blue ranged from $10.75 to $29.00, the latter price being for a copy on piece of cover, cancelled Culpeper, Court House, Va. An outer line off-cover, showing frame line on three sides, brought $41.25.

GEORGE ROGERS CLARK VARIETY

We recently had brought to our notice, an odd little flaw on the Clark stamp, consisting of a small spot of color on the ball of the right hand figure "2". This variety is constant, and occurs on five stamps of one horizontal row.

We can supply a single at 50c or a block of four containing two of these varieties at $1.00; a complete sheet of 50 containing 5 varieties for $3.50.

Our latest U. S. and B. N. A. 1930 list is now out. We should be glad to send this free on request.

Many of the values of this United States set, designated as the 1922-26 issue, were in use for only a short time and were not widely distributed throughout the country. I believe they present excellent prospects for the future.

U. S. BLOCKS

I am breaking up a very fine collection of U. S. blocks from 1895 to date, including many shade varieties. Let me have your want list, please.

H. A. ROBINETTE
509 7TH ST., N. W., WASHINGTON, D. C.

Prisoners of War Covers sold from $5.00 to $30.50, this last price being paid for three letters with 10c blue Confederate and 3c U. S., the covers being endorsed: "Exchanged", "Released", "Died." A Point Lookout sold at $18.50, Camp Chase at $8.00, Elmira at $15.75, and a R. I. Barracks at $8.25.

Among the Field Cancellations used for the Union forces, a "Banks' Division" tying an 1861 3c to cover, brought $7.25, a "G. B. D." in block type on the same stamp on Patriotic cover sold at $42.50, a Chattanooga, Tenn., went at $14.00, and a Ship Island, Miss., sold at $14.00. Among the Confederates, a strip of three of the 2c brown cancelled "Army of Tenn." sold at $40.00.

Among the War Relief Organization covers, a U. S. Christian Commission imprint on three covers, each of a different type of imprint, all showing pigeon flying with letter, covers containing copies of 3c 1861 sold at $7.80.

The sale also contained a few Foreign of which I note one or two items of general interest. A Canal Zone, 1924, 17c black, showing the variety "ZONE CANAL" sold at $6.60, a Caroline Islands, 1900, 10pf bisected and used as 5pf No. 9a, known as the "Ponape Typhoon Provisional" sold at $12.75. The three scarce Cayman Islands, twentieth century provisionals, namely, ½p and 1p on 5sh, and 1p on 4p, all in very fine o.g., condition, sold at $10.50, $10.25 and $36.25 respectively.

This is the first important sale of the season, and will possibly hold the record for fine things for the year, insofar as Confederate items are concerned.

BY THE WAY—

WE learn that Moldavia issued in 1858, the rarity, 81 "parole" if a newspaper is to be believed. Perhaps, "parole" is past tense of "parale."

ANOTHER newspaper says that a life-size picture of a lion's head, fashioned from postage stamps, was shown by a painter in France. Stamps to the number of 50,000 were used and the artist certainly was on the job as 3,000 hours of close work were required to put the finishing touches on the picture.

ASSOCIATION NEWS, the insurance journal that is rapidly forging to the front, is edited and owned by Shirley E. Moisant, Kankakee, Illinois. Mr. Moisant says that he still reads the WEEKLY.

THE post office department is buckling down to the task of moving the Christmas mails with the usual expediency. Between 65,000 and 70,000 additional temporary clerks, and between 2,500 and 3,000 temporary railway mail clerks will be required to handle the augmented influx of mail. Only special delivery mail will be delivered on Christmas day.

FOR the eye of Mr. J. S. Hastings: the Collector's Companion mentioned recently in the course of a paragraph was the paper of that name published in Chicago, in 1885 and 1886. There were a half-dozen other Collector's Companions, one of which was published by the writer, Will M. Clemens, at Akron, Ohio, in 1876.

CAPTAIN C. A. TOWNSEND, Chicago, was the attraction at a recent meeting of the Howard News' stamp club in Rogers Park, where he kept the boys and girls spell-bound by his recital of his stamp experiences. The Junior Stamp Club of Carson, Pirie, Scott & Co., Chicago, is holding regular weekly meetings, and recent speakers have been Messrs. North, Opalla, Henneman, and Col. Sebring.

WE find in the theatre ads of the Illinois State Journal, Springfield, Ill., the following: "Today. Matinee. Free Stamps. Children, Join Our Stamp Club Now. Majestic." Newspapers, theatres and department stores are organizing stamp clubs for the young folks. Next!

THE German Stamp Collectors Club, Chicago, at its meeting on October 8th, at its club room re-elected Julius Loeffler president. Other officers were named as follows: Vice-President, Wm. Maedge; Secretary, Wm. Theueringer; and Treasurer, Jos. Whiteburg. The annual banquet will be held on Sunday, January 12th, at Lincoln Turner Hall, Sheffield and Diversey Avenues, at 3 P. M. Entertainment will be provided for the ladies, and an exhibition and bourse will be open to all philatelists. Banquet tickets are $1.50; members free.

THE Oakland, California, Philatelic Society has been the recipient of a rare bit of advertising as a consequence of its recent exhibition, which we are certain was held successfully on October 25th to October 27th. The San Francisco News was to the fore with notices and, locally, there was no dearth of newspaper attention. The Oakland post office promised to exhibit four frames of stamps and to establish a station at the Exhibition for the sale of current stamps, including the new Canal issue. A number of important exhibits have come from the east, and all in all, Oakland surely has done itself proud.

THE Garfield-Perry Club News, Cleveland, Ohio, is running an interesting history of the Garfield-Perry Stamp Club, one of the oldest local societies in the country. We notice that in the minutes of a meeting held twenty-five years ago, the name of Charles J. Phillips appeared, and he "gave a long and interesting talk on the celebrated collections of Europe", and was given, in turn, a hearty vote of thanks. Recently, a most enjoyable surprise party was given to the vice-president, F. W. Green, at his summer home in Brecksville.

THE address of our esteemed correspondent, Reverend Joseph Dreyer, S.M., has been changed from Paulina, La., and he informs us via Louisville, Ky., first day Canal cover of his new station: 423 Olivier St., New Orleans (Sta. A), La.

MR. MILTON T. MAUCK, Lyndhurst, N. J., has made an extensive trip covering a period of weeks, and has met many of his friends en route. Mr. Mauck is running to air mail, having been one of the first dealers to specialize in these items.

CRISTOBAL TO SANTIAGO

A dandy first flight cover carried on the first trip over the Cristobal-Santiago air mail route.

Postmarked Cristobal, July 16, 1929, and Santiago, Chile, July 21, 1929, and has a fine purple cachet inscribed "First Flight, F. A. M. 9, Canal Zone-Chile," and showing the Chilean volcano, Orsono, and some typical scenery.

Only $2.00 for this fine cover.

THE BRAZIL NUMERALS

Beginning with the big "Bulls' Eye" numerals of 1843, followed by the numeral issues of 1844 and 1850, there are few stamps that attract more attention from general collectors and specialists. While they last we offer:

The Waterhouse Collection of U.S.A. Is Now In New York City

Sir Nicholas Waterhouse, F.R.P.S.L., while a general collector until 1914, has since confined himself to U. S., including Confederate States. Received awards at various exhibitions. In 1924 he wrote a "Comprehensive catalog of the Postage Stamps of the U. S. A." Sir Nicholas has been for many years a notable figure in philately.

Mr. Frank Godden, the well-known London dealer, is now in New York, and has brought with him among many other fine selections his latest purchase, the Waterhouse Collection of U. S. This is acknowledged to be one of the finest U. S. collections formed in Europe, and the following is a brief survey of its contents:—

New York on cover, first day of issue. Addressed to England. Superb pairs showing double and main shifts. Boston cover and R. H. M. superb on bluish paper and dozens of superb singles, pairs, etc., etc. All St. Louis printings, including unused with large margins.

General issues with scarce postmarks. Supplementary mails. Fine split on cover of the 10c 1847, and a record copy of the main shift of this stamp. Also superb copy used in New Brunswick or Nova Scotia. Premiere Gravures complete, unused, and numerous shades of the 24c used.

Blocks of some early issues used and unused. Two covers with the 90c 1861. Superb block of 4 of the 24c, 1871, with red postmark. All the 1869 inverts including two 30c, and record mint copy of the 2c 1901 inverted center, and the other inverts of this issue in same condition.

Also printings and re-issues practically complete in mint condition, including superb set of the 1875 with the original envelope in which it was sold. Numerous minor varieties in fine condition such as 1851, 1c block Type 1A, three beautiful copies of the 1873 2c double print unused (the only one known in this condition). Dozens of the 5c mustard, etc.

The whole collection is noted for the magnificence of its copies, the nucleus of it being the finest stamps which Sir Nicholas Waterhouse could not bear to put into auction on the occasion of the sale in 1925. Since then he has added many very fine and interesting items, and the present collection far surpasses the old one in quality if not in quantity.

We heartily congratulate Mr. Godden on his purchase. He is the President of the International Dealer Bourse, and has been the British representative at all the important international exhibitions for many years.

Washington Letter

By PHILIP H. WARD, JR.,
Box 2175, Middle City Sta., Phila., Pa.

(U. S. oddities and varieties will be noted in this department. If reply be necessary, enclose self-addressed stamped envelope.)

2c New Production

Mention was made in this column a few weeks back of the fact that the Department was experimenting with the rotary print stamps, in the hopes of making them more satisfactory to the general public. They are not only endeavoring to have the sheets lie flat, but to have the stamps adhere to the envelope, when they are finally attached.

The latest experiment is to print the stamp, dry it, and then gum it in a second operation, whereas the former stamps were printed, gummed and dried all on the same machine. It is hoped that these new stamps will meet with general approval.

I note that the Philadelphia post office has just received a substantial supply, and no doubt, other large offices have received similar lots. The postal clerk is instructed to sell these to large users with the intentions of asking them a few weeks hence, if they have had any trouble. The sheets noted at the Philadelphia office bear plate number 19185, and may be distinguished from the normal stamp because of its deep shade and because of the thicker gum, which gives the back of the stamp a transparent appearance.

It is doubtful if the new stamp is worthy of catalogue rank, but the specialist certainly will be in a position to distinguish this issue from the older one. Other minor peculiarities are evident.

2c Ohio Canalization Stamps

Mr. P. R. Crooker sends for inspection copies of the new 2-cent Canalization stamps in very distinct shades, one used from Williamsport being in an extremely deep carmine, similar to the so-called "lake" shade of the 2c 1890, whereas the second copy from Canajoharie is quite light and much brighter. The two shades differ from any that have been noted heretofore and are almost worthy of catalogue rank.

Mr. W. S. Ripley, along with others, calls attention to the fact that slightly different shades of the same stamp are found on the same sheet. These differ from those just described, in that the first two stamps are from an entirely different mixture of ink.

Metered Mail

Mr. E. B. Lemmond has submitted for inspection something new in the way of metered mail that has not been noted heretofore. The stamp which appeared on a parcel post package is of the new square type of meter imprint, but on the package in question, there are three different meter values, namely, a 1c, 5c and 10c; the three imprints covering a postage paid of 16 cents. These were used from Baltimore under date of October 26, and bear permit No. 10577. A combination, such as this, has not been noted heretofore.

NEW SEASON APPROVAL BOOKS
During the summer I have remade all my approval books, and have combined in them many important purchases made during the past year.
The following is a list of new books that are now ready. In general these contain stamps from a few cents to some twenty dollars each. A list of my books of rare stamps will be issued later on.
Prices will be found very moderate, as a rule 35 to 50 per cent below catalogue quotations, and all these priced on this basis of the 1929 catalogue.

To all Postmasters:
New Issue of 5c, 12c and 50c Postage Stamps.

1. Five, twelve and fifty cent Canal Zone postage stamps of the permanent issue have been received and will be distributed to postmasters upon requisition therefor in the usual manner, to be placed on sale as indicated below.

(a) The 5 cent stamp, which is the same size as the special delivery stamp in use in the United States and which bears a view of Gaillard Cut looking south from Bas Obispo, will be placed on sale at all post offices not earlier than 8 a. m. on June 25th, which is the 25th anniversary of the establishment of the Canal Zone postal service.

(b) The new 12 cent stamp, which bears the likeness of Colonel D. D. Gaillard, formerly a member of the Isthmian Canal Commission, will be placed on sale at all post offices not earlier than 8 a. m. on July 1st.

(c) The new 50 cent stamp, which bears the likeness of Senator J. C. S. Blackburn, who was also a member of the Isthmian Canal Commission, will likewise be placed on sale not earlier than 8 a. m. on July 1st.

2. The old issue of 5c, 12c and 50c stamps will be held by postmasters and will be offered for sale unless the new stamps are specifically requested by your patrons.

3. In your postal accounts, stamps of both the old and new issues may be combined and need not be shown separately. Requisitions, however, should indicate the new issue when such stamps are desired.

4. Requisitions for a reasonable supply of the new stamps should be forwarded to this office in the usual manner without delay.

5. Postmasters and other postal employees are strictly enjoined to make no sales whatsoever of the new stamps or permit them to be placed in circulation prior to the dates and hours shown above and mail orders received by the Philatelic Agency for such stamps shall not be placed in the mails prior to the dates shown herein.

6. Within the next few days all postmasters will be furnished with special rubber stamps, the impression of which shall be placed on all first class mail matter, excepting official mail, posted in the Canal Zone, both ordinary and registered, which is deposited for mailing on June 25th only. This rubber stamp will be commemorative of the 25th anniversary of the establishment of the Canal Zone postal service.

C. H. CALHOUN,
Director of Posts."

(2) 5c Gaillard Cut, June 25, 1929

The 5c stamp, commemorative of the 25th anniversary of the occupation of the Canal Zone territory by the United States, is horizontal rectangular in shape, 36½mm x 21½mm, and was line engraved and recess printed from flat plates, in sheets of 200 (10 horizontal by 20 vertical), with a margin at the top, bottom, and two sides, in which the plate number appears over, or under, the 3rd and 8th vertical rows, and in the side margins placed vertically (reading up at the left, and down at the right), opposite the 5th and 15th horizontal rows.

Between the 5th and 6th vertical rows, and the 10th and 11th horizontal rows, guide lines in color, divide the 200 subjects into four panes of 50 stamps each (5 x 10), and knives passing along these guide lines, while the stamps are being perforated 11, cut the 200 subject sheets into four Post Office sheets of 50 stamps each. No. 5--BN of the Peach Orchard Series of Handy Reference Leaflets.

(For mounting in your album or catalog)

Continental Plates, 1873-75

The Continental plates (including about 125 plates for the department and periodical stamps) were numbered from 1 to 310:—

1873—1c, Nos. 12, 13, 16, 26, 125 to 128, etc., 307, 308 (thirty in all).
" 2c brown*, Nos. 2, 3, 4, 6, 161 to 169, 234, 241, 242.
1875—2c vermilion, Nos. 245, 246, 296, 297, and twelve plates (Nos. 161-242) of the 2c brown series.
1873—3c, Nos. 1, 5, 7 to 11, etc., 309, 310 (one hundred twelve in all).
1875—5c, Nos. 243, 244, 247, 248, 284, 306.
1873—6c, Nos. 18, 21, 304, 305.
" 7c, No. 22 only (obsolete 1875)*.
" 10c, Nos. 23, 25, 302, 303.
" 12c, Nos. 24, 137 (obsolete 1875)*.
" 15c, No. 31 only (obsolete 1889).

The first 55 Continental numbers duplicate the National series but the same number occurs on the same denomination in both series only on 1c plate No. 16, three cent plates Nos. 1, 5 and 7 to 11, and on plate No. 24 of the 12c. Most of the numbers from 27 to 124 are department plates and those from 194 to 217 were assigned to periodical plates. These last were made late in 1874 and regular postage plates numbered 218 to 242 probably were made between then and June (?), 1875, when the first 5c Taylor plate (No. 243) was made. Eighteen plates (219-240) are 3c, and two plates (229-230) are 1c.

* The 7c and 12c stamps (and presumably the 2c brown), were not issued to post offices after June 30, 1875. Any Continental plate proofs of the 7c and 12c printed after that date were from plates 22 and 137 and those plates were also used in 1880 for the American special prints.

You can believe there are only 50 of the 1c Agriculture American print in existence if you want to but if I thought that statement wasn't half baked or all wet I'd ask several times as much for the imprint and plate number block I own and value at much less than cat.

Old U. S. singles, blocks and covers—fine quality—reasonable prices. Don't be timid about asking for what you want even if it costs under $10.

sheet of 50, bordering on the guide lines, are not perforated at their outer edges. These Post Office sheets of 50 have margins only at the top and one side (upper right and upper left panes), or at the bottom and one side (lower left and lower right panes).

The vignette consists of a steam shovel at work on the western side of Culebra (or as it is now called, Gaillard) Cut, looking south from Bas Obispo, taken from a photograph about the time the dry excavation was completed. Over the arched vignette opening is "Canal Zone Postage" in colorless letters; in the lower corners, the numeral "5" on solid circles of color, and across the bottom, "CENTS" in colorless letters. Acanthus leaf scrolls at the sides connect the denomination circles with the curved label at the top.

The border and lettering on the 5c was engraved by Howard I. Earle of the Bureau's staff, and the vignette and ornamentation by Louis S. Schofield.

One set of four plates was made (200 subjects each), numbered 118115, 118116, 118117, and 118118.

(3) Establishment of Canal Zone Postal System, June 25, 1904

June 24, 1904, has always been considered as the date of the opening of the Post Offices in the Canal Zone, and the issue of the 2c, 5c and 10c postage stamps of the Republic of Panama, overprinted "Canal Zone." This because of the fact that the Executive Order of W. H. Taft, Secretary of War, establishing the Canal Zone postal system is dated June 24, 1904, as is also the order of the Governor of the Canal Zone. G. W. Davis, charging the Treasurer of the Canal Zone, E. C. Tobey, U. S. N., "with the work of establishment and operation of Post Offices, and the operation of the postal system."

However, a careful examination of old records by the present Director of Posts of the Canal Zone, C. H. Calhoun, indicates that the ten Post Offices, with Panama Railroad agents as postmasters, did not commence to function until June 25, 1904. This date, therefore, must be considered as the inauguration of the Canal Zone postal system, and date of issue of the provisional Canal Zone postage stamps.

It is interesting to note that this is confirmed by a clipping from the New York Tribune, quoted below:—

"Panama, June 24, 1904. A postal service in the Canal Zone will be opened tomorrow. Nine offices have been established. E. C. Tobey, Treasurer of the Canal Zone, is today organising and instructing postmasters in their duties. Mails from the Zone to the U. S., and vice versa, will be carried at the domestic rates of the U. S., and until a supply of American stamps is received, Governor Davis has arranged with the Republic of Panama to use Panama stamps with the words 'Canal Zone' printed on them. Arrangements have also been made with the Panama authorities to receive and forward Central and South American and West Indian mail. Nine postmasters were appointed today. As soon as possible registered letter and Money Order offices will be established."

Although the clipping, and the Executive Order of June 24, 1904, mentions nine offices, ten were actually opened on June 25, 1904, i.e., Cristobal, Gatun, Bohio, Gorgona, Matachin, Empire, Culebra, La Boca, Ancon, and San Pablo, Matachin, not mentioned in the Executive Order, was substituted for Bas Obispo and the tenth office was San Pablo.

(4) Special Cachet, June 25, 1929

The special cachet (reference to which is made in paragraph 6 of Circular 1 (June 19, 1929), furnished all Canal Zone Post Offices, for application to first class mails, posted on June 25, 1929, is a horizontal rectangle, 56x44mm, inscribed, six lines—"1904-1929—25th Anniversary—Inauguration of—Canal Zone—Postal Service.—1904 June 25 1929." This was applied in carmine by the majority of the Post Offices, but in black by Pedro Miguel, and in violet by Gatun.

NEW AIR MAIL STAMPS

It is learned on good, but unofficial, authority that the days of the 5-cent bi-colored air mail stamp are numbered, and that no doubt, the very first new regular issue will be a 5-cent air mail stamp, printed probably in blue and somewhat similar to the special delivery, although possibly vertical in design. As the quantities of air mail stamps now being used are very substantial, no doubt, the new printing will be from the rotary press. It is quite possible that the airway beacon now appearing on the bi-colored stamp may be a characteristic feature of the new issue.

Nothing of an official nature is as yet available, but in view of the excessive cost of bi-colored flat plate printings, no doubt, such a stamp will evidently materialize.

MOSLER EXHIBIT

CINCINNATI, Nov. 9.

The Cincinnati Stamp Collectors Club was entertained Nov. 7 by G. M. Mosler, Pres. of the A. P. S., who exhibited two very fine collections of U. S. and Revenues. These collections contained nearly all the high valued revenues and inverts. It was a rare treat for the 52 members and guests present. The talk given by Mr. Mosler on general stamp news of the day was greatly appreciated. The first Thursday in December, Wm. Bertsche, Jr., will exhibit and talk on contract air mails. Collectors are cordially invited to attend the first and third Thursday of the month.

DOINGS IN MEXICO

SAN ANTONIO, TEX., Nov. 9.

My agent advises me under date of Nov. 1 that at some time during the latter part of October the Mexican Postal Service authorized the surcharging of a number of stamps with the following inscription: "HABILITADO — Servicio Oficial—Aereo" in three lines. This surcharge was applied vertically on No. 663 to No. 669, and horizontally on No. 670. The stamps used were those of the Pan-American Postal Congress Issue of 1926, but were not those of the regular issue but a set printed in black. These stamps were issued to be given out to those who were members of the Congress as a memento of the event, and were never issued for postal duty. The stamps have been on sale since that time in the stamp department (wholesale) at the General Post Office in Mexico City, but were never on sale at the stamp windows.

A government circular of last April shows that there were on hand some 750 copies of Nos. 663 to 669, and some 200 copies of No. 670. It is said that some 600 copies were surcharged of the Nos. 663 to 669, and 78 copies of the No. 670. The stamps were on sale for two days at the wholesale department during which time the whole lot was sold out. They were not to be had at the regular windows. It goes without saying that this was a purely speculative operation and would seem that the facts surrounding the issue should condemn it.

Of the new issue of Air Mails the three high values are now out, 1 peso, 5 pesos and 10 pesos, which with the five values now out, Nos. 913-917, complete this issue.

I am also advised that during the first of the month of December there will be celebrated in Mexico a week to be known as "Aviation Week." It is expected that a set of two stamps will be issued to celebrate this event. The value of the two stamps is not yet stated but they will probably be of low value. A newspaper clipping which I enclose gives some details of this issue. It appears that the stamps will have a picture of an airplane soaring over the Main Plaza of the city and views of the Cathedral, National Palace, and possibly other buildings as seen from the air. It is said the issue will be possibly 50,000 copies, and will be in use only a short time.

AIR MAIL NEWS FROM THE SOUTH

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 15.

The first air mail over the Panagra route left Buenos Aires for U. S., Oct. 12. Official permission to carry the mails was only granted 24 hours earlier with the consequence that many people failed to get in on this flight. To Trinidad, for instance, there was only one letter, and five to each of the following places:—Arica, Mollendo, Paita, Tumaco, Puntarenas and Belize. To Cuba there were only 45 letters of which 3 were philatelic items.

The 1st air mail from Miami to Buenos arrived here on Oct. 14. The philatelic items were about 1,000 letters.

On Oct. 11 the Commemorative set of three values to celebrate the "Day of the Spanish Race" was issued as previously announced.

5c Air Mail Combinations

Center plates 19636 to 639; 666 to 669; 674 to 677; and 688 to 695; with all border plates.

In this final grouping we have twenty center plates instead of the usual twelve as listed in the preceding groups, yet the total number of known combinations is by far the smallest. We have but 154 to date, but as time goes on we may reasonably expect to add considerable to this number, for as fresh supplies are ordered from the Bureau, and in turn are sent to the various offices throughout the country, we shall probably find that a large part of the supply held in the Bureau vaults at the present writing, contain printings from these plates.

No copies have ever been found, as far as I am aware, from center plates 636 to 639 inc. During the past few months we have several times requested column readers to be on the alert for these numbers. My advice to anyone lucky enough to locate any specimens with the above centers is to take all you can get. The biggest collectors in the country all fail to report anything from these plates; all want them, and you will have no trouble in disposing of them. No copies from center plates 689 and following have been reported to date, but may come in anytime. This leaves but nine center plates in a group of twenty, from which we have copies. Here they are: Center 19666, borders 606, 607, 612, 614, 615, 620, 623 to 635 inc., 670 to 673 inc., 669 and 701; center 19667 with same border plates as above; center 19668, borders 607, 614, 615, 620, 623, 625, 626, 634, 670, 671, 672; center 19669, borders 606, 607, 612, 614, 615, 620, 623 to 635 inc., 670 to 673 inc., 669 and 701; center 19674, borders 607, 612, 614, 615, 620, 623, 625, 626, 627, 629 to 635 inc., 670 to 673 inc., 699 and 701; center 19675, borders 607, 612, 614, 615, 620, 623 to 635 inc., 670 to 673 inc., 699 and 701; center 19676, borders 607, 614, 615, 620, 625, 626, 627, 631, 634, 670, 671; center 19677, borders 615, 620, 627, 632, 670, 671; center 19688, borders 615, 620, 625, 627, 670, 671.

It will be observed that no copies have been reported from border plates 19605 and above, in this group, that is, with centers 19636 and following. As in group II, nothing has been reported from border plates 640 to 643 inc., and 696, 697, 698, 700 and 702 and following. Our check list is now completed, and further combinations may be added as discovered and reported by column readers. We will chronicle all combinations as soon as reported, thus enabling all to keep their list right up to the minute. In future issues we plan to include remarks on individual varieties and certain plates, and with the help of column correspondents present information of interest to all who follow this most fascinating subject.

We have but two additions to our list this week, both in Group I, and were received from our New York correspondent; center plate 19580, borders 592 and 605.

A. F. Gegenheimer sends an interesting oddity for examination. It is a 1c Walloon. The masts seem to have been extended, either through accident or design, resulting in the appearance of the flags at half mast. Our Washington correspondent is checking the variety, and further details will appear in an early issue.

Lists of plate numbers and letters are acknowledged from the following: Mrs. J. W. Lundy, Rev. E. M. Gearhart, Frank Reeder, Jr., Oscar Ackerman, Leon D. Miller, Louis O. Dutcher, A. F. Gegenheimer, Thomas H. Hawk, G. D. Maresca, Jack Nichols, William Ward, Al J. July, D. Olin Herriott, A. Hermann and L. A. Heilman.

And here are a few of the plates reported during the week. These are picked at random, no attempt being made to list or classify all numbers received. As an aid, we may later give the office of issue from which copies are reported, etc. Again we find a few rather early numbers. ½c, 17019-078-079-080; 1c, 15548, 18956, 19215-216-218-300; 2c, 19159-174 - 211-212-233-245-242-273-332-333-383-401-402-403; 1½c, 18694-728; 3c, 18126-127-803; 4c, 18038-039-082-084; 5c, 18907-908-909; 6c, 18037-421; 8c, 18191; 9c, 18-742; 11c, 17617-620; 13c, 18107-924c; 14c, 17466c; 15c, 17431-432-433c; 17c, 18023; 10c S. Thomas H. Hawk reports an Ohio River block with freak perforation, caused by the sheet being folded under when placed in the perforating machine.

MAIL DELIVERY AT LAS PALMAS

(Wide World—B. I. Imbrie)

Passengers for the Cape or Australia have as a rule to wait nearly three weeks after handing their final farewell letters to the pilot who takes the ship down the Mersey from Liverpool before they can post again in Cape Town. Some of the cargo steamers, however, have instituted an extra service from the Canaries, which are reached about a week from home. Although this service is entirely unofficial, and on the face of it extremely risky, it is, as a matter of fact, very efficient and rarely, if ever, miscarries. The day before reaching Las Palmas a notice informs passengers and officers that letters must be delivered to whoever is taking the responsibility of "postman," with a shilling per letter for postage and "expenses." Some twenty to thirty letters are usually handed in. A stout six-foot plank is made into a raft, and a mast fixed to it carrying a flag. An iron keel is lashed on to keep the contrivance upright, and a suitable fixture is made amidships for the precious cargo. The letters themselves, with the cash for their transmission, are placed in a square tin watertight box, well soldered round the cover. The tin is then enclosed in a covering of sailcloth, on which is painted the address of the ship's agents. When the vessel is about a mile off Las Palmas, speed is reduced and a lookout kept for a fishing boat. After attracting the attention of the fishermen, the raft is launched and the steamer resumes her course again, the whole operation only taking a few minutes. The letters are always picked up and duly posted ashore, the money enclosed with them being ample to make the trouble worth the fishermen's while.

NEW ITALIAN CONTRACT

It is always a pleasure to us to write a contract with a European advertiser. It is a tribute that carries with it more than the fact indicates. The Unione Filatelica Nazionale of Rome has been advertising frequently in our paper in recent months, and the results must have been very satisfactory, for the firm writes us Oct. 24, that they will take out a contract for 2,000 lines to be used during the coming year. The first advertisement under the new contract appears this week, and we may add that our dealings with this firm have been very satisfactory, and we have had no complaint whatever filed against it.

Editorial

THE Bureau of Standards, Department of Commerce, Washington, is engaged in research work that has for its object the improvement of the paper used in our postage stamps, and already there is a basis for the belief that valuable data have been obtained. The inquiry is being made at the request of the treasury department, which wishes to take advantage of the distinct progress in paper-making, which, the Bureau says "is an industry that is still in its infancy, and research work is expected to develop many new types through pulp processing."

OUR latest news about new issue possibilities comes from Omaha, Nebraska, where, we learn, the Auto Club of that city has endorsed the movement instituted by the American Automobile Association to give publicity to the national parks, "instead of former presidents," as a newspaper puts it. The Omaha Bee says: "The frying pan may replace George Washington's face on the 2-cent stamp."

THE suggestion is made that among the objects of current interest that are placed in the corner-stones of large buildings, current stamps be included, among the coins, newspapers and other records of the day. In years to come when the memorials are removed from their long tenancy, the stamps will afford interesting proof of the flight of time.

AN author recently consulted the WEEKLY in order that it might check up the philatelic action that is one of the features of the plot. He has some knowledge of collecting, but he does not wish to trust himself with the stamp dialogue without being "edited." The story is not a stamp tale primarily, but the philatelic theme enters into it.

ONE of the most unusual stamp il- lustrations that we have seen for some time is one in the St. Paul Daily News, showing the Ramsey County, Minnesota, county treasurer, Mrs. Obst, standing against a background on which letters are shown from countries all over the world, prepaid by the proper stamps. The envelopes enclosed money that came from property owners living abroad or traveling in payment of real estate taxes.

MR. ARTHUR BLAKEY, Chicago, shows the Scott Standard Catalogue, 46th edition of 1884, which has the figures 45 on the front cover blotted out by "46" in characters over two inches high, thereby giving the impression that some of the covers left over from the 45th edition were used provisionally for the 46th. We shall refer hastily to a few of the prices in this list that was published forty-five years ago, since comparisons with present day quotations are apt to be of interest. Even in 1884, the 5c black New York was not given away, as the price assigned to it then was $1.50, but the 5c and 10c of 1847 were sold at 10c and 50c, respectively. The 3c of 1851 was priced comparatively high at 5c, while the 5c of the issue was $1.00. The 1c perforated of 1857 was listed at 2c, used or unused, and the 3c unused at only two cents, the quotations indicating that the unused were in large supply as a consequence of the Civil War demonetization. No type discrimination was made in the 1c at that time. The 24c of 1861 was only 5 cents, and the 10c cost one cent used. The 30c and 90c grilled of 1868 were not priced. The 90c of 1869, which was never common, was listed at $2.50. The 12c and 24c of 1870, grilled, were not priced, and the 15, 30 and 90c grilled were rated at 50c each; and the 10c at twenty-five cents. The latest U. S. in the book was the 2c of 1883. The Executive Department stamps were not priced, and the only one of the dollar values of the State given a price was the $2 used at $3. The following paragraph taken from the "preface" shows that locals were looking up: "The great and increasing demand for 'locals' as the stamps of the various private express companies are incorrectly called, has induced our publishers to incorporate a complete illustrated list, and it is hoped that it will be the means of familiarizing collectors with the appearance of these rare stamps, a large number of which are worth, at present, from one to ten dollars each, our publishers being prepared to pay nearly the full retail value for all of them." Naturally, the changes in the foreign are marked in most cases. Great advances have been registered in certain issues, but on the contrary, there are a few stamps that cost almost as much then as now.

MR. JACOB A. ALTMAN, Phila- delphia, says that he is surprised that each year collectors ignore the anniversary of the postage stamp in May, 1840, and he thinks that something ought to be done about it, but he does not say just what. Mr. Altman is not alone in his feeling of astonishment as it does seem as though this important day should not be overlooked, but alas! when husbands forget their wedding anniversaries, for instance, it follows that days of happy memories are not always kept green, as it were. How may the day of the birth of the stamp be suitably honored? In England there have been ceremonies on the "natal day" of the penny black.

A BOOK on stamps has just come from the press of Harper & Brothers, New York, that is true to its colors; it is "Stamps," written by Kent B. Stiles, and illustrated by many pictures. The book is the interpretation of practical philately as well as the romance of stamps, and here is where the trained hand of the writer, such as Mr. Stiles is, may be depended upon to produce a finished piece of literary ware. Mr. Stiles planned his work with a sense of values and has accomplished his mission so as to attract the eye of the casual reader and compel it to attend to the unfolding of the theme. The book, while compressing much of its subject in all its branches into 375 pages, does not suggest high pressure salesmanship; it is rather a leisurely dissertation on the subject of stamps. Excess baggage is not carried and graceful gestures are dispensed with; and fact has precedence over fancy. The old-fashioned description "vade mecum" properly may be applied to "Stamps", but the words do not suggest the entertainment that is furnished by the author. He tells of the inception and development of collecting, and he is particularly happy in his "Foreword." A factor of strength is that the present estate of philately is reflected by an experienced man with a good sense of the perspective of philately, and the book is one that may be resorted to by the business man, for instance, for information. What "the well-versed man ought to know" is in "Stamps." Mr. Stiles' work with its lessons in philately becomes a text-book that is to be recommended heartily, but, by the same token, it is not amendable to the rules of the hasty reviewer. A glossary of philatelic terms is given nearly fifty pages, and there are lists of books, magazines and societies, which, while not complete, give an idea of the extent of the sweep of stamps. We pat Mr. Stiles on the back for a book that reflects credit on collecting and on himself. Typographically, the book is in keeping with the fine traditions of the publishers, Harper and Brothers. We may add that Kent B. Stiles is editor of the stamp departments in The Youth's Companion and The American Boy.

Air Mail News

DONALD E. DICKASON, Editor,
Wooster, Ohio

(Coöperators will find their names listed each week. If a reply be necessary, enclose a self-addressed stamped envelope.)

It is a pleasure to welcome into the air mail department editorial fraternity the H. G. and Geo. D. Kingdom, of Conneaut, who will care for the air mail news in Linn's Weekly and Gossip, respectively. They will do their jobs well. Every once in a while someone writes in to know what I mean by C. of C., CAM, FAM, etc. These abbreviations, perhaps overused in an effort to save time and space, refer to Chamber of Commerce, Contract Air Mail, and Foreign Air Mail, respectively. The latter two abbreviations are used with the numbers designating certain regular air mail routes operated under contract for the U. S. Post Office Dept. CAM routes are entirely within the United States; FAM's are those from the United States to some other country or countries.John Hartwig, efficient manager of the Air Mail Unit of the A. P. S., writes that he has been transferred to New Britain, Conn., and hence must give up his Unit activities. It is to be hoped that a successor as satisfactory as Mr. Hartwig has been will soon be on the job.Another auction lot recently received has something new—a collection of air mail stamps in blocks showing cachets over the stamps. The owner made no special effort to preserve the entire cover, but did try his best to get the cachets applied nicely on his stamps, which are mostly in blocks. Your first reaction to that is probably that it's an utterly goofy idea, and so was mine. However, if you had a chance to see some of the things he sent in, I believe you'd have to modify your ideas. It is surely one very pretty little collection.

Official Flights

You'll recall that the extension of CAM 19 service to Camden recently was on a Sunday, whereas the shuttle flights to New York and Washington take place only on week days. The only covers I've seen heretofore are postmarked the 15th, with the 1st flight cachet, and were flown over the regular route north or south. Now Chas. G. Reiss shows me a cover, mailed on the 16th, to be mailed via the shuttle plane, and lo and behold, we find a first flight cachet on these which went south. However, northbound via the same service did not get the cachet. Anyone else have anything of the kind happen?First night trip from Omaha, Oct. 1st, carried about 2,000 letters, all with the special cachet which the C. of C. says was applied by the P. O.

If you're still waiting for some long overdue FAM's to turn up, this may lend you courage. On Nov. 4th, I received back from Coquimbo, Chile, covers sent there via the FAM 9, first trip leaving Miami May 14th!First flight from Quito to Guayaquil was Aug. 28, from which first flight 5 covers were signed by the P. M. General of Ecuador. Just remember that FAM 7, Miami-Nassau, Bahamas, is scheduled to reopen service Jan. 1st. No cachet, of course, but rather worth sending a cover or so for.

Otto Edenharter sends me a card which he says is from the first official drop of mail over Germany from the Graf Zeppelin. He writes as follows: "Postage 50pf cards, 1 mark letters. All Zeppelin flights in Germany make these cards in the future. All sendings to the Post Office, Friedrichshafen, Germany." The card is postmarked Friedrichshafen, Oct. 7, with the "Luftpost" cancellation, and also Breslau and Berlin, Oct. 17. It bears also the usual red cachet, "Mit Luftschiff Graf Zeppelin befordort".Long, long ago I sent covers and a money order to Holland, asking that the covers be forwarded by the first new service flight to the Dutch East Indies this fall. These covers have just arrived, postmarked Amsterdam, Sept. 12, and backstamped Weltevreden, Sept. 22. Each bears the blue "Per Luchtpost" label, and 75c in air mail stamps, in addition to 12½c in ordinary postage.

Have to mark another one off. Covers and monies sent to Madagascar, also long ago, have come back too, but under cover, with a polite note from the respective postal officials saying that they are not allowed to handle covers for collectors in this manner; and also that the air mail service has not definitely been established as yet. To balance that, Mr. W. Nock, of the Salvation Army, whose address is Box 862, Hilo, Hawaii, says

Bits of Information

Bond Paper.—A strong, tough paper made from linen rags. Die proofs of several United States stamps may be found on this paper.

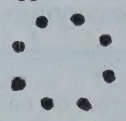
Bonilla.—The Bonilla stamp is a special label issued in the republic of Honduras in February, 1912, to commemorate the election of President Manuel Bonilla.

Central American Steamship Company.—A steamship company long ago merged in another concern, with steamers plying between the United States and Mexico. The company issued a series of stamps which, in May and June, 1886, were used for the prepayment of postage on letters and newspapers carried by its vessels.

Cent de Peso. — A value expressed upon many of the stamps of the Spanish Colonies and which was equal to about ½c U. S. on the average.

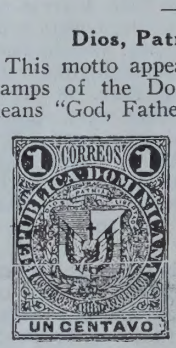
Douglas Patent Paper

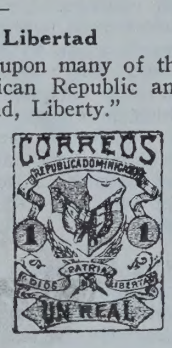
This was a double paper consisting of a thin surface paper adhering to a thicker and harder paper. The surface paper was punctured by small holes so arranged that eight, in the form of a circle, appeared on each stamp, and part of the printing ink thus passed through the holes and was applied to the backing paper. Any attempt at cleaning was, therefore, certain to result in the tearing and removal of the thin surface paper. Some of the 2c and 3c United States stamps were experimentally printed on this paper in 1882 or 1883, and these were placed on sale at the city post office at Washington. It was ultimately decided not to permanently adopt this paper.



Dios, Patria, Libertad

This motto appears upon many of the stamps of the Dominican Republic and means "God, Fatherland, Liberty."





Study Your Stamps

Postes.—The only inscription, other than that relating to the value, shown on some of the early stamps of Belgium and on the issue for Alsace and Lorraine. The latter have large numerals as the main part of the design while the Belgian labels show a portrait or coat-of-arms.

Postzegel.—On the 1852-64 stamps of the Netherlands.

Preussen.—Prussia.

P. S. N. C.—These letters appear in the corners of the first stamps used in Peru. The stamps were originally issued by the Pacific Steam Navigation Co.

R.—This letter, with new value, was overprinted on some of the French colonial stamps intended for use in Reunion. (2) A letter "R" forms the only "inscription" in English on the locally produced labels for the Indian native state of Jhind.

Republique Francaise (or Repub. Franc.).—France.

Roumelie Oriental.—Eastern Roumelia.

Beer Stamps

Beer stamps, with tobacco, cigar, cigarette, snuff, distilled spirits and other special tax stamps, come under the category of tax paid stamps. The presence of the stamp of this kind on the bottle, barrel, package, or what not, denotes that the tax has been paid on the article or commodity, and the rule is that the stamp must be destroyed upon opening the package or container. Beer stamps first were issued under the act of July 13, 1866, when seven stamps were issued, ranging in denomination from 12½ cents to two dollars, inclusive, to pay the tax at the rate of one dollar a barrel. The central design of these large stamps was the size (of barrel) in words and figures. Several issues intervened between 1866 and 1871 when the vignette of some celebrity replaced the old design in the center of the stamp. In the next issue, that of 1875, the 25c exists with inverted center; the vignette was in black with colored frame in this and in the other values of these sets. In 1898, the tax on beer was advanced to two dollars a barrel and provisionals resulted. The regular issue of 1898 ranged from 25 cents to $4, inclusive. The series of 1901 marked the reduction of the tax to $1.60 a barrel and some odd denominations were the consequence; for instance, 26⅔ cents for a sixth of a barrel. In 1902, another provisional showed the reduction of the tax to one dollar again. In 1909, the design of the stamps was changed to words and figures in center and they were printed in one color on blue paper.

BERMUDA

By Sydney A. R. Davis.

Midway between the British West Indies and Nova Scotia lies a group of some three hundred and sixty lime and red sand stone isles which are known as the Bermudas. Without streams and low lying these islands cover an area of only 19 square miles, and although only twenty of them are inhabited they are able to support a population of 27,741 of whom just over half are natives. The people of the islands cultivate and export a quantity of Lily Bulbs Potatoes and other produce.

The date of the discovery of the islands by Juan de Bermudez is not known, but on a map published in 1511 the island is indicated as La Barmuda. In the year 1609 Admiral Sir George Somers sailing on his way to Virginia in the "Sea Venture" with eight other ships was wrecked on one of the reefs off the islands, this accident resulted in a settlement being made there, and the islands being named The Somers Islands. The Virginia Company hearing of the settlement sought and obtained from King James I an extension of their charter, so as to include these islands within their domain, shortly after selling them for £2,000 to a body called "The Governor and Company of The City of London for the Plantation of the Somers Islands" in 1684 the Company was dissolved, when the government of the Colony passed to the Crown.

The chief island is Great Bermuda upon which Hamilton, the capital is situated, other of the islands are named St. George, St. David, Somerset and Ireland. At St. George the former capital is a land locked harbour and the floating dock which is depicted on the stamps of 1902.

The first stamps of Bermuda are the rare Postmaster's stamps which were issued for local postage only, these are impressions of the circular postmark with the day and month removed, they have the word HAMILTON at the top and BERMUDA at the bottom around the curve of the circle separated by a star, with the year in the centre, the value "One Penny" and the signature "W. B. Perot" (the Postmaster of Hamilton) in pen and ink completed the stamp. There is no record of the dates that this stamp was in use, but copies are known dated 1849 (in black) and 1854 (in red).

On September 13, 1865, supplies of three denominations were received in Bermuda, which were placed on sale on the 22nd, becoming available for Postage three days later. These stamps were of the value of 1d rose, 6d purple, and 1s green, they were printed in London by Messrs. De La Rue & Co. by the surface printing process and were issued in sheets of 240 in four panes of 60 on paper watermarked Crown C. C. perforated 14, the 1d is known without perforation and is exceedingly rare in this state. The designs of the three stamps are similar, all having the head of Queen Victoria in the centre enclosed within a circular frame, and tablets of solid colour with BERMUDA at the top and the value in the lower part of the stamp all in sans-serif capitals, the 1d had straight tablets at the top and bottom, the 6d two curved tablets above and below the frame, and the 1s a curved tablet with the name above, and a straight tablet below with the value. On the 14th March, 1866, a two penny stamp printed in blue by Messrs. De La Rue & Co., in the same make-up and on the same paper as the earlier stamps, in this the name tablet at the top of the stamp is straight with the letters in a curve with the value expressed in coloured capitals. Seven years later on the 10th March, 1873, the series was completed by the issue of a three penny stamp printed in the same manner in buff, this was issued to pay the postage on single letters to British North America, in this stamp the Head was enclosed in an additional octagonal frame, the name being indicated in coloured Roman capitals in a straight tablet at the top and the value in similar capitals in another straight tablet at the foot.

The 3d, 6d, and 1s stamps are known with the perforation 14x12½.

The supplies of the three penny stamp became exhausted eleven months after their issue, and on 21st February, 1874, the Council approved of the issue of the one shilling stamp surcharged Three Pence, which was applied diagonally at The Government Printing Office in black in panes of 60, of this surcharge which was issued on 12th March, 1874, there are three types, two in fancy, and the third in Roman capitals which was issued on April 19th of the same year.

A second provisional issue was made in 1873 when supplies of the Penny Stamp ran out, to meet this emergency the 2d blue, 3d buff, and 1s green were locally surcharged One Penny in two lines.

Until 1880 Bermuda had no stamp to the value of ½d and 4d, on 23rd March of that year these values were issued, printed in the same way as the other stamps, the ½d in stone, and the 4d in orange-red. The design of the Half Penny stamp was not unlike that of the one shilling English Stamp of the period, having the head of the Queen enclosed within an oval frame of solid colour with the inscription BERMUDA at the top and HALF PENNY below all in uncoloured sans-serif capitals, separated by ornaments of key design, the four spandrels completing the design being filled by ornamentation. The four penny stamp had the head of the Queen enclosed within a circular dotted frame, with the inscription in curved tablets of solid colour above and below in uncoloured sans-serif capitals. Both these stamps were printed on Crown C. C. paper.

The Crown C. A. paper came into use in May, 1884, when the 1d appeared on this paper followed by the 2d in December, 1886, in 1890 the ½d appeared printed in green, and in July, 1893, the 2d in purple, in January, 1886, the 3d in grey, in July, 1893, the 1s in yellow-brown all on Crown C. A. paper, and on 10th November, 1884, a 2½d stamp printed as before was added to the series. This stamp was issued for the prepayment of Foreign Postage, and had the head of Queen Victoria in the centre within a circular frame, with tablets of solid colour above and below formed so as with the side frames to form a hexagon, the top tablet containing the name of the colony, and the lower the value TWO PENCE HALFPENNY all in uncoloured capitals.—Filatelia.

We have a very fair stock of these stamps, including some really fine cancellations. These much neglected stamps are slowly getting harder to find; and of some there were but few printed—as for instance—the 90c Justice, of which but 3600 copies were ever issued.

Collectors wishing to complete these issues will find almost every variety in our stock, including some of the Specimen Surcharges that are just as collectible as the reissues with which they were issued at the Centennial.

Correspondence is gladly welcomed and personal calls much desired.

STOCK MARKET DOWN

Although there has been a great bear stock market during the last several weeks, nevertheless, there is certainly a real bull market for fine United States issues, and as a result, cash to any amount is available for really important single items, or collections, which can be purchased at a price which will net even a fair margin of profit at today's substantial quotations.

While I possess one of the finest stocks of United States postage and revenue issues in the hands of any professional, nevertheless, it is necessary to constantly buy in order to supply the numerous requests.

As a rule, items cataloguing under $10. are not especially wanted unless in quantities, nevertheless, I am wiling to purchase even these at substantial prices, when in collections with rare items.

At the present time, I require everything in the way of choice early issues in mint blocks and superb mint singles. Choice covers, as well as outstanding used pieces, are desired.

Anything of importance in the way of the 1847 issue will be of interest. In the issues from 1879 on, only outstanding blocks, errors and inverts are required, in addition to the higher denominations in blocks.

Other things wanted, are Postmasters, Carriers and Locals, nicely tied to the entire cover, Department stamps in mint blocks, and on entire covers, the rarer Postage Due in mint blocks, Revenues—pairs, strips and blocks, imperforate, and blocks part-perf. and perforate, as well as the rarer 20th century, all of the inverts, especially the rarities. Confederates in mint blocks and on covers.

I offer the same class of stamps to the interested buyer.

Filatelic Oddities

By SEVARD.

After reviewing our latest Scott's catalogue, we are a trifle ahead on what we lost in the stock market. Where are these guys who wanted to loan us money on our stamp collections?

Various meter varieties have bobbed up of late. The Air Mail meter from Cleveland, Ohio, permit 70, Meter 6003, Type E, 5 cents in blue with "Via Air Mail" above the indicia should be in every air mail collection. It ranks ahead of airport dedications by a long take off.

THEN WE HAVE SEEN THE ENGLISH TYPE MACHINE APPEAR, THE ONE WITH THE FIRM'S AD IN THE INDICIA. THOSE WHO COLLECT BRITISH METERS KNOW THIS OF OLD.

Another English type has appeared from Washington, sent us via the Southgate information service bureau. This is meter number 10187, and the indicia is in the shape of a square 1869 postage stamp, perforate one-half of one per cent. It resembles greatly the French permits.

Altho by no means meters, Washington has tried out a number of cancel machines which are new and odd. As you know, Washington tries out a lot of new patents on mail matter, and many Washington postal markings are used but a few days during test runs. The one we recently received was run off a meter machine to count Penalty Envelopes.

We have seen a number of foreign slogans which are quite tricky. The German "Benutzt Die Luftpost" with a trimotor plane is counterpart to our slogan "Air Mail Saves Time," altho we like our airplane much better.

Mr. Clatterburg, Washington, D. C., sent us a number of the green ink machine cancels which appeared in New York City and Baltimore this year. Faded tints were also noted from Columbia, S. C., Boston, Mass., as well as the Fox Street and West 43rd Street stations in New York. Mr. Everett Erle, San Francisco, also found bluish varieties. From what we glean, in April, 1929, cancel ink, which was used for the green cancels used in connection with various special cancels, found its way into general use. As this green ink was fed on black ink rollers, cancels are noted from day to day with changes of shade. Baltimore, and one New York machine, attained a full greenish tint, whereas the rest are mostly in blended shades varying on blue, blue-green, or faint tinges of the greenish coloring.

One also notes the fancy Tomahawk registry cancel. There are two varieties, the early and the late. The early type is small. These were first reported to us in May by Mr. Hugo Beihoff. The late type is without a doubt made to order, as it is larger and evenly cut. We believe they are worth what one wants to pay for them, the seller having a slight advantage.

Mr. Everard, Vancouver, B. C., wrote us interesting matter on stamp appeal. We have always believed in stamp appeal. Collect stamps that appeal to you. Sometimes we have difficulty in knowing why we like a certain stamp more than some other. But we always find a kindred soul who also finds an appeal in our stamps. Mr. Everard finds that the stamps which were put aside merely because they appealed to him are now the very fine stamps of today. They have a ready sale. They are valuable. A second sense in buying is usually a first sense in selling.

THIS SUMMER, WHILE WE WERE TRAIPSING AROUND PARIS, WE OBSERVED CONGENIAL BUYING AND SELLING AMONG THE POPULACE SUNDAY AFTERNOONS. IN THE OPEN AIR, STAMP MARTS WERE BUSY. BUT THERE WAS ONLY "ONE" DEALER IN U. S. ISSUES. AND HIS PRICES WEREN'T CHEAP. MR. KLEIN AND MR. WEST HAD RUINED THE STAMP MARKET IN U. S. ISSUES FOR US POOR DOWN-TRODDED, PLAIN ORDINARY COLLECTORS. I WOULD HAVE GOTTEN MORE STAMPS IN THE OPEN BREEZE, BUT SOMEONE STEPPED ON MY HAND.

Our latest computations on catalog values seem out of line with Scott's figures. We slip the slide rule for the 2c 1926 compound at .00021 or 21c per thousand. The 2c horizontal coil stamp goes at .00029 or 29c a thousand. The 2c 1922 perf. 11 goes at .00189, and the 2c 1922 perf. 10 at .00214. The White Plains stamp is about .03115, slightly better than Scott's price. And a perfect copy of the 2c perf. 10 ought to bring .04361 or a nickel. Our Boscawen is still waiting for the fifteen grand, less two per cent cash.

Last evening I sat at a philatelic bourse and 99% of the stamps for sale by the ordinary collector were cheap stamps. These chaps have no guide for pricing their stamps. These are the chaps who are the body politic of philately. They come away from the meeting with sales of eight cents or ten cents, and finally they won't bring sales books anymore. They feel that they are always at the tag eng of the catalog maker. They buy at fancy catalog figures, but always sell at rock bottom prices. This applies more to precancels and air mail covers than to the general run of stamps. One auction dealer told us that he was considered a gyp because he couldn't auction off stamps at full catalogue value. One stamp dealer tried to replenish his stock and found prices too high to keep his mark-up within reasonable limits. He had to hunt up new fields for "finds." As before mentioned, 99% of the stamps offered are cheap stamps. The little fellow expects to be a part of the bourse, and if he can't sell, he won't play. He quits. He buys less often. He gives up a branch of his collecting. He speculates. He carries his stock on a margin of hopes and no imagination. He sneaks out the back door of stamp investing when he finds he has stamps that pay no dividends. The market is too high. It is too high because it isn't stabilized. The 99% of the stamps for sale are orphans as to values. Business is good, old-timers are still prosperous, stamps are in demand, but let the little fellow have a chance to market, too. Avoid speculation, determine firm market values and investment potentialities, and no matter what sales prices are, sit tight, and with the old axiom, "When in doubt, do nothing," believe that stamp collecting takes more intelligence than licking hinges.

Maybe this is morbidity rampant, but insolvencies, bankruptcies, and crashes are too poignant in one's business to neglect seeing even at a stamp meeting. The happier vein of plain stamp collecting is not in commercialized sport, but in unalloyed playing for the sake of the game.

he'll be glad to hold covers for any who wish to send them for any air mail service which may develop there—and he says a six point service seems probable before very long. Postage is likely to be the usual 5c per. We appreciate Mr. Nock's offer, as also the continued cooperation of Postmaster Chilson, who, though not allowed to hold covers himself, was instrumental in getting me in touch with Mr. Nock.

Seemed to be some variation in the markings on first flight FAM 9 covers from Buenos Aires. One cover which I have seen bears the usual "Via Aerea" Oct. 12th cancellation on the front, and what appears to be a machine cancellation on the back as follows, in 4 lines, "12 Octubre—Inauguracion Linea Aeropostal — Via Pacifico — Buenos Aires-Nueva York." Other covers, dated either the 11th or 12th, bear the regular "Via Aerea" dated cancellation only, while still others have a round dated cancel on the front reading "Bs. Aires—R y V. D. —Via Aerea." Takes more Spanish than I know to get that "R y V. D." part.

Airport Dedications, and Other Unofficial Cachets

Our thanks are extended to R. I. Weiss and J. N. Tucker, both of whom sent prepaid wires this week in connection with armistice day events. Unfortunately, too late for use. Try again, friends, and a bit earlier if you can.

In various periodicals have appeared from time to time lists of cities which are reported by the Dept. of Commerce as planning new airports. In nine cases out of ten, a dedication is a long distance in the future. I have a form questionnaire which goes to all such, and the news of any immediately forthcoming activity is always published here. I suggest that those of you who have been sending covers to all cities so listed, would find it more profitable to wait till things develop a little more, and also the hard worked Chamber of Commerce secretaries wouldn't have to write so many letters in answer. The following letter received from one secretary will illustrate my point: "So far we are simply talking about an airport. It will be at least a year—possibly 2 or 3—before plans materialize. Stamp collectors are bothering us to death with stamped letters for mailing on dedication date. If you can influence them to 'lay off', please do so. We haven't time or postage to return their letters." Other papers please copy!

And as a further example—the following are the cities reporting nothing doing at all, or not for a long time, in this week's mail: Delphos, O.; Beatrice, Neb.; Oroville, Cal.; Visalia, Cal.; Marysville, Cal.; Rialto, Cal.; Riverside, Cal.; Merced, Cal.; Cuthbert, Ga.; Detroit Lakes, Minn.; Hebron, Ind.; Dunellen, N. J.; Cape Girardeau, Mo.; Petersburg, Va.; Lenora, Kans.; Arlington, Ga.; Watonga, Okla.; Middlefield, O.; Hannibal, Mo.; Bristol, Conn.; Elizabethton, Tenn.; Meridian, Miss.; Oakland, Neb.; Durant, Miss. Many of these will develop in the future, but let's give them a chance!

The 12c and 50c stamps, issued July 1, 29, are in conventional size, vertical ctangular, 19x22mm, and line engraved d recess printed from flat plates in eets of 400 (20 horizontal by 20 verti-), with a margin on all four sides, in ich the plate number appears over, or der, the 5th and 15th vertical rows, and the side margins (reading up at the t, and down at the right), opposite the and 15th horizontal rows.

As with the 1c and 2c issued Oct. 3 d Oct. 1, 1928, respectively, between 10th and 11th vertical rows, and the h and 11th horizontal rows, guide les, in color, divide the 400 subjects o four panes of 100 stamps each (10 0), and knives passing along these ide lines (while the stamps are being rforated 11), cut the 400 stamp sheets o four Post Office sheets (of 100 mps each). The stamps of each pane rdering on the guide lines (19 in each st Office sheet of 100), are not perfo- ed at their outer edges, i.e., are straight ged. These Post Office sheets of 100 mps have margins only at the top and e side (upper left and upper right nes), or at the bottom and one side wer left and lower right panes).

The vignette of the 12c consists of the ad of Col. David D. Gaillard, facing ont, within an oval, inscribed at the ot, "Gaillard". Around the sides and of the oval is "Canal Zone Postage," d in the upper corners are triangular ornaments. Circles in the lower corners, bear the numeral of value "12", with "Cents" in a straight line between. The numerals and all lettering (except "Gaillard") are colorless.

On the 50c, the vignette is that of the head of Senator J. C. S. Blackburn, facing front, with "Blackburn" at the foot. On a curved ribbon at the top is "Canal Zone Postage", in color. Acanthus leaf ornamentation extends upward at either side, from solid circles in the lower corners which contain the numerals "50". "Cents" in a straight line at the foot, completes the design.

The border and lettering on the 12c was engraved by Howard I. Earle, the ornamentation by C. Frank Wittenauer, and the portrait by Louis S. Schofield. The border and lettering on the 50c was engraved by William B. Wells, and the ornamentation and portrait by Edward J. Hein.

One set of four plates of 400 subjects was made for each denomination: 12c 118186, 118187, 118188 and 118189; 50c 118119, 118120, 118121 and 118122.

DEPARTMENT STORE SALE

By Philip H. Ward, Jr.

The Gimbel Company, one of the main department stores in Philadelphia, designated the week of November 4 as "Stamp Week", and carried advertisements in the local papers calling attention to their special stamp department on the first floor of their store. Arrangements were made with the Scott Company to have their Mr. P. H. Thorp present to answer the numerous questions asked by the curious passerby, as well as the collector, young and old. I learn that much interest has been taken in the subject, that a large number of catalogues, albums and packets have been sold, and that the sales for the week will run in excess of $1,000.

The Gimbel Company is one of the department stores that has given much attention to the sale of stamps and accessories, with the result that their business is constantly growing. These sales are devoted entirely to albums, catalogues and pages, in addition to packets and sets. No effort has been made to sell individual stamps, which is practically impossible without a trained sales person.

The Gimbel Company has organized several clubs locally among the boys, who meet in their store each Saturday. This week they distributed a most interesting circular entitled, "Educating a Boy with Postage Stamps." They gave away a little booklet for holding stamps, including twenty-five varieties, a package of hinges, and a block of four of the 50 million mark stamp of Germany, along with a little note, calling attention to the fact that this block of four previous to the War would have had a face value of fifty million dollars, whereas the money depreciated so much at the close of the War that it took this amount to mail a single letter.

A contest was held among the boys on Saturday, November 9, at which time prizes were awarded. Work of this type is helping to add to the number of collectors, and is excellent propaganda for philately.

A. P. S. PRECANCEL UNIT

By H. S. ACKERMAN, Chairman.

I am in receipt of an interesting report of the first meeting of the Unit held at the Convention in Minneapolis, sent in by the Secretary of the Unit, Mr. F. C. Bundlie. The Secretary, Dr. Davis, informs me that the convention voted not to print the proceedings and suggested that the above report appear here. As the report is quite long, I shall brief it and give you the essential details. The meeting was called to order by Mr. Victor W. Rotnem, one of our members, on Wednesday, August 21st. There were twenty or more in attendance. Mr. Rotnem, after making a few remarks, introduced Mr. G. M. Mosler, President of the A. P. S. Mr. Mosler offered his assistance to put the unit through and to work for its success. Mr. F. W. Grant was elected temporary chairman, after making some remarks he called for nominations for Chairman. The writer was elected unanimously. Mr. F. C. Bundlie of Grand Forks, North Dakota, was nominated and elected Secretary. General discussion took place after these formalities. Mr. Norona, Secretary of the Stampless Cover Unit, was a visitor and gave much encouragement. Those there then sat down to tables and began exchanging items of interest. The meeting was closed with the hope that this Unit would grow to be the biggest of them all.

Mr. Hugh Southgate, Chevy Chase, Maryland, one of our members, wrote me he would be interested to see some notes on that most interesting branch of the precancels, the Bureau Prints. So I am going to tell you something of my collection. I was quite puzzled what to do with the perforate ten one cent in yellow-green ordinary and coils. To date I had ignored shades. I had seen in some collections that others had placed the two outstanding shades of the 12c in their sets of the 1917 issue. It became necessary to remount my Bureaus and I then decided to take in the two prominent shades of each value. I found that the shade that was at first used in all values differed with the shades of the compounds, markedly in the one, one and a half, three and ten cents values. I will give the original shade first, 1c blue-green —yellow-green; 1½c pale brown—dark brown; 2c dark carmine—bright carmine; 3c purple—lilac; 4c light brown—dark brown; 5c on the indigo blue—more bluish; 6c dull orange—more red in it and brighter; 7c gray dull black—deeper black; 8c olive—lighter in shade; 9c pink —brighter shade and more color; and the 10c dull yellow—more of the orange in it. These colors are not to be taken absolute, but as a guide in comparison when you have the two shades together. Another thing you will note that there is a change in each case, of the compound of pigments used, I say this to caution against two impressions of the same printing showing heavier inking. Some towns have more than two shades. A couple of towns have a light red-brown shade on the 1½c, quite a pretty shade. Probably the 5c is the hardest to see. Daylight is far the best for this work. One other point is to be remembered and that is the Bureau was printing stamps all the time, so first orders of some towns appear only in the later shades, especially certain values. If first you will work on the large cities like New York, Chicago and Boston, you will get the guide to mapping out the rest.

In this manner I mount two sets of the perforated 10s. There are a few shade items in the compounds. I have never got enough of these to go far. In addition I mount plate breaks, offset prints and the like. At a later date I will give a list of these. I have only got thru the "M" states in remounting. I also mount the corner stamp showing margin paper on two sides, one comes with plate number. I like to get blocks with margin strips. The first Bureau Prints were on some of the first of the 1922 series bureau plates. These plates have a little tick or short line opposite to each row of stamps on the margin paper, long since discontinued.

COLOR CHART $2.50 COIN INDEX, 10c (in Coin)

How many of you have noted that New York City has a new type. The bunch around here were all asleep, not even the state editor of the catalogue or publisher saw it until it had been in use some time, no wonder though, it is only a change from lines to bars, but that is what makes the game worthwhile. Speaking of this New York type, note we have now had four almost alike. The first one, Type X, has the wide apart N. Y. This type has the scarce N under O of York. It occurs only twice in the sheet. Mr. Hoover has a block with two on it. No other strip or block has as yet turned up showing more, to my knowledge. The second one is Type XI, with the close together N. Y. The variety of the N. under O occurs in this plate about even in quantity. The third one is like Type X and the items printed from this plate are listed under that type for 1922. The old Type X was not used on 1922. You will note Type XI was in use for the latter part of the 1917 issue and the beginning of the 1922 series. And the fourth is as mentioned at the beginning of this paragraph, lines changed to bars. No varieties have thus far shown up worth mentioning in the last two types.

FORT BRIDGER U. T.

printed in square block caps with heavy face, 3mm high, second line in caps and small caps, on 3c buff 1853 envelope, Scott's No. 2314. The cover is in fine condition for its age. This is certainly a wonderful precancel find, and dated at that.—American Philatelist.

SOME GIBBONS' PRICINGS

By W. E. FYNDEM.

Perhaps the most surprising feature of the new Gibbons is to be found, not in the stamps which have advanced materially, but in certain instances where there has been no movement at all. As I pointed out last week, Europeans have, on the whole, done extremely well, and in a large number of cases the early issues have risen sharply.

There are, however, one or two notable exceptions; Spain is a good example. The early issues of this country, which has never been really unpopular, and which today is certainly not out of favour, have remained absolutely stationary. The first issue of Sweden has also remained unchanged, and the same remark applies to the Swiss Cantonal stamps. On the other hand, the early issues of Belgium, Norway, Portugal, Russia, and France all show considerable appreciation, especially the two last named.

What is the explanation of the difference in treatment as between these two groups? They are all specialists' countries, so that avenue does not look very promising so far as finding a solution is concerned. Nevertheless, I believe part of the explanation is that in the latter group there are two specialists to every one in the former group.

Something of a vogue for plating used copies of Spain S. G. 1 has sprung up in recent years, but I unhesitatingly say that the demand for early Spanish stamps is not on the same plane as the demand for, say, early French, or early Belgian. In this connexion it must not be forgotten that Messrs. Gibbons have an enormous continental clientèle. Both France and Belgium are streets ahead of Spain as stamp collecting countries, and I have not the slightest doubt that, to some extent at any rate, it is the continental demand which is responsible for what, at first sight, appears to be an inconsistency.

With Swiss Cantonal stamps I think that there is another explanation, which may apply, in part, to other countries. Messrs. Gibbons have not yet introduced differential pricing into Part II of their catalogue. In other words, their figures are more in the nature of averages than actual basic prices; therefore they are less liable to fluctuation.

To come back to the new catalogue however, it is interesting to note that where there has been no change in first issues, there has been a good deal of liveliness in second and middle issues. This applies to both Sweden and Switzerland where the Postage Dues also have come in for some attention.—Stamp Collecting

Santander --- Correo Rapido

RECENT DEVELOPMENTS IN CONNECTION WITH EXPRESS SERVICE IN CERTAIN DISTRICTS

By HERMANN FOCKE.

The new catalogue of Scott brings on the first page under Errata the astonishing news that "Colombian Republic-Santander No. 301 (on page 407) should be deleted because it is an issue of a private company", and to enlighten that smart Aleck who made this great "discovery" I will say that the meaning of the word "Correo" is Post or Mail, and that of "Rapido" rapid or swift, in other words an Express stamp and not for Special Delivery as Scott chooses to name the particular stamp which is no more the product of a private company than any other of the many Colombian Departments' or States' stamps, and during its brief existence was available at the various post offices of the Dept. of Santander.

Its addition to the regular postage on letters entitled the sender to a despatch by special messenger either by automobile or mule-back to the nearest major post office, and meant the saving of perhaps two or three days, and I have seen several of the particular little stamp on letters received in this country; therefore I cannot see any reason why it should be deleted from the catalogue, unless the same is done with all other Department stamps, which step, however unjust, might not be regretted by many collectors. Scott's price of 10c seems to me very low, and I seriously doubt that they can deliver the goods, certainly not in used condition, because its circulation was short-lived.

Towards the end of 1928 it was replaced by a permanent issue of the same value of 4c in green on white wove paper, about 20x24mm, perf. 12 all around, the stamp showing a range of mountains with the rising sun in the centre; at top the words CORREO RAPIDO—SANTANDER in two lines, and at bottom the value 4 CENTAVOS 4, which stamp is still in use.

In September of the present year there appeared two others, provisional Express stamps for use in the Northern part of Santander, or perhaps only in the City of Cúcuta, as the inscription would indicate, of which I received first the 4c value in deep blue, and later on the 2c in deep carmine red; both stamps are of the same design, printed in sheets of six in a vertical row on very thin white tissue paper, perforated only horizontally (11½) between the stamps, so that the top and bottom stamps are perforated only on one side and the remaining four items on two sides.

The size of this highly interesting provisional is 36x20mm and the inscription reads at top: COLOMBIA—NOTRE SANTDER., at bottom: PROVISIONAL — CUCUTA, at sides: left reading up CORREO, and right reading down RAPIDO; in the center appears the coat of arms of the Republic with the value on both sides, "2 cvos." or "4 cvos." in two lines as the case may be.

The sheet has three stamps each of two different clichés alternately set together into a vertical plate of six items with the following distinctions: reading

UNITED STATES USED BLOCKS OF FOUR

We list below an unusually complete list of the above. Blocks in used condition are very much scarcer as a general rule than unused, although they usually sell at much lower prices. We have noticed quite an increase in the demand recently for used blocks and hope that the offering below will prove of interest. An early order is advisable, as we have only a few blocks on hand of some of the numbers.

Any blocks not satisfactory may of course be returned for full refund.

BLOCKS OF FOUR

This popular field of collecting has not been neglected in the assembling of my specialized stock, as it has been my custom for many years to put away new issues in blocks of four. This supply is constantly being augmented by the purchase of collections of blocks of four, which gives me a stock that I am rightfully proud of.

I have not seen fit to include prices of blocks of four in my price list, as market conditions and prices change so frequently on them.

I am glad to have want-lists submitted for pricing or the blocks on such want-lists will be submitted on approval upon receipt of reference (your bank and two stamp dealers) from all applicants who have not had selections from me within two years.

The Well-Known London Dealer

Frank Godden is one of the great figures in World Philately. Known not only as a dealer, but also for his keenness as a real philatelist. He is a specialist in arranging and writing up collections and has exhibited on numerous occasions.

Mr. Godden has just arrived in the U. S., bringing with him the great United States collection of Sir Nicholas Waterhouse that he has acquired. It will be shown in several big cities. A cordial reception will be tended Mr. Godden wherever he goes.

BANQUET OF THE POSTAGE STAMP CLUB, CHICAGO

A very enjoyable time was had on the evening of November 9, 1929, the occasion being the annual banquet of the Postage Stamp Club of Chicago, held at the Bismarck Hotel.

At 6.30 P. M., those present sat down to a sumptuous repast with President A. Hippchen presiding, and during the meal musical entertainment was furnished by Tony Prince, the Broadway Recording Artist, and His Accordion. It was thoroughly enjoyed by all. This was followed by short stories by the same artist, and then we were entertained by a wonderful show of the Black Art given by Andrew Andmar, which greatly mystified most of those present. When the tables were cleared Col. Frank O. Sebring was introduced, and he gave a very interesting talk on the Anthony Wayne Stamp, the occasion of its issue and a vast detail of historic facts about the "Mad" General and the Battle of Fallen Timbers. Next on the program was a very appreciated discourse by Prof. Paul G. Andres on his experiences as a collector and his travels over the country and visits to the various dealers. As the concluding speaker, Capt. B. B. Lipsner, the Superintendent of the Air Mail Service, gave an interesting talk on Air Mails, and announced his new book which will shortly appear on the subject of the development of the Air Mail Service from its inception to the present day.

An auction sale of some 115 lots was then held, Mr. Fowler being impressed as the auctioneer. Air Mail covers were the subject of the most spirited bidding.

While the banquet was being held in Parlors D and E a very interesting display of stamps was in progress in Parlor C. There were a great number of frames of stamps shown, and many were of great interest. The members and the laity found great interest in the entire exhibit.

Amongst those present were Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Ripstra, William H. Gilley, John B. Boddie, Julius Loeffler, George A. Zimmerman, Capt. B. B. Lipsner, C. H. Krippaehne, Mr. and Mrs. O. H. Hilding, Karl Feis, Adam Kloskowski, Herbert Prenevost, Harold Prenevost, Mr. and Mrs. Paul G. Andres, J. Fred Vickrey, Henry M. Hartjen, L. H. Sherwin, Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Mosher, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. A. Hippchen, Col. Frank O. Sebring, A. M. Floesller, R. C. Davidson, L. C. Kohanna, Ignatius Saklas, Miss E. Forpanek, S. A. Nelson, C. L. Glover, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Hoibal, Mr. and Mrs. William Forpanek, Max Shultz, Miss Mae A. Scott, James A. MacDonald, J. L. Elledge and daughter, Andrew Andmar Sonnichsen, and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ades Fowler.

A vote of thanks for the wonderful way that we were entertained and for the amusement and exhibition was given to those having the matter in charge.

from top to bottom, stamps Nos. 1, 3 and 5 have the word SANTDER touching the left margin; there is a stop after CUCUTA., the double lined inner frame has a gap in the middle under the coat of arms, and the E in DE has invariably a smudge.

In stamps Nos. 2, 4 and 6, which are one mm. wider than the others, there is a space between SANTDER and the frame, and a stop has been added after the word, as it should be since it is the abbreviation of Santander; on the other hand the stop after Cúcuta has been left out; the first o in CORREO is broken and reads a "c", and the inner frame lines are intact. There are several other minor differences peculiar to the two clichés.

On receipt of the first copy of the 4c value I immediately sent for a supply in sheets, but by the middle of October, when my order was received at Cúcuta, the issue of this value was already exhausted and only the 2c value could be supplied in mint sheets, which, by the way, have no gum, but from used copies of the 4c stamp I take it, that the same plate and two clichés were used, because they show the identical varieties.

It is in my opinion a very interesting issue, and as both values have come on the regular mail, I consider them bona-fide Express postage stamps deserving their rightful place in the catalogues.

COVERS BEFORE STAMPS

Ever since the big "Kennedy" find of correspondence in New York about ten years ago we have been devoted to stampless covers. From that find we had several thousand covers bearing rates and postmarks between most post-offices in North America; as well as railroads, steamships, steamboat, canal-packet routes, etc., etc. "SHIP" postmarks for almost every port of entry in America. Orange, green, blue, red, brown postmarks. To this original collection we are adding constantly.

Two October Auction Sales

Reported by PHILIP H. WARD, JR.

C. S. WATSON SALE
October 21

On October 21, 1929, the C. S. Watson Company of Los Angeles sold an assorted collection of United States and Foreign items, including some excessively rare Pony Express and Western Frank covers. In fact, the former brought record prices and as a result, were well written up in the local papers. While only a quotation here and there has been furnished, we are enumerating the outstanding pieces which are brought to our attention.

An 1861 Pony Express 25c blue vertical strip of five and single used on Wells, Fargo 3c envelope, on which was also affixed a block of four of the 3c 1861, all cancelled and tied with large circular Wells, Fargo postmark, went into a California collection at $1,300.00.

A similar cover, showing a beautiful block of six of the 25c red, used on a 3c envelope, along with a single, pair and strip of three of the 3c 1861, brought $1,110.00.

A cover with a superb single of the 25c red and a damaged block of eight, used along with a strip of eight of the 3c 1861, changed hands at $255.00. A price of $425.00 was paid for a strip of four of the 25c red, together with two singles tied with Wells, Fargo postmark.

The four Pony Express covers described above all passed through the Wells, Fargo San Francisco office. The two first prices are undoubtedly records for covers of this type.

Among the United States off-cover items, a perfection used copy of the 5c New York brought $52.50, while $160.00 was paid for a block of six of the 10c 1851 used, showing Type II and III, of which the top pair had a light crease and was thin, but the lower block was in good condition. It was described as a little heavily cancelled. A superb block of six of the 6c 1882, No. 208, moved at $65.00.

Outstanding and fine things seem to bring fine prices, no matter where offered.

W. S. BARKER SALE
October 28

On October 28, 1929, Mr. W. S. Barker sold in Boston a small collection of United States and Foreign, containing several pieces of interest.

Among the United States, there was little of importance. The scarcer items were: A complete sheet of the 1893 4c cataloguing $18.75, sold at $17.00; a set of twenty-one first-day Norse-American covers, changed hands at $18.00; and a set of the Shanghai, complete, Nos. 3280 to 3297 inclusive, sold at $11.40.

Among the Foreign, a Canada 6 pence 1852 wove paper, fine, sold at $20.00; an 1859 10c black at $16.00; an 1868 6c brown, watermarked, No. 25b, at $38.60. A Hawaiian 5c on 13c, No. 7, with close margins and thin spots found a new owner at $35.50, while a fine 2c black on grayish, No. 12, in unused condition, sold at three-quarters catalogue, namely, $75.00. A copy of the same denomination, No. 16, with town cancellation, listing $50.00, brought $40.00, while its neighbor, No. 17, showing good margins with cogwheel cancellation, cataloguing $250.00, sold at $190.00. A 1c, No. 19, unused, brought $30.00, a 2c unused, No. 20, $40.00, a similar 5c, No. 22, $10.00, while later issues brought satisfactory quotations.

A Newfoundland 1860, 4 pence orange with wide margins, lightly cancelled, sold at $65.00, a Sweden 3s, No. 1, described as a handsome copy, sold at $65, while a similar copy of the 24s, No. 5, sold at $35.00. A mint block of sixteen, Trinidad, 1851, 1 pence, sold at $100.00, while one of the finest things in the sale, namely—a Zululand £5, No. 24, in handsome mint condition, cataloguing $150.00, sold at $125.00.

"OUTLINE OF PHILATELY"

By PHILIP H. WARD, JR.

In the earlier days, when the new collector, or one desiring to start a collection of stamps, wanted information concerning the subject, it was necessary to consult with numerous other collectors in order to obtain even elementary information in regards to the subject. Harper & Company have just published a book of upward of four hundred pages, by Mr. Kent B. Stiles, entitled—"Stamps —An Outline of Philately," which covers the subject of stamp collecting in such a way that either the collector, or one who desires to collect, receives practically all of the information that is desired.

In addition to a foreword, there are twenty chapters in the book, covering such subjects as, Philately and Its Stamps, Starting and Developing a Collection, Watermarks, Perforations, Grills, Papers, a full description of the Postal Union, what it is and what it does, similar information regarding Philatelic Agencies, giving a list of those throughout the world, Airposts, Commemoratives, Rarities and Speculative Issues, Reprints, Counterfeits, etc. The last chapter entitled "Glossary, Terminology and Index", covers a good bit of ground and enables the amateur to classify a stamp in which the name of the country is either missing or is expressed in a language unknown to the interested collector.

The book brings together much information which can only be gleaned with much trouble by searching through past philatelic publications and books. The book is certainly an answer as to how to collect stamps, and should be in the hands of every new collector. It contains over two hundred illustrations and is priced at $3.00. It is unfortunate that a book of this kind cannot be placed upon the market around $1.00, so that its distribution would be extensive. Such a book is excellent propaganda for stamp collecting and should be widely distributed.

Bureau Prints

H. M. SOUTHGATE, Editor,
5800 Conn. Ave., Chevy Chase, Md.

TRIBUTE TO CARROLL

Prof. Gamber is a persistent dog; that is a reason why the writer agreed to tackle this proposition of presenting to the WEEKLY readers, data on Bureau Prints. Likewise, it is an honor and a privilege to carry on the work and memory of a valued and lamented friend, C. A. Carroll, whose loss will be deeply felt by the precancel fraternity. His was the type of enthusiast that is an example and benefactor to any field of endeavor. He was one who delighted to give freely, expecting only a free return within the limits of one's ability.

It is planned here to list monthly the new towns that will use Bureau Prints, as well as the new denominations to be looked for in towns already catalogued.

As the B11 or Standard overprint is largely in use denominations not reported in that type, but to be immediately anticipated, will be listed.

While the data submitted is compiled from authoritative sources it must be appreciated that orders are sometimes cancelled; occasionally a slip occurs in compiling data, and that at times stock may remain unused for months or be destroyed without use. So items listed may in a few cases never appear.

However, in the main the data presented will be found sufficiently accurate to be a help to collectors generally, and in some cases may serve to catch items that otherwise might escape.

It is proposed to start with the towns and denominations not appearing in the 5th Edition of the Bureau Print Catalogue, bringing to date the lists and continuing (with new doses) from month to month.

Someone must provide dresses for the youngsters and shoes for the grand kiddies, so time to do what might otherwise be desired, may be lacking. Still it is hoped to supplement the records with some dope on production problems and causes for changes or varieties. Likewise, a list of new items actually found may be added later, if demand should warrant.

It is hoped that these notes will be of some use to the readers. Anyway, "Don't shoot the organist, he does the best he knows how." At any rate, don't shoot until he has had a little practice.

HAITIAN FRONTIERS, 1929

By HARRY E. HUBER.

The Treaty of Frontiers, between the Republic of Haiti and the Dominican Republic, signed at Santo Domingo City, on Jan. 21, 1929, was ratified by President Louis Borno of Haiti, on February 11th, was sanctioned by the Haitian Council of State (exercising the powers of the National Assembly), and signed by the Secretaries of State for Foreign Affairs, for the Interior, and for Finances, on February 15, 1929. On February 25th the President of the Dominican Republic, Genl. Horacio Vasquez, signed the decree of the Dominican Congress ratifying the treaty of January 21st, and the formal exchange of ratifications took place at Santo Domingo City on April 30th.

The series of stamps issued by the Dominican Republic to commemorate the signing of this treaty, was completed about June 15, by the issue of the ½c, 1c, 5c and 10c. The 2c had appeared in May, although copies from a proof sheet passed through the post as early as April 25th.

Of the ½c, 1c, 2c and 5c, one sheet each (100 stamps) is known imperforate. The fact that these are in the possession of a clerk in one of the Government Departments at Santo Domingo City would indicate that they were not sold in this condition to the public, but were either irregularly printed, or were proof sheets. The latter seems more likely, since this same clerk has a sheet each (50 stamps) of the ½c, 1c, 2c, 5c and 10c of the Alcazar de Colon series in imperforate condition.

It had been proposed at first to place a quantity of the Dominican commemorative stamps on sale at Port au Prince, Haiti, but this was abandoned, and instead, early in July, an order was placed by the Haitian postal authorities, with the American Bank Note Co. of New York, for a 10 centimes de gourde stamp (500,000) to commemorate this event. The stamps were received at Port au Prince, about the middle of October. It was originally intended to put this stamp on sale Friday, Nov. 1st, but that being a holiday, during which the Post office was open only a short time, issue was deferred until Monday, November 4th.

The stamps, horizontal rectangular, 29x23mm, were line engraved and recess printed by the American Bank Note Co. of New York, in carmine, in sheets of 100 (10x10) on unwatermarked paper, and perforated single line 12. Under each stamp in small colored caps is "American Bank Note Co."

The design embodies a portrait of His Excellency Jos. Louis Borno, President of the Republic of Haiti, in robes of State, and wearing numerous orders and decorations. In the left portion of the stamp, on an ornamental tablet, in colored letters, is "Commemoration—du—Traite—des Frontieres—MCMXXIX". Below the portrait in the right portion is the inscription "Borno, President," in small colorless letters. Across the top of the design in fancy serifed colored caps is "Republique d'Haiti", and at the bottom, in colorless, is "Centimes de Gourde." The numerals of values appear under the tablet, and also in the lower right corner. At the right side, reading down (the letters being one under the other) is "Postes."

The features of President Borno appear also on the 5c green, and the 50c orange and black, of the Sept. 3, 1924, pictorial series.

In President Dartiguenave's cabinet, M. Jos. Louis Borno held the important portfolio of Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs and Public Instruction, and with Robt. Beale Davis, Jr., Charge d'Affaires of the United States, signed on Sept. 16, 1915, the treaty by the terms of which the President of Haiti appoints, on nomination of the President of the United States, a general receiver of customs to take charge of the custom houses; a financial adviser to be attached to the Ministry of Finance, etc.

cil of State, of 21 members, functioning as a National Assembly, elected M. Borno President of Haiti, for a term of four years, under the constitution of June 19, 1918. His inauguration took place May 15, 1922.

M. Borno was re-elected April 12, 1926, for a second four year term, by the Council of State. This procedure of electing a President by 21 men over whom he exercised the right of appointment and dismissal, caused much adverse comment, although the election of M. Borno naturally was highly satisfactory to the American advisers of the Haitian Government. President Borno is an able lawyer, and a man of wide diplomatic and administrative experience, and notwithstanding bitter criticism has loyally and consistently given most intelligent, and even rabid coöperation and support to the programme agreed upon between himself and the American officials. His re-election assured an orderly and progressive continuation of this programme.

Nov. 4, 1929. Commemorative of the signing of the Treaty of Frontiers, with the Dominican Republic, on Jan. 21, 1929. Engraved and recess printed by American Bank Note Co. of New York, unwatermarked, and perforated single line 12.

In October, 1928, the 5c green, Borno, of the Sept. 3, 1924, pictorial series, unexpectedly exhausted, and an order was cabled to the American Bank Note Co., of New York, for another million copies. (The original order in 1924 was for 3,000,000.) Although there was good excuse for a surcharged provisional, the postal authorities refrained from doing so, and for almost two months it was necessary to use instead two 3c de gourde stamps of the Agriculture and Commerce series of 1920. The reprinting of the 5c was received and issued in December, 1928.

This was the second denomination of the pictorial series to require reprinting; in 1925, the 10c Citadelle was reprinted.

Independence Anniversary, Jan. 1, 1929

Although Jan. 1, 1929, marked the 125th anniversary of Haitian independence, there were no local celebrations, neither was there any special postal issue or marking. It was on Jan. 1, 1804, at Gonaives, that Dessalines proclaimed the independence of Haiti—which before had been known as Saint Domingue.

NEW AIR MAIL STAMP

PHILADA., PA., Nov. 16.

In further reference to my notes of last week, relative to a new air mail stamp, I am now officially informed that such a variety is about to appear. This will be 5 cents in denomination, printed in blue, from the rotary press, in sheets of two hundred, which in turn will be divided into post office panes of fifty.

The new stamp will be almost the size of the Special Delivery, with the long dimension vertical. It will show the same beacon as found on our present two-color 5-cent air mail stamp, and immediately under the engraving we will find the name—"Mt. Sherman Beacon."

The former bi-colored stamp has been costing entirely too much and with the flat plate variety, it was difficult to obtain the proper production necessary. The new rotary stamps will save considerable, and will enable the Department to take care of the constantly increasing demand for air mail stamps.

The new 5-cent blue will be available by the time these notes appear, as the proof has been approved by the Postmaster General, and they are fast proceeding with the completion of the plates. No date will be announced for first-day issue, as the stamps will be put into the regular stock just as soon as they are available.

NEWFOUNDLAND AIR MAIL

ST. JOHN'S, Nov. 18.

It is reported that Newfoundland is to be provided with a set of air mail stamps, the Government having arranged for an air mail service during the winter. It is interesting to note that an air mail issue was planned some years ago, and essays made, but the stamps were never ordered. It is possible that the designs of the coming issue will be similar to the 1919 essays.

DOINGS AT THE B. P. S.

At the meeting of the Boston Philatelic Society held Nov. 19, the feature entertainment was an exhibit and talk on the stamps of Sarawak by Arthur Grellier, former secretary of the Junior Philatelic Society of London. Mr. Grellier is a recognized authority on this subject.

Four propositions for membership: W. F. Pollitz, Arthur E. Brandt, Harold P. Williams and Grinnekl Jones, Jr., were acted upon favorably.

A visit with the Suburban Stamp and Curio Club was slated for the evening of Nov. 21. It will be one of a proposed series of similar invitations for the purpose of promoting good fellowship.

Sec. Stiles announces that the Boston Air Mail Society has changed its meetings to the second and fourth Wednesdays of each month in order not to conflict with the meetings of the B. P. S.

The Secretary also reminds the membership that the annual convention of the American Philatelic Society will be held in Boston during the first week in August, 1930.

KING GEORGE'S MALTESE

Following what has now come to be an established custom, His Majesty the King provided the display at the first meeting of the season of the Royal Philatelic Society, held on October 17, at the Society's headquarters, 41 Devonshire Place, London, W.1.

His Majesty chose the early issues of Malta on this occasion, and the stamps were shown on the King's behalf by Mr. E. D. Bacon, who also read a paper on "The Halfpenny Value with the Head of Queen Victoria." A large number of Fellows, members and visitors were present.—Philatelic Magazine.

Cancellations On United States Department Stamps

By CHARLES J. PHILLIPS.

For the past seven years I have been ollecting all the varieties I could find the cancellations of United States De- irtment stamps. This collection was rmed for a certain purpose as an in- stment, but as the purpose for which made it no longer exists, I have de- ded to break up the collection of six- en large volumes, which form this llection, they will be grouped as llows:—

(1) Die proofs, in singles, and Plate proofs in singles, blocks and full sheets. (2) Unused stamps in blocks and sheets. (3) Unused stamps in singles and pairs specialized for shades. (4) Unused stamps showing shifts, re-entries, plate or die varieties. (5) Cancellations.

The last group, Cancellations, seems to me never to have been written up and I do not know of any good reference list which would be of use to collectors in arranging a specialized collection of used Department or Official stamps. For this reason I have decided to print a list of the varieties I actually possess, as I think that such a list may be of use to collectors who care to specialize this very interesting branch of Classic U. S. stamps.

I call these "Classics" as issues of 1873 and 1879 are certainly in the "classic" period of over half a century of age and stability. A good catalogue of illustrations is very desirable, but hundreds would be wanted, the expense would be great, and I think that most of the varieties can be identified by a careful description.

Bear in mind this is only a list of what I have secured in 7 years, it can be added to "ad infinitum" by those who have time and patience for research. Many cancellations are exceedingly rare. I have paid six and ten times catalogue price on many occasions, and been mighty glad to get many fine items even at these rates. In the following list I describe the cancellation and then follows the denominations which I have secured, all in black where not otherwise noted.

HE P. O. Department has been asked to issue a special stamp in commemo- ion of Gen. Henry Knox, for whom a table monument will be dedicated at omaston, Me., in the very near future. e are indebted to Dr. E. W. Gould of ckland, Me., for a newspaper clipping ling attention to the campaign that has n set in motion to remind the people the services rendered by Gen. Knox in Revolutionary War. He was the st Sec. of War and Navy. The project s been endorsed by several of the aine Stamp Clubs.

T will be remembered that some weeks ago a number of dealers and collectors re indicted for the re-use of can- ed stamps. We learn with great satis- ction that the case against Frank Mar- is was nol prossed at the request of the strict attorney, who gave Mr. Marquis clean bill in connection with the in- stigation. This was gratifying not ly to Mr. Marquis, but to his many ends who felt that he had been un- jstly implicated in the affair.

FEW weeks ago I received from a friend in Chicago a Transvaal 1d (lint) Scott's No. 165. It has quite a tory. Some 25 years ago my friend t a British soldier who had just re- ned from the Boer War. Among his riosities was a set of six stamps. It pears that his detachment had captured d taken possession of Oom Paul's Gov- ment printing plant, and found on the ing table what was apparently the last et that had left the Govt. press. It s carefully distributed among the men d the soldier received six of the mps. He gave one to my friend who turn has passed it on to me. While stamp has no great catalog value, it curred to me that its history might in- est philatelists.—P. C. MAROSKE.

R. A. C. LEDUC assumes incorrectly, on page 686 of the Nov. 11 issue the WEEKLY, that the central feature the 1890 series of stamps issued by Imperial British East Africa Co. is a nted lamp, or an arc light. Instead it presents the device of the Imperial itish East Africa Co., i.e., the Sun sur- unted by the Imperial Crown, to- her with the motto, on a ribbon at foot, "Light and Liberty."—HARRY HUBER.

Editorial

AT Washington recently, there was held an important conference of business men and mail-users and the representatives of the post office department, at which subjects of interest were discussed. In the report of the proceedings there are several questions that have a philatelic bearing, and although we understood that it was probable that something was to be said about the ignorance of the occasional postmaster or clerk in refusing to accept mailings with special stamps, such as the surcharged Hawaiians and Molly Pitcher, we find no remarks under this heading. A number of batches of mail were delayed in the past by the postal people on the ground that these stamps were precanceled or irregular. Mr. Homer J. Buckley, of Chicago, is reported as favoring the establishing of a school of information among the seats of learning to instruct the public as to the best methods of addressing letters and wrapping packages. It would be advisable for the post office department to insist that its employees inform themselves on the validity of stamps so that embarrassment may be saved them, and more to the point, the users of the stamps that have been certified to by the department as available for postage.

THE following excerpt is taken from the report of the transactions of the meeting at Washington. A representative of the mail-order house of Montgomery, Ward and Company is quoted as follows in his contention that the government should redeem stamps sent in payment for goods: "We do not want these stamps and yet we have to get rid of them at a discount. We receive between $500 and $2,000 worth of stamps every day from our customers, at each of our central plants. We have been selling them to stamp brokers, but have discontinued this practice in view of the fact that we have been told that such a system encourages the theft of stamps from post offices throughout the country."

THE following observation comes from Dr. J. S. O'Donnell: "Apropos of recent remarks on stamp gum, investigators in the Bureau of Chemistry and Soils at Washington have produced a dextrin of improved vintage that is being tested on the score of appropriateness for postage stamps. It is the starch obtained from sweet potatoes, and if the dextrin can be manufactured as cheaply as that from tapioca, which is much used at present, stamps will be to the taste of all."

UNDER the head, "Severn Scores 85," in the "What Do You Know?" quiz, the Chicago American of November 13, 1929, published the WEEKLY editor's picture and said that he was a "well-known philatelist (see No. 15)." It happened that No. 15 in the list was "A Philatelist is a Collector of What?" Here is where we shone; as for the other questions, that's another story as the bricklayer said. The wind was tempered in our direction, but it is not our business to question why.

PURSUING the subject of gum on U. S. stamps, attention is called to the experiments now being made at Washington, under the direction of a number of bureaus, including the Bureau of Engraving and Printing. The information is given that tests reveal that if the stamps are allowed to dry thoroughly after leaving the press, before the gum is applied, the adhesive substance is not so easily dissolved by moisture. The complaints against the non-adherence of tamps by the public have lead the authorities to make a conditional promise to relieve the situation.

THE International Envelope Corporation's contract to furnish the special request return card stamped envelopes will remain in force for four years from January 1, 1929, and no change will be made in it as a consequence of the wish of objectors that it be abrogated. The custom of the department in supplying these envelopes to users has long been a thorn in the side of some of the printers, who allege that the government is unfair in its competition in this respect, but Postmaster General Brown affirms decisions that have been made heretofore that the course of the government is not inimical in view of the practical advantages that are offered by the use of these envelopes.

THE oldest British stamp paper, the Philatelic Journal of Great Britain, presents the portrait and the biography of Dr. Carroll Chase, whose recent volume on the 3c of 1851-57, U. S., has received the wide acclaim that it deserves. We all know that Dr. Chase is the man who made the 3c of 1851 the lion of the hour and how he brought it in the glare of the spot-light is told by Mr. Sefi, as follows: "Dr. Chase, like most boys, started collecting when he was seven or eight years old, and maintained his interest in a somewhat intermittent fashion until 1907. Late in that year, being confined to the house with a minor ailment, he came across a hundred or so specimens of the United States 3 cents 1851 stamps, which he had put aside some years before. On looking at them, he noticed certain minor varieties that puzzled him, so he decided to seek further information." His quest for knowledge was not fruitful and no one seemed to know much about the differences in the stamps, and so he began to amass a great quantity of them with the intention of doing his own work of research, which culminated in his plating of the stamp. In view of the popularity of the stamp today, it is hard to realize that a bit more than twenty years ago, it was regarded as having no special attractions, and was ignored rather than courted; and it is not a wild exaggeration to say that Dr. Chase almost alone turned the tide that now runs so strongly in favor of the 3c of 1851.

THE information has come that on Wednesday, September 5, 1929, when the first air mail was flown between Hong Kong to Great Britain, the total number of letters carried was 374, and of these, 346 were destined to the United Kingdom. The postal charge is at the rate of 20 cents a ½ oz., in addition to the regular postage. The suggestion was made that Hong Kong issue an air mail stamp, but the postmaster said that in all probability it would take a year for a design to be drawn and approved and then prepared for printing. The aerial mail is to be despatched once a fortnight from Hong Kong during the discontinuance of the Siberian service, which is due to the unsettlement there.

A READER says that she has written to several foreign countries for prices on current stamps, but has received no answers. If the countries addressed have no philatelic agencies, there is no assurance that there is any source of supply of the certain stamps, within the respective countries. Not to draw too fine a line on the question, there is no obligation on the postmaster's part to fill outside orders. A requirement must not be overlooked: return postage must be sent if the letter is to have attention. In discussing philatelic agencies, the wisdom of writing for lists of the stamps o sale should be stressed. Even in patron izing our Philatelic Agency, it is advisa ble to have the latest list, which may b had on application. The Agency does no maintain a mailing-list as such is gen erally regarded, but sends a list on cal However, one of our readers says tha he would be glad to pay to receive th lists regularly, and we have no doub that there are others who would prepa postage in a lump sum, if necessary, t make certain that the lists would com without break. As for the foreign agen cies, our readers report that while thei experiences have been satisfactory i most instances, misunderstandings hav arisen in a few cases that robbed th transactions of any pleasure.

By HARRY E. HUBER.

On page 686 of the WEEKLY of Nov 11, Mr. A. C. LeDuc errs with Stanley Gibbons, in their catalogue, in translating the inscription "La Espanola guardando los restos de Colon" on the 10c orange o the Columbus Memorial series issued b the Dominican Republic on Feb. 27, 1899 as "Spain guarding the remains of Co lumbus."

When Columbus reached Cape Maisi a the eastern end of Cuba, he sighted a mountainous country to the southeast and on the following day, December 6 1492, he reached the island which th natives called Haiti, or Quisqueya, i.e. wooded or mountainous country. Colum bus renamed the island, La Espanola (i.e. Little Spain), which soon was Latinise into Hispaniola. Later, after the aban donment of the first settlement at Isabel la, on the northern coast, midway betwee Monte Cristi and Puerto Plata, in favo of a site at the mouth of the Ozam River, in the south, where a new tow was founded August 4, 1496, and calle Santo Domingo, the whole island bega to be referred to as Santo Domingo. Aylswick in 1697, the name of Saint Domingue was retained by them.

At Gonaives, in the Place D'Armes, at dawn on Jan. 1, 1804, Dessalines, attended by his officers, swore to "abjure forever allegiance to France, to die rather than live under her domination, and to fight to the last for the preservation of their independence." The name St. Domingue was abolished, and the aboriginal name of Haiti re-assumed.

Therefore, the inscription on the 10c stamp above referred to, correctly translated, is not Spain, but rather Little Spain, or the present Dominican Republic, guarding the remains of Columbus, which lie in the mausoleum erected in 1899, just inside the plaza entrance to the Cathedral at Santo Domingo City. The construction of this Cathedral ordered by Ferdinand and Isabella in 1506, was begun in 1514, and completed in 1540.

Air Mail News

DONALD E. DICKASON, Editor, Wooster, Ohio

(Coöperators will find their names listed each week. If a reply be necessary, enclose a self-addressed stamped envelope.)

Official Flights

Word comes from Cuba that the government is planning to establish a national air mail service, and is considering the bids of several companies. We can count on full details on this in plenty of time.L. E. Fletcher tells me that the P. O. Dept. is considering the extension of air mail service into central Maine. Advance information has it that St. Petersburg, Fla., is to get service on CAM 25 about Dec. 1st. No official announcement at the time I write this, but you might do well to consult the Postal Bulletin for the last several days at your local post office. C. of C. will doubtless hold covers for you.

Special Alaskan flight mentioned several weeks ago evidently came off as planned, for I have recently received a number of covers which I sent out on the chance that they would reach Fairbanks in time. Outgoing mail is postmarked there Oct. 14, and is backstamped at McGrath and Takotna the 17th, Fort Yukon the 20th, and Flat the 21st. Outbound mail was picked up from these points on the same dates by the plane, and all my covers sent in were returned at once by the same plane bringing them, thus making round trippers out of them. Covers for the outbound trip only sent in by the plane under cover to the various postmasters received careful and prompt handling, and were taken care of exactly as requested. 2c postage carried these, as this was a special trip authorized to relieve the mail congestion at Fairbanks.

Two more Graf Zeppelin items in from Europe. One is postmarked on the ship Oct. 7, and at Breslau the 17th. The other bears the ship cancellation of the 16th, and that of Bucharest the same date in a red "par avion" cachet.First flight Zagreb, Jugo Slavia-Vienna took place Oct. 9, and bears a special triangular cachet in blue.

Covers to Buenos Aires came back in a hurry. They bear the Buenos Aires backstamp of Oct. 14, and evidently took the first boat north, as they were here Nov. 6th. Same cachet from Miami and Cristobal, as previously described, showing the monument of "The Christ of the Andes".Reports that a contract has been let for the extension of FAM service from Paramaribo, Dutch Guiana to Buenos Aires via the east coast of South America are a bit previous, but they will be before very long—and then there'll be another lot of nice FAM's to try to get covered on.

Mexico has reduced its air mail rate from 35c to 20c Mexican, or approximately 10c U. S.Robert Rübsamen tells me that the latest on the Mexican new stamp issue for air mail week in December is that it will consist of 100,000 20c, and 5,000 40c. Another good one for the speculators there.Postal Congress set, printed in black, has been overprinted "Habilitado Servicio Oficial Aereo"—600 short sets, and 78 only of the 1 Peso. Ow-w-w!_Postal Bulletin_ of Nov. 6 gives full details of the Canadian Prairie service, due Dec. 1, and mentioned here two weeks ago.

The Air Mail Beacon gives the following figures for covers from Port of Spain, Trinidad via FAM 5 and 6 extension in September. To Castries—266; St. Johns—233; St. Thomas—166; San Juan and Sto. Domingo—440; Port au Prince—61; Havana—169; Miami—3,237. Also Georgetown to Port au Prince—4 covers—which looks like a good one on which to stop.

Dedications, Unofficials

Arlington Heights, Ill., dedicated Oct. 27—no cachet—but P. M. says he mailed 39 air mail letters that day, all of which he signed, and inscribed "Dedication of Arlington Heights Airport."The postponed ring-laying ceremony of the new Zepp took place at Akron, Nov. 7, and a very effective cachet was applied to air mail by the C. of C.—in blue.2 more National Air Tour cachets to list—Portland, Me.—4 lines—magenta; and Augusta, Ga.—red and blue sticker on back.Bates Field, Mobile, Ala., was dedicated Nov. 8 and 9—blue cachet both days.Auburn, Me., dedication Nov. 8—no cachet.Fresno, Cal.—Nov. 2-3—lines in purple.

Franklin, Pa., dedicated Nov. 2—inscribed cachet, and very few mailed. Menafee Airport, though serving New Orleans, is located at the small town of Chalmette, La. I have been shown a cover bearing the dedication cachet, mailed at Chalmette, Nov. 1, whereas the great bulk of covers were mailed at New Orleans the 2nd.

On the way—Marlin, Tex., next spring, but covers may go to C. of C. any time. West Point, Miss., very soon—to C. of C.Lake Wales, Fla., says soon after Jan. 1st—cachet by C. of C.CAM 30, 1st anniversary cachet from Chicago, Dec. 1st—covers may go to Geo. A. Zimmerman, 1747 Wallen Ave.—stuffed to at least ½ oz. George says he'll appreciate commemorative stamps on the packages, and that goes for all such events.

Sacramento, Calif., C. of C. says that at present they plan no special markings for their dedication next spring, but they

Color Trials

This is a term applied by stamp collectors to impressions of a stamp design printed in a different color or on colored paper distinct from that finally adopted for actual use. When the design has been chosen and the die engraved and the plate is ready for use it often happens that impressions from the die, or plate, or both, are taken in all sorts of colors to help the authorities responsible to choose the one most suitable. These are of considerable philatelic interest as color proofs or trials having distinct bearing on the history of a stamp.

Impressions of some of the more recent British stamps are sometimes met with on colored paper, which are erroneously termed color trials. These are merely impressions taken by the printers to judge whether the plates are laid on the bed of the printing machines accurately or not, and colored paper is used owing to the fact that the contractors are not allowed to have any white paper on the premises other than the watermarked paper supplied by the Inland Revenue authorities, each sheet of which has to be strictly accounted for. These stamps are, therefore, not color trials but simply printers' waste and their philatelic interest is but small.

Duc. di Parma, Piac. Ecc.

The inscription engraved at the top of the stamps of the 1857 issue of Parma, being an abbreviated form of "Ducati di Parma, Piacenza, eccetera." It means "Duchy of Parma, Piacenza, etc.," and refers to the two main provinces, which with certain annexed states, formed the old Italian Duchy of Parma.

Mythical Counani

In 1893 an enterprising clique manufactured some labels purporting to be postage stamps for the "Republic of Counani", and at the same time rumours were circulated regarding other series alleged to have been issued between 1887 and that date. Apparently stamp collectors were somewhat skeptical regarding the bona-fides of these labels, for very few seem to have been sold. However, nothing daunted, the creators of this non-existent republic tried to float another issue of stamps in 1900. This also was unsuccessful, and in 1904 an even more impudent attempt to foist Counani "stamps" on philatelists was made. Various dealers in London and elsewhere received an imposing looking circular dated "Counani, Oct. 1st, 1904," which stated that the "postal service of this State has been reorganised, and from the 1st Jan., 1905, there will be a regular service between Counani and Europe, via French Guiana." A set of ten different labels was mooted, and dealers were invited to send their orders which were to be generously executed at 10% below face value. No one was so foolish as to speculate in the rubbish and since then nothing more has been heard of the mythical State of Counani. The Republic is said to be situated in South America, between Brazil and French Guiana, but as these territories join at the point indicated there does not appear to be much room for this so-called land of "liberté et justice!"

Junior Dictionary

Mecklenburg-Schwerin. — A grand-duchy of the German Empire dating from 1701. Postage stamps were issued on July 1, 1856, and on January 1, 1868, these were suppressed, as the grand-duchy had joined the North German Confederation.

Mecklenburg-Strelitz. — Another German grand-duchy consisting of two detached parts which are divided by Mecklenburg-Schwerin. Postage stamps were issued in 1864, but the grand-duchy ceased to have its distinctive series of stamps four years later when it joined the North German Confederation.

Medellin.—The chief town in the department of Antioquia, Colombia. In 1888 it issued a number of 2½c and 5c provisional stamps, and in 1903-4 produced a number of stamps for local use. In 1903, too, a number of stamps for use throughout Colombia were printed in Medellin.

Medicine Stamps.—Stamps of special design supplied to individual manufacturers of patent medicines for the payment of the stipulated taxes.

Death Mask Stamps

The name by which the para values of the 1904 stamps of Serbia are popularly known. The name arose owing to the fact that if the stamps are placed upside down a third face can be distinctly traced out of the features of the two portraits shown. It is, of course, nothing but a freak of engraving though at the time the stamps were issued a legend was circulated to the effect that this face is a reproduction of the "death-mask" of the murdered King Alexander and that it was introduced into the design on purpose. The cut is inserted wrong side up to show the mask. It can be plainly seen by covering with the end of the finger all of the head except the nose.

A NUT FROM NUTHOUSEVILLE

He called me the original nut,
Who came from Nuthouseville,
For I collected stamps and so
My album tried to fill.

But if I was the nuttiest nut
Who came from Nuthouseville,
I've shown him now that he's a nut,
For he collects as well.

He comes to me and says, "Look here,
You nut from Nuthouseville,
I've found a stamp that is quite fine,
And rare, just see the grill."

"Oh! That's a common stamp", I said to him,
"You'll learn, I'm sure you will,
And soon there'll be another nut
Who hails from Nuthouseville."

By C. A. Howes, Editor.

The Junior Philatelic Society of London is fortunate in three things—its "perennial president", the genial Fred. J. Melville, who was practically its founder; the editor of its official journal, who is the same erudite and masterful philatelist; and the official journal itself, the well-known Stamp Lover, now in its twenty-second year of publication. The October number has reached our desk, and as usual we look it over with interest. The leading article tells the story of the two revolutions in Russia, which were commemorated by stamp issues in 1925. The first is a centennial issue for the uprising of 1825, when the Czar Alexander I died, and his brother and heir, Constantine, refused the throne. For three weeks the empire was without a ruler until the youngest brother, Nicholas, stepped into the breach and confronted the discontented and rebellious soldiers and sailors, and by this act of heroism won their confidence and support. The leaders were summarily punished and it thus seems as if the Soviet government were really commemorating an imperial triumph! The second set recalls the uprising in Moscow in December, 1905, in further effort for parliamentary reforms, some of which were granted.

A brief account of the inception, objects and undertakings of the Junior Philatelic Society gives an interesting and illuminating story of what this large and active society has accomplished in its philatelic endeavor. Philatelic crusades, exhibitions, publications, and the successful operation of regular society activities show what can be done by willing and interested workers. Some extracts from letters written by a German visitor to England in 1782, give an interesting insight into manners and conditions in the country in those days. In addition to Society news there is the usual extensive and well illustrated Chronicle of new issues—not the least valuable feature of this excellent journal.

The Stamp Lover is free to members at annual dues of 5 shillings, with entrance fee of like amount if over 21 years old; but the subscription to nonmembers is 10 shillings. It would pay to join the large foreign membership. The Hon. Secretary is D. Aiken, 44 Fleet St., London. E. C. 4.

Filatelia from Turin, Italy, for September has been received in smaller format than its previous quarto size. It is now labelled as a "Revue of Philatelic Reviews," and is printed entirely in French. The most important periodicals are reviewed under their respective headings of "American Press," "Italian Press," "German Press," etc., twenty-one different countries being represented, and 93 periodicals reviewed in the number at hand. For one who desires to know what is being published of interest and value in the philatelic press of the world this is a most excellent review to keep him au courant with the best that philatelic authorship is presenting. The subscription is 10.35 lire (54 cents American), addressed to "Filatelia," Casella postale 487, Turin, Italy.

HERE'S ANOTHER

My recent advertisements offering individual and outstanding United States items of twentieth century have produced excellent results. Evidently, the collector is not aware that I can furnish the commoner varieties, as well as the rarities. Want lists of United States issues are desired from the rarities down to the commonest issues.

Another interesting twentieth century issue of outstanding importance is the 1-cent Surface Print, perforated 12½, Scott's No. 536. Upward of about ten years ago, the Department was then experimenting, like they are doing today, to improve their product and at the same time, cut down the cost of production. In the case of the stamp offered, they were using a new perforating machine, known as the "Rosback" machine, which suposedly perforated a number of sheets at one time in a satisfactory manner. The machine was only used for a few days, as the product which it turned out was most unsatisfactory, most of the stamps being badly centered and the greater part of the balance just about fair.

I was fortunate in being able to pick over a number of sheets at the time and select those with unusually nice centering. In this condition they are decidedly scarce and really worth more in proportion to catalogue than the general run.

The new catalogue lists the single copy at 60 cents, hence, the block will catalogue $3.00 and the entire sheet of one hundred, consisting of twenty-five blocks, will consequently list at $75.00.

For a short time, I offer at a special price the following in mint condition, nicely centered:

Singles	$ .50
Blocks of four	2.00
Sheets of 100	40.00

The sheets are, of course, complete with full margins, the two plate numbers, the two arrows and the corner block.

Are you looking for anything else in the way of United States issues, or have you anything of outstanding importance for sale?

Washington Letter

By PHILIP H. WARD, JR.,
Box 2175, Middle City Sta., Phila., Pa.

(U. S. oddities and varieties will be noted in this department. If reply be necessary, enclose self-addressed stamped envelope.)

Early Cover

Stamps used late in 1861 are known upon the cover cancelled or marked in such a way indicating that the issue of 1857 was not good for postage at that time.

One of the postmarks so used in Philadelphia is well known and has been described and illustrated by Dr. Chase in his recent publication. This two-line postmark "Old Stamps Not Recognized" usually falls partly on the stamp and partly on the cover. One-cent and three-cent stamps of 1857 have been seen, but a cover has just been located containing a 10c of 1857, Type V, the first noted with this postmark. It is addressed to a United States steamer located at Panama and bears in addition a Philadelphia postmark dated "August 30, 1861." The postal regulations of that date call for the stamps to be demonetized in Philadelphia as of November 1. As several covers have been found previous to this date with such a marking, it is quite possible that a second order changing the date was issued and that the order has not as yet been discovered by students looking into our early philatelic history.

Kansas Overprint

Mr. C. A. Coberly has submitted a block of the 2c current issue overprinted "KANS", in which one horizontal row shows the surcharge about a millimeter higher than the others. This is caused by the sheet buckling at the time the stamp was overprinted, hence, giving us the taller surcharge from the same size type. Similar varieties were recently described in the case of the "Molly Pitcher" issue.

2c Clark Oddity

Mr. Frederic R. McAlpin has submitted for inspection two minor plate varieties of the 2-cent George Rogers Clark stamp which are worthy of mention. These are found on the left pane of the black center, plate No. 19735—the varieties occurring upon the 22nd and 23rd stamps. They may be more easily located by stating that they are the 2nd and 3rd stamps in the row immediately above the horizontal guide line passing through the center of the sheet. On stamp No. 22, there are two parallel diagonal lines in black, running from the left foot of Colonel Hamilton, the British officer, who is surrendering to Clark. On the 23rd stamp, two horizontal parallel lines, somewhat closer together than those just described, are immediately under the drummer boy in the left corner of the design. These are very distinct and are rather curious.

New Gutter Variety

We have described on several occasions blocks of the current rotaries showing the entire gutter, either at the sides, top or bottom, with additional stamps beyond the gutter. Sometimes we find complete stamps on both sides of the gutter, and sometimes the knife cuts one row of stamps practically in half, showing complete stamps on one side and part of stamps beyond.

Mr. Edwin W. Atwood has just shown me a block of the 5c Perf. 11x10½, with the upper gutter and part of the stamp beyond.

Instructions To Postmasters

The Postal Bulletins have recently called attention of postmasters to the distinction between special delivery and special handling, and has asked that these details be given the widest publicity. They also call attention to the fact that on numerous occasions, registered mail has been ineffectually cancelled.

The Department calls attention under date of November 9 to the fact that they are distributing to first-class and second-class post offices small labels, size 3⅝ by 1¾ inches, printed in red, and reading in two lines "Special Delivery—Fee paid ..... cents." These labels are for use on all special delivery parcels on which clear endorsements by means of hand stamps cannot be obtained, such as soft, flimsy, fragile or irregularly shaped parcels. A clean legible postmark is to be affixed on the right-hand side of the label, and the amount of fee paid entered in the proper space.

There are two panes in the booklet, each pane consisting of 8 squares, 16 squares per booklet, which have been made into six 5pf stamps, from pane 1, four 8pf stamps from the top row of pane 2, three 15pf stamps, from the bottom row of pane 2. Pane 2 has been so arranged that three vertical se-tenant pairs (8+15pf) can be obtained from it.

In order to avoid any abuse of the three spaces that had to remain blank the words: "Verwende die Wohlfahrts-Postkarte"—"Use the charity postal card," have been imprinted on the two blank spaces to the left of pane 1, while the one blank space in the lower left hand corner of pane 2 shows a cross of St. Andrew.

The entire excess which the card and the adhesives are sold at is devoted to the betterment of the lot of the young folks. It is a "Pro Juventute" set, similar to what our Swiss neighbors have been getting out for a number of years.

SIGMUND I. ROTHSCHILD

A man had an idea that stamp collect- was sleeping on its rights and he de- led to attempt to awaken it. After a ries of shakings, he succeeded in arous- the subject from its deep slumber, so at it began to look around with dawn- intelligence in its eyes, which became ighter as they contemplated the vista folded before them.

Coöperation is the keynote of the song at is heard in every business circle, and most any movement is dependent for its omentum on "organization," be it club, rporation or coterie, and it is unusual find an individual who is so dauntless to work alone and accomplish an end at is of wide benefit. There is one o has pressed forward despite obsta- es of indifference, misunderstanding d even opposition. He is Sigmund I. othschild of New York City. He is attached and unaffiliated; he is a one an band. So much has been heard of r. Rothschild and his work that we ve wanted to get his story first-hand, d now we have it.

Mr. Rothschild was a collector from rly boyhood, and in twenty years he d a collection that had cost him many llars, and when he sold his stamps, as was fated that he had to do, he had no ason to believe that he had misplaced confidence in stamps. A sudden ange in conditions made a difference his outlook,—what to do? About two d a half years ago, he conceived the ea that he could make stamps serve in business form by telling of their ad- ntages in a big way. He would not a dealer, but he would try a new field d fit himself as a paid lecturer on ilately. With the belief that there was demand for knowledge on a subject at had not been exploited according to merits, he was convinced that his plan uld be given a practical application. e submitted his proposal to the depart- nt store of Edward Bamberger & ., Newark, New Jersey, and his ac- aintance with the proprietor probably d much to influence a decision favorable Mr. Rothschild. Briefly, the course of tion was based on the organization of stamp club for boys and girls as the sult of his talks on stamps. A proper tting was to be made by the department ore through its advertising in the local wspapers, and a section set aside in a ominent place in the store. It happened at Bamberger knew something of amps, and, in fact, stocked a line of amp albums, if nothing more; and the lection was well-advised.

With this start, Mr. Rothschild has ogressed until he has covered the eater part of the country as a philatelic cturer, having his headquarters in the big department stores of the different cities. He has spoken before service, literary and charitable organizations, and as well before a Deaf and Dumb society at Trenton, New Jersey, where his remarks were "translated" to the persons in attendance. His audiences have ranged in number from 10 at Y. M. C. A. clubs, for instance, to from 3,000 to 4,000 at halls. That collectors are made through his efforts, there is no doubt, and Mr. Rothschild estimates that he has made from 50 to 150 collectors a week, at times. He remarks that when he appears at department stores that carry albums in stock, the sales jump to ten times as many as in ordinary times.

Mr. Rothschild gives his lectures, which are illustrated by his large album that shows all subjects connected with stamps, ranging from the A B C's to Zoölogy; and he emphasizes the educational value of stamps, as may be expected. While in New York, he talks each Saturday over the radio, WOR, at 10.45 A. M., and his talks have proved very popular. His idea is to organize a national junior stamp society, composed of local chapters. Thus the clubs already formed would be adjuncts of the parent body.

We understand that Mr. Rothschild has been engaged by a leading lecture bureau to give a series of philatelic talks; and literally he will be heard from in greater measure than ever before as time goes on. In our opinion he deserves the support and coöperation of all individuals and organizations that are concerned in the proper exploitation of stamp collecting.

KING GEORGE'S MALTAS

By Douglas Armstrong.

As Honorary Patron and some-time President of the Royal Philatelic Society, London, it is the King's gracious custom to send a selection of stamps from the royal albums for exhibition before the Fellows and Members at the first meeting of each annual session. This year choice fell upon the postage stamps of Malta which were to be the subject of a display at the Society's Rooms in Devonshire Place on October 17.

The exhibit was made on behalf of His Majesty by the curator of the Royal stamp collections, Mr. E. D. Bacon, C.V.O., who was to read a paper on the "Halfpenny Maltese postage stamp with the head of Queen Victoria," the first to be issued in that Colony, and a notable one in philatelic circles.

Few British Colonial postage stamps can boast so long and interesting a life, for the same type was retained for the halfpenny stamps of the Colony down to the time of the advent of the Edwardian series in 1903, which actually retained the principal features of the first Maltese stamp.

Designed, so far as is known, by the eminent artist, M. Jean F. Joubert de la Ferte, chief engraver at the De La Rue atelier in 1859, it shows a diademed profile of Queen Victoria within an octagonal frame partly surrounded by sprays of laurel. This is displayed against a background of vertical watered lines, with the name "Malta" upon a white tablet inset at the top and the value in two lines of white letters upon a solid panel across the foot of the stamp. The stamp was originally issued on December 1, 1860.

The successive printings of what remained for twenty-two years the only distinctive Maltese stamp make a most fascinating study and have in themselves provided material for intensive philatelic specialisation. The initial consignment received at the G. P. O., Valetta, in November, 1859, comprised 100 sheets of 2$o stamps each printed in buff upon paper having a bluish tint and devoid of watermark.

Subsequently printings from 1861 to 1863 were also unwatermarked, but the paper was white and highly surfaced, whilst the shades range from stone to rosy-buff.

From 1863 to 1868 the Malta ½d stamp was printed in a variety of shades upon paper watermarked Crown over C.C., but the perforation gauging 14 remained unaltered.

Up to this time the perforating of the sheets of printed stamps had been carried out at Somerset House, but in 1868 Messrs. De La Rue and Co. brought into use a perforator of their own with a gauge of 12½. This was followed by another machine with the original 14 gauge which figures on the printings between 1870 and 1878. In the latter year a single consignment was sent out with a compound perforation of 14x12½, the product of the two machines.

WHEN ordering stamps write "A per advt. in MEKEEL'S

The year 1882 saw the old Crown C.C. watermark for British Colonial stamps superseded by Crown over C.A. (representing the Crown Agents for the Colony, through whom the various Colonial governments ordered their stamp supplies from London).

The Maltese ½d stamp first appeared with the new type of watermark on October 27 of that year, continuing in a variety of shades of orange and buff down to the early part of 1885. Then, on the taking over of the control of the Malta post office by the Colonial Government, it was incorporated in a general stamp issue for the Colony and its colour changed to green.

His Majesty's interest in the postage stamps of Malta dates back to the time of his official visit to the island in the course of his Empire tour (as Duke of Cornwall and York), March, 1901. On that occasion the King was the recipient of a collection of the Maltese stamps from the hands of the Governor, Sir Francis Grenfell, as well as the private collection presented by Baron Testaferrata Abela.—Bazaar.

ON THE SIDE—

WE read in the Illinois State Register Springfield, Ill., that Father Phillip of Riverton, Illinois, says that he has started 250 boys and girls in stamp collecting. Father Phillip has taught school for twenty-seven years, and he says that students who are best in geography and history are collectors of stamps.

THE first number of the Philatelic Gazette, "published on the 1st and 15th of the month by Gazette Co.," has appeared with the date-line of Nov. 1, 1929. The editor and manager is G. A. Martin, Chicago. There are eight large pages with illustrations, and the paper has a wide range of contents. Special attention is given to society news, and evidently a sincere effort is being made to further philately in its columns. We welcome the newcomer.

MR. R. C. DAVIDSON, Regional Vice President of the Society of Philatelic Americans, Chicago, is desirous of organizing a branch there, and invites the coöperation of members of the parent body in his city.

THE Canadian air mail service now stretches over 3,000 miles, requiring almost 300 trips a month, with a load monthly of 30 tons. Even in the sparsely settled spaces in the Northwest Territories, the service carries on, "summer and winter, in good weather or in bad."

WE wish to thank Mr. Gordon H. Crouch, Toronto, Canada, and others who sent in circulars recently issued by the Post Office Department, Canada, announcing air mail development in that country.

NEWSPAPERS have come from different sections of the country with bits of stamp advertising in department store publicity. The new catalogue, stamp albums, etc., are offered in effective words.

MR. PHILIP CHAPIN, Flushing, New York, sends a variety of the one cent Omaha issue, 1898, showing a slight break in the inner circle, surrounding the "1" in the lower right hand corner. Unless duplicates are shown with the same minor variation, the conclusion is that the difference is a mechanical vagary.

MR. P. J. DROSSOS, Athens, Greece, writes: "Official figures of the first flight to and from Patras, Greece, on the Turkey-Greece-Italy line: Aug. 20th Brindisi-Patras, 65; Aug. 20th Patras-Brindisi, 305; Aug. 20th Patras-Athens 125; Aug. 20th Patras-Constantinople 26; and Athens-Patras, Aug. 22nd, 105. These figures contain exact numbers usual and registered mail; the figures published at first did not include registered mail. The first flight LaCanea (Chania) Crete, via Suda Bay to London, by the Imperial Airways, Karaci to London, Aug. 15th, carried 173 letters, all registered, with special cachet."

A READER sends in a registered envelope that he received from C. H. Mekeel, St. Louis, in March, 1899, which bore the printed inscription vertically across the left end: "This envelope is Die A, the rejected type of the 1899 issue. on paper containing the old watermark of the 1896 issue. It is a double error and has been superseded by Die B, with correct watermark. Unused and unprinted copies of the error, 12c each. The error and the correct one, sent for 15c post free." These Die A envelopes on the different papers were much in the philatelic eye thirty years ago, when they brought higher prices in some varieties than they do now, as they were not "seasoned" then.

AN inquirer asks if Charles E. Jenney, one of the leading writers on philatelic subjects twenty years ago, is still alive. Mr. Jenney, who lived in California, at the time of his death was returning from the east, and when in Kansas, we believe he was injured in an accident. He died some time after this unfortunate occurrence at his home in Fresno.

By SEVARD.

Usually when we refer to common amps, we regard the two cent values as atural friends. And so they were, until ie 1½c compound perf. came along. We ave to admit it "among those present" ow. So far, it has run the orange-rown, light brown, brown and dark rown shades, the usual brown being the ommonest, the orange-brown least com-on. The stamp is generally regarded having no first day covers, since it as issued precanceled before making a rmal debut at Washington. Gum va-eties exist, all dependent upon the rib acing. I have four varieties so far. s for cancels, most cancels are precan-ls; waves, slogans, ovals, etc., being common. The marginal characteristics this stamp are uninteresting as the amp was issued in imperforate form. he stamp does not occur frequently in airs or blocks. It usually is used solo, stead of in combination. This is our amp of the month to watch.

The 2c envelope situation has been anging of late. The new watermarks 1929 have made no dent in our figures, e major part of those being used today ill have 1925 watermarks. The new nber issue is seldom seen. The usual zes that are common now are Sizes 13, 9 and 5. Size 7 is scarce and size 2 ry scarce. Die A still fulfills nearly e entire output in use, altho Die H id H2 are not scarce. They are not mmon. Of the 2c 1916 white paper die envelopes, size 13 is used more than l the other sizes combined. This is a rect contradiction to a recent govern-ent statement that size 5 was our com-onest size. Of the size 13's, windows e commonest. Of these, the 1925 top atermark is commonest. Of the size full face envelopes, the low back ife is the rule. High backs are scarce this writing. Of Size 8, the full face velope is the rule, altho windows are en at times. Of the size 8 full face, gh and low backs are divided. Size 9, course, are all high backs, with the 25 diagonal watermark the usual one und. If you do not collect envelopes, ease start by refusing to collect the es we have listed as usual or common. ou will find a treat in store for you.

Much attention has been paid to the rtical guide line seen on the horizon-l coil stamps. These are common, id merit little extra value on the 2c rizontal coil stamps of today. There e two varieties of these guide lines, ie a thin clear line, the other, a thick, ually jagged, smutched line. As one ows, the rotary press plates for the il stamps have 170 subjects, and the ide line will be found at every seven-enth stamp in a coil. This does not ean that in every coil, the seventeenth amp from the beginning will have the e. By mathematics, 500 is not evenly visible by 17. Thus one may find ide lines in various juxtaposition to e manilla pasting tabs at the start d finish of the rotary coil stamps. nd you may specialize in guide lines the 2c horizontal coil stamps. We peat for the tenth time, that off cen-r stamps may be seen with plate mbers, and try and find them. In ven years, we have found four. The in and thick guide lines are in no way mparable to the thin and thick guide es of the 3c surface print stamps. o collect guide lines on the coil amps, one prefers the off center amps which show the entire line, ther than a perforated line. One ninent collector who has won prizes many recent competitions knowingly id us he has this stamp with all the ste-up's. This stamp has no paste-p's. Flat bed coil stamps have guide es, arrows, plate numbers in paste-p's, ordinary paste-up's and in im-rforate form, marginal legends and antoms. But not the present 2c rizontal coils. The manilla paste os are collectible, and there are two rieties, the small coil and the large il. From the wording on these tabs, e learn they are 2c Postage Stamps Coiled Sidewise Perforated Between Sides.

It is queer to note that the 2c 1922 perforate 10 stamp is usually canceled by an Air Mail slogan. If one recalls the hectic years of cancels from 1923 to 1926, one remembers the general use of the Air Mail Saves Time cancel with the avoidance of the wave auxiliary mark, which brings to mind that this stamp still lacks a first day cover. Anybody who has one, surely has a treasure and we know hosts of collectors who want to buy it.

DID YOU EVER NOTICE THE FIGURES ON THE 1898 BEER STAMPS? THE POOR KIDS ARE LOSING THEIR SHIRTS.

From an artistic standpoint, we fail to find any commendable motif in the new Anti-Tuberculosis seal. Its only appeal is in the ring of the bell. That's a joke. The jester suggested it.

THE NEW 3d AUSTRALIA

By A. A. ROSENBLUM.

That Australian Commonwealth stamps have by no means lost their interest, as is often asserted, is well exemplified by the issue in Melbourne on September 28th of an entirely new variety of the 3d Georgian, which may easily be the forerunner of numerous other changes. In short, this issue consists of stamps printed from new plates made by a new process from a new die. In using the words "new process" I mean, of course, new to Australian technique, although I understand it is that employed for many years by Messrs. De La Rue & Co. in London. It consists in the introduction of up-to-date methods of electrotyping, and its results are already apparent in the considerably improved appearance of the new stamps.

Those who were fortunate enough to hear the address given some months ago by Mr. John Ash, Manager of the Note and Stamp Printing Branch, Melbourne, before a meeting of the Philatelic Society of Victoria, will remember that he pointed out that the main essential in the De La Rue process for electrotyping was accuracy. Every stage of the process-manufacture of the die, striking of the moulds, preparation of the plate and manufacture of the electro, was conducted with scientific precision, the result being the nearest approach to perfect uniformity in the product that it is possible to achieve.

It is well known that hitherto the preparation of plates for Australian stamps has been, to say the least, haphazard. There has been no attempt at absolute uniformity, and many second and third rate plates have been sent to press, with the result that Australian stamps are a byword for minor varieties of every description. One of the most amazing examples of this occurs in the 3d plate made by Mullett, and introduced in 1926. For the preparation of this plate certain moulds were struck from the die, in lead. These were roughly prepared, and although only a few were made they varied considerably among themselves, producing the two well-known type varieties—without or with a heavy line across the bridge of the nose. These moulds or types were then grouped together in a certain way, and from them stereos were made. These stereos must also have proved very unsatisfactory and variable as, in the first place, they were greatly cut about when fitted together to form the plate of 120 impressions, many faulty impressions being removed and substitutions made, while in the second place a large number of faulty but by no means hopeless impressions were patched up or retouched. Finally a plate, of a sort, was completed, but the work had proved laborious, and a second plate was required. This was then prepared by the extraordinary means of taking a stereo copy of the whole plate. Naturally this further damaged the original, so that more retouches were necessary, while the "copy" also showed much damage, resulting in further substitutions and more retouches. Hardly methods of precision or accuracy.

Now, however, the precise methods of De La Rue & Co.—the foremost electrotypers of stamps in the world—have been introduced. Each mould is accurately prepared to the thousandth part of an inch before striking. The impression is applied uniformly and accurately on each mould, and only perfect moulds are accepted for inclusion in the plate, which consists of the requisite number of single moulds accurately attached to a specially prepared base. It will thus be seen that the only variety which can appear in such a plate will be one appearing after the completion of the plate—and will even then only last until the next inspection of the plate—a frequent occurrence.

From this plate electros are prepared, and here again there is a big departure from previous Australian technique, which has made exclusive use of the soft metal copper for all printing electros. Now the most modern technique has introduced the use of the harder metals—chromium or steel—with the result that the life of an electro will now be measured in years where it was previously sometimes only days or weeks. The result will be uniformity and, with frequent inspections of the printing electros, a high standard of work will be maintained.

Almost certainly this improved technique which has been introduced with the 3d value will be extended to embrace all our stamps, not excepting those (1d, 1½d, 2d) at present printed from steel plates. Such plates are not really satisfactory, requiring as they do considerable attention when the smallest alteration is to be made. Almost certainly they will be replaced, as they wear, with chromium or steel electros.

It has long been known that a great fault inherent in the present Commonwealth Georgians consists in the unsatisfactory nature of the die, which is not cut deeply enough to give the best results. An attempt to correct this was made by Ash in preparing his new steel plate for the 2d stamp, but was not altogether successful owing to certain technical difficulties in that process.

Now, however, he is on his own ground in electrotyping, and with over twenty years' experience with De La Rue behind him has known exactly the alterations to be made. Consequently, we find that the die has been re-cut and the new issue is therefore, as already stated, from an entirely new die.

The main points of difference (which are very marked) of the two dies are tabulated below.

Old Die

1. Numerals thin and uneven.
2. Words of value thin and letters badly formed.
3. Shading around head uneven.
4. Details of crown (particularly orb and cross) blurred and indistinct.

New Die

1. Numerals thick and uniform.
2. Words of value thicker and letters uniform.
3. Shading around head even.
4. Details of crown sharp and clear. Cross on top of crown distinctly white.

In addition, in the new die the wattles have been re-drawn, the general shading has been improved, while there are numerous other minor points of difference.

It will thus be seen that we are dealing here with an entirely new issue, which I surmise is the forerunner of others. In addition the colour is much brighter. The paper and perforation are as before.

Printings are being made from two electros, arranged vertically. To date I have only seen sheets from the lower electro, which, as might be expected, is remarkably free from varieties. A few stamps show slight faults in the corners, but the only variety remotely worthy of chronicle occurs on stamp No. 10 of the right pane, and consists of a small break at the left of the left value tablet.

The electro shows the usual arrangement (two panes of 60, 6x10), and is surrounded by thin co-extensive marginal lines which, unlike most of our plates, continue across the space between the panes. The usual John Ash imprint occurs at the base.

The printer is to be congratulated upon the great improvement he has made in this issue.—Aust. Stamp Journal.

BERMUDA

In 1900 an Act was passed which authorised a charge of ¼d per 2 oz. for newspapers which until that time had been carried without payment in the colony, the Act came into force on 1st January, 1901, and as there was no time in which to prepare a special plate for this new denomination instructions were telegraphed to London to print a supply of the 1s stamps in grey and surcharge them ONE FARTHING, this was done in two lines in black ink with a thick bar cancelling the original value, the surcharge being applied to half sheet at a time. Owing to a delay the steamer carrying the new stamp did not reach the island until January 10th, the stamps being issued on the following day.

In 1902 the forerunners of a new series were issued, surface printed in London by Messrs. De La Rue & Co. in sheets of 120, the design of the stamp had a view of a dock with a sailing ship about to enter, in coloured capitals in a fancy tablet at the top of the stamp the name of the colony was indicated, while in uncoloured figures in another tablet at the bottom the value was indicated, while ornamentation completed the design. Printed on paper watermarked crown C. A. the 1d in black and carmine, and 3d magenta and sage green appeared in 1902 followed by the ½d black and green in the next year.

The Watermark was changed to that of Multiple Crown C. A. in 1908 when the ½d and 1d appeared with a 2½d stamp printed in brown and ultramarine, three additional values of the "Dock" type on this paper were issued 2d grey and orange in 1907, ¼d brown and violet in 1908, and 4d blue and chocolate in 1909.

Between 1908 and 1910 three of these stamps were issued in universal colours, the 1d in red in 1908, the ½d in green in 1909, and the 2½ in blue in 1910.

During the years 1910 and 1919 a series of nine line engraved stamps, the work of Messrs. De La Rue & Co., were put on sale in sheets of 60 on paper watermarked Multiple Crown C. A. The ship "Sea Venture" is in the centre in an oval frame, with the name of the colony in a curved tablet of solid colour in thick uncoloured capitals at the top, and the value in heavy coloured figures in a fancy tablet at the foot, a fancy frame completing the stamp, the following is a list of the denominations with their colours:—

2½d blue.
3d purple on yellow.
4d red on yellow.
1s black on green.

Until 1918 no stamp of a higher value than one shilling had been issued in Bermuda, in that year a series of six values ranging from 2s to £1 printed on Chalk surfaced paper were commenced, the 2s6d black and red on blue, 5s green and red on yellow, 10s green and red on green, and £1 purple and black on red being issued on 1st April, 1918, these were followed by a 2s stamp in purple and blue on blue, and a 4s stamp black and carmine in September, 1920. These were stamps of large size, surface printed by Messrs. De La Rue & Co. on Multiple Crown C. A. paper, in sheets of 60, in the Nyasaland type, having the Head of King George V in the centre on a shield shaped frame with a Crown above, the upper portion of the stamp has three tablets of solid colour, the name of the colony in the centre, and the value in figures just below at each side, the value is again expressed in uncoloured capitals at the bottom of the stamp, while to the left reading upwards the word POSTAGE is printed, with REVENUE reading downwards in a similar position to the right all in uncoloured capitals.

During the War the 1d red of the 1910 "Ship" type was overprinted at Hamilton with the words WAR TAX in Roman capitals in black, of this there are two types, the first issued May 4, 1918, having the overprint in larger type than that of the second type which was issued on February 5, 1920.

To commemorate the tercentenary of the establishment of Representative Government in the Colony two issues of stamps were made. The first which was surface printed in sheets of 60, is known as the Governor's design, these stamps large oblong in shape have twin medallions. the left hand being filled with the "Sea Venture", and the right with the Head of King George V, above these and in the centre there is a Crown with a curved tablet of solid colour above inscribed "Bermuda Commemorative Stamp" in uncoloured capitals, while at the bottom of the stamp the inscription "Tercentenary of Establishment of Representative Institutions" appeared in uncoloured capitals in two lines broken by a shield in the centre in which the value was indicated in uncoloured figures. Issued in sheets of 60 the 1d scarlet and 2½d blue were the first values to appear being issued on 11th November, 1920, on the occasion of the visit of the Prince of Wales. Excepting the 1d, 2½d and 6d which were printed on the Script C. A. paper, these stamps were printed on paper watermarked Multiple Crown C. A. The remainder of the series consisting of the values ¼d brown, ½d green, 2d grey, 3d lilac and purple on yellow, 4d red and black on yellow, 6d purple and violet, and 1s black and green were issued on January 10, 1921.

The second series which made their appearance on 12th May, 1921, were designed by Mr. J. H. Dale, a local artist, and recess printed by Messrs. De La Rue & Co. in sheets of 60. The design consisting of the head of King George V in a circular frame with the name of the colony above in a curved tablet in coloured capitals conventional ornamentation is at either side of the head, the year 1620 being indicated to the left, and 1920 to the right, while below the head the value appears twice in coloured figures, with the word Postage in the centre, the four corner angles contain: the top left a miniature of the "Sea Venture", the top right the Arms of Bermuda, Company, the bottom left the Sword of State of 1620, and the bottom right the gavel of the Speaker of the House of Assembly. Printed in the following colours these denominations were issued: ¼d brown, ½d green, 1d carmine, 2d slate, 2½d blue, 3d purple on yellow, 4d red on yellow, 6d purple, and 1s black on green; the ¼d, ½d and 1d were printed on the Multiple Crown C. A. paper.

The reason for the two centenary stamps is this, that on the House of Assembly deciding on a special issue of stamps for that event, designs were invited with the result that one by Mr. J. H. Dale was accepted by the Committee, in the meantime the Governor had accepted a design submitted by the Crown Agents for the Colonies, when Mr. Dale's design was submitted to the Governor, it was found that dies of the design which he had approved had been put in hand, this being the case a compromise was effected by both sets of stamps being issued.

On the commemorative stamps becoming obsolete further printings of the "Ship" type of 1910 were made, these are now printed on the new Script C. A. Paper, with certain alterations of colour the following is a list of the denominations on issue printed on the new paper:—

2d grey.
2½d sage green.
3d blue.

Late in 1926 the colour of the 2½ was changed to blue, and the 3d to purple on yellow.

Of the higher value stamps the 2s6 black and red on blue, and 10s green and red on emerald are printed on Chal Surfaced Paper with the new watermark —Filatelia.

Major T. Charlton Henry As Central Figure In a Unique Ceremony

Reported by PHILIP H. WARD, JR.

The Roll of Distinguished Philatelists is a modern institution, but with the signature of His Majesty the King placed personally at the head of the Roll on its inauguration it claims the profound respect of stamp collectors the world over.

It is, as Mr. E. R. Woodward said in his oration at the enrollment of Major T. Charlton Henry of Philadelphia, an honor and distinction beyond all cavil and question.

It was fitting, therefore, though unusual and novel, that the first American member who personally signed the Roll, should be called upon to do so within historic precincts, and with simple but dignified ceremony.

There are other American philatelists who have had the honor of enrollment, but as the distinguished document is kept in Britain none has heretofore been accessible to sign the Roll in person.

So on Monday, November 4th, the opening day of London's greatest week of civic ceremony which concluded with the installing of the new Lord Mayor on the 9th, Major Charlton Henry was received and welcomed in the ancient Livery Hall of the Worshipful Company of Painter Stainers in Little Trinity Lane, within the historic mile of the ancient City of London.

To receive him there assembled the Chairman and members of the Congress Permanent Executive Committee, a number of the Distinguished Philatelists whose company Major Henry was to join, and the Presidents and Officials of the chief philatelic organisations of London.

The Chairman, Captain H. R. Oldfield, took his seat at the high table along with the "distinguished philatelists" present. The side tables were occupied by members of the executive committee and guests. At the lower end of the hall, Major Charlton Henry sat enthroned before the Table of Signature.

The proceedings opened with an Address from Mr. E. R. Woodward, President of the City of London Philatelic Society. He reviewed the origin and history of the Roll, and spoke of the qualifications required of each and everyone admitted to the select company of its members. He must be a philatelist, and, moreover, distinguished by having done service to Philately. Major Charlton Henry had done good suit and service to Philately, and was in every way a worthy and welcome accession to the Roll. He then called upon Major Charlton Henry to sign the document.

The distinguished philatelists acting as sponsors (Anthony de Worms and L. E. Bradbury) then conducted the new member to the Table of Signature where the Chairman received his signature on the historic parchment, thereafter presenting him with the silver pen with which he had signed the Roll.

The Chairman having returned to the high table, the sponsors conducted Major Henry thither to take his seat among the distinguished philatelists on the dais.

A few minutes later the new member was invited to address the gathering. The dais emphasised his fine tall figure, as he stood against the oldest part of one of the most ancient structures of London. The wall behind him was the only part of the original hall which escaped destruction in the Great Fire of London in 1666.

Major Charlton Henry, who was visibly moved by the welcome he had received, said:

"I am completely and really and truly overwhelmed. In Philadelphia such a ceremony as this is unknown, unheard of in any such connection. I really am at a loss to express in any way the feeling I have for your kindness and consideration and goodness which you have shown to me.

I only trust that this honor which is

COLLECTIONS

We sometimes purchase collections of United States over and above our needs for stock, and are frequently in a position to offer these at very advantageous prices. Amongst other collections on hand at the present time, we can offer the following:

1—Collection in Marquette album consisting of 19th and 20th century postage only. The condition is really excellent and far above the average. The 19th century portion is practically complete, containing several fine copies of the 5c '47 and the 10c '47. The 1851 issue includes a fine copy of the 5c, the 1857 issue includes the 5c brick red and red brown as well as the 24c, 30c and 90c. There is a mint copy of the 3c August and a fine 5c buff with red cancellation, the 3c grilled all over, o. g. copy of the 5c 9x13 grill as well as nice copies of the 24c, 30c and 90c, grill. The 1869 set is complete, a nice Columbian set with duplicates of the $1.00, $2.00 and $3.00 values. There is a copy of the $5.00 1894 issue, the 1895 issue is complete, as are the other 19th century sets, including a nice complete set of the Omaha issue. The 20th century is nearly complete in mint condition, including pairs of the coils and imperforates. In addition there are a few choice pairs, shades, cancellations, etc., of the earlier issues.

This collection catalogues over $2,250.00 and was put together at a cost of approximately $1,400.00 by its late owner. We believe it is a real bargain at $875.00, particularly when the high average condition is taken into account. As the collection is mounted in a Marquette album, it of course contains a few more shades than are to be found in Scott's National Album.

2—A very nice 19th century collection to 1887 only. Almost all unused, and in good condition, with the exception of a few of the scarcer earlier stamps, which are included used. There are almost no vacant spaces with the exception of a few scarce grills and some of the rare types.

The catalogue value of this collection is $3,646.65. We think it is a bargain at $875.00.

3—A collection in a National album, of considerable catalogue value. It includes the 5c and 10c 1847, a good 5c 1851, 24c, 30c, 90c 1847, 5c 9x13 grill, 24c, 30c, and 90c 1869 unused, high value Columbians and in fact an almost complete assortment of the 19th century issues. There are not, however, many 20th century issues or revenues or cut squares.

The price of $350.00 will be found, we believe, very cheap.

4—A small collection on Marquette sheets, principally 19th century U. S., also Canada and Hawaiian Islands. The condition of many stamps is poor. The catalogue value must exceed $500.00 and the price is $50.00.

We have other collections on hand and would be glad to hear from parties interested if the above collections are not suitable to their needs.

H. A. ROBINETTE

certainly appreciated from the bottom of my heart, and the faith you have put upon me will never give any cause to wish that the same had not been placed in me.

All I can say as coming from the sister country across the sea is that more and more we will try to bring together, as we ought to do, collectors of all countries to strive for the best in Philately and tend to bring the world into one great fraternity of philatelists and friends."

At the close of the proceedings the company enjoyed the pleasant and traditional hospitality inseparable from gatherings in the ancient livery halls of the city companies.

Among those present were the following members of the Roll of Distinguished Philatelists:

L. E. Bradbury, G. A. Higlett, Fred. J. Melville, Charles Nissen, H. R. Oldfield, P. L. Pemberton, Anthony de Worms.

J. J. Darlow, Executive; W. Hadlow, Executive; A. H. Harris, Streatham Philatelic Society; W. Holmes, Croydon Philatelic Society; E. A. Leigh, Stamp Exchange Protection Society; Rev. C. S. Morton, Jamaica Philatelic Society; A. J. Séfi, Herts Philatelic Society; J. B. Seymour, International Philatelic Union; C. W. Siggers, Thanet Philatelic Society; J. S. Telfer, Executive Secretary; F. H. Vallancey, London Stamp Club; A. Whittard, London Stamp Club; and E. R. Woodward, City of London Philatelic Society.

ON THE SIDE—

MR. FREDERICK S. EATON, New Haven, Conn., editor of Stampless Covers, whose valuable work in his chosen field is appreciated by the discerning, has been sent to Michigan on Pine Blister Rust Control work, and will not return until early in 1930. We trust that Professor Eaton will scotch the enemy, and since he is engaged in so constructive a campaign, his correspondents will be patient, until he returns home with good reports, we hope, of his endeavors.

THE post office department says that while mechanical devices that use indicia instead of postage stamps for the payment of postage on envelopes are gaining favor with large patrons of the mails, an increase of 7% in the number of stamps to be used this holiday season as compared with the previous period, has been recorded.

THE latest number of the Philatelic West is dated July to October, 1929, and thereby Mr. Brodstone originates a "five in one" scheme that will prove a refuge to the harried editor. This arrangement probably was made advisable as a consequence of the frequent trips of Mr. Brodstone to Europe. The number to the paper to follow is to be an anniversary issue.

A YOUNG Brooklyn subscriber, George Wilmot, is our prize optimist, as he says that he intends to read the WEEKLY for "the next hundred years."

U.S. Plate Markings

R. A. BRYANT, Editor,
Box 64, West Somerville, Mass.

(Items about errors, shifts, defects and plate markings, also color varieties and new numbers, will be welcomed. If reply be necessary, enclose self-addressed stamped envelope.)

Our list of current plate numbers as reported by column readers is beginning to take shape, and as the entries increase and returns come in from additional sections of the country various groups near completion. Some early numbers have been reported, and, what is more important, some very late ones. To quote one authority, "our main object is to catch the new birds on their first flight." With the coöperation of our readers we will accomplish this purpose. The effect of chrome plating the stamp plates is especially noticeable from the long life of the plates, some of which keep showing up for months. We have recently received from H. M. Southgate an excellent appraisal of the rotary field which we publish below. Concerning these notes he writes in part: ". . . and as far as I know they include the plates in press today, but maybe someone else will ante with a new one, or pair." (Nov. 3.)

We have a few new ones (Nov. 18) reported by our readers, but due to the importance of Mr. Southgate's notes, which may be used as an accurate base from which to start our record, we will chronicle these later. The survey follows:

"For months the 1c numbers were below the 19300's; now 19602 is the highest seen. The 2c numbers are in many places back in 19200's, but the latest stock shows 19700's, although there are quite a number of the 19400's that I have not seen. 18803-804 seem to be the highest three centers. For 4c, 18083 is the highest except 18365. There are at least two sets of plates in between that have not shown up. Among the 4c plates is one that seems pretty scarce—16369. I have never found 15085 and 086, although they should be common. It seems as though we never would get any new 5c numbers. Numbers 18907-908-909-910 have been doing yeoman's service for the last two years. There are possibly some sleepers among these 5c numbers. 18443 and 444 went to press and were almost immediately removed for 're-entry' going back to press once more. There is, however, no record of any printing, and as they were cancelled the day after the second return to the press it looks as though we would not have to worry about those numbers. However, if anyone has them, let us know it. Likewise, 18785 and 786. No record of any printing, although they have gone to press. The last plate has been cancelled.

The 6's come along like clockwork. 18030 and 037 or 18036 and 18421 have monopolised the field since back in '26. Cannot someone find 18396 or above, except 18421? A new pair of seven cent plates have been recently in evidence—19238 and 239. Plates 19236 and 237 seem to have been skipped over and maybe some are used for precancels. The highest rotary 8c number I have seen is 19247. All earlier rotary numbers seem to be used. The last flat beds—17917 to 17920—probably are still on sale in some of the smaller towns. I certainly would like to pick up a top block or two of some of those birds. There seems to be something funny about the nine centers, when it comes to rotaries. There is a bunch of plates between 18375 and 18464—eleven in all—that have either been certified for a long time and never gone to press, or never certified. The highest numbers I have seen are 19350-351, which showed up last August.

When it comes to the 10c denomination everything is nice and regular from 18387 to 19255, which is the highest number I have seen. There are quite a lot of flat plates, 18058 to 18328 that have been certified, but never went to press. As new numbers come out it would be interesting to have them reported. Someone will perhaps cover the flat plate numbers."

A report on numbers sent in by column readers and based on the above will appear soon. All are requested to send their lists, even if only of three or four items as it frequently happens that such

WANT THE "DAMAGED CIRCLE"?

WE HAVE SOME BLOCKS OF 4

Plate 15754 of the Huguenot-Walloon series of commemoratives proved freakish in that most of its stamps show a broken or damaged circle around the figure "5" at lower right. In a few stamps the break is clearer than in most others, and these list at $4 each in the specialized catalog. We have a few blocks of four showing defective circles on all four stamps which we offer at $2.50 per block. Plate number blocks of 6 at $4.00 per block. Well centered, full o. g.

Canada-Quebec Tercentenary

UNCHRONICLED DOT VARIETIES IN THE 1908 PICTORIAL SET

By MAJOR HARRY MORELL, Shellsburg, Iowa.

The Quebec Tercentenary set was issued in 1908 in commemoration of the 300th anniversary of the founding of the City of Quebec by Samuel de Champlain. The issue is composed of eight stamps each of a different design, presenting portraits of notables and depicting scenes of historic interest. It was revealed on careful examination of these stamps, that each variety presented something of microscopic interest, either a dot or a stroke of color which appears constantly and in an unvarying position on that particular denomination.

There are innumerable dots, splotches and lines of color to be found on all varieties, many of these are due to ink defects, or oil droplets on the plate. These defects are fugitive, not constant, they are frequently found, irregularly placed, and occur in many varieties and combinations. It is impossible to classify these, but those most frequently found are noted for purposes of study.

The general scope of this article is limited to plate markings, and only those are considered which are constant and appear in an unvarying position on the specimen, no reference being made to singles, many of which may be found with guide lines, hair lines, or accidental scratches. Again—many of these stamps appear to have blurred impressions, especially noticeable in CANADA POSTAGE, some of the letters showing ragged edges. This condition is produced by the plate not being properly polished, the burrs particularly being insufficiently burnished.

The minute details of a line engraved specimen cannot be differentiated with the naked eye, but those who have the inclination will find that the microscopical examination offers a special field of interest and a splendid opportunity of extending this phase of philately. The following details have been carefully studied and are presented for consideration and observation:—

Constant dot. A dot will be found in the lower arm of the letter C of CENT. This is a constant dot and occurs in an unvarying position, and was found on every specimen of this denomination examined. As this dot appears in various shapes, it is possibly due to a combined plate and ink defect.

Dots not constant. 75% showed a dot inside the pillar of the P of POSTAGE (see additional notes).

2c Carmine—

Constant dot—Not verified. There is recorded in the May number of the Canadian Philatelist, page 292, the following: "A guide dot at the top of P of POSTAGE in the 2c Quebec". This dot was found in only 50% of the specimens examined by the writer.

Dots not constant. 50% of the specimens will show a large dot in the pillar of P of POSTAGE. This dot is evidently the remains of a guide line not entirely obliterated from the plate, before being printed. The 2c is the only stamp of the series that does not present a constant

MIXTURE—

A PRICE list of Scandinavian stamps has just been issued by the Brooklyn Stamp Co., Times Plaza, Brooklyn, N. Y. It is very comprehensive, finely illustrated, and a specimen copy will be sent upon request to interested collectors.

PROF. A. B. TONDRA writes:—"Enclosed is my renewal the most cheerful dollar that I ever mailed. Your newspaper is, in my opinion, the most up-to-the-minute paper published, and I get a lot of others. MEKEEL'S is the king of them all." We are vain enough to feel that Prof. Tondra's testimonial is a sincere one, and accept it as such.

I NOTE in the Nov. 11 issue the Balloon Post item in which it is stated that 65 balloons or more were reported to have been set free. My data, Champion's catalog, mentions 55 balloons. The others did not carry mail although private correspondence was taken.—HERBERT BARNETT.

ON Nov. 18, eighty bags of mail in the baggage car on a north bound train out of Jackson, Mich., were totally destroyed by the explosion of an oil lamp. We publish this item as it may be of possible interest to the subscriber and dealer.

WHEN a dealer like Ronald A. King advertises one line of stamps for an entire year as he has done, and then renews his contract for yet another year, it is proof positive that he has found his stock popular and that the WEEKLY has helped materially as an advertising medium. In all of Mr. King's business dealings we have never had a single complaint filed against him, and we recommend him as a particularly good dealer from whom to buy Irish stamps.

New Plate Numbers

Through the courtesy of Mr. A. W. Hall, Director of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, we are enabled to bring our list of plate numbers up to and including those issued to November 15, 1929. The list is short, and all of the plates are of the rotary press type.

1½c Rotary Imperf.

Quite recently, in looking over a quantity of the 1½c imperforate rotary, Scott's No. 631, it was noted that some of them showed a very distinct breaking of the gum by means of numerous horizontal lines, whereas a further portion were without any gum breaks whatsoever. Some day the specialist will be picking out the different varieties of gum breaks on the rotary issues, for the Bureau has been experimenting almost from the first, and a casual inspection of a number of blocks from these several issues will show numerous types of breakage.

In the case of the imperforate varieties just mentioned, a further inspection showed plate blocks showing the breaks from sheets 18413 and 18360, whereas the "no break" variety was found from 18360, which, it will be noted, was used for the two types.

Christmas Stamp Distribution

The Information Service of the Post Office Department announces under date of November 16, that approximately four billion stamps will be issued to postmasters throughout the country for the Christmas holiday trade. It calls attention that this is sufficient quantity to belt the earth at the equator with enough left over to more than form a boundary line around the United States.

It is stated that the coming Christmas season gives promise of being a record breaker from the standpoint of mail matter handled.

During the last thirty days, the Department has issued to postmasters nearly three billion stamps, a half billion envelopes, and a quarter billion postal cards. The stamps to be distributed for the holiday will weigh in the neighborhood of three hundred tons.

Attention is called to the fact that in spite of the more liberal use of mechanical devices for prepayment of postage, that there will be an increase of 7 per cent over the same period last year.

Metered Mail

In the Chronicle for November 18, a paragraph was devoted to "Metered Mail" calling attention to a 16c rate made up of three different meter imprints, consisting of a 1c, 5c and 10c.

Mr. Arthur Knapp writes a most interesting letter upon the subject from which the following quotation is taken:

NEW SEASON APPROVAL BOOKS
During the summer I have remade all my approval books, and have combined in them many important purchases made during the past year.
The following is a list of new books that are now ready. In general these contain stamps from a few cents to some twenty dollars each. A list of my books of rare stamps will be issued later on.
Prices will be found very moderate, as a rule 35 to 50 per cent below catalogue quotations, and all these priced on this basis of the 1929 catalogue.

"The square type of imprint probably came from the machine of the Pitney-Bowes Postage Meter Co., which will print up to five different denominations. Any combination may be had on these machines under the following restrictions. The highest denomination must not be over 25 times the lowest, and each denomination must be divisible by the lowest. We have in this office machines which will print any or all of the following:

4c — 12c — 30c — 40c — 50c

"This last machine fulfills the second condition because the machine registers ½ the imprint.

"It is evident that a wide range of denominations may be expected from these machines."

Collectors of metered mail impressions will have quite a merry time in getting together the numerous combinations possible.

Hawaiian Overprint

Mr. John N. Luff in his interesting notes in the November issue of Scott's Monthly Journal further discusses the subject of the Hawaiian overprints on United States issues and again assumes that our arguments are not sound relative to the listing of these stamps as "United States Issues."

He quotes from a portion of our Chronicle upon the subject, but, unfortunately, overlooks entirely the communication later published in reply to a letter addressed to the Postmaster General, in which the Post Office Department through the Third Assistant Postmaster General, who has charge of all stamps, distinctly states that they are U. S. issues, and are so considered by the Department. This letter has been quoted in detail in this column.

Hawaii as a separate nation ceased to exist in 1898 and anything that it has used for postage since, is certainly a United States issue, as it is an integral part of this country.

Goodyear Zeppelin

Through the courtesy of Mr. C. E. Smith, we have received from Akron, Ohio, an air mail cover with blue circular postmark, showing an illustration of the U. S. Navy ZRS—4, together with a six-line marking, reading "ZRS—4, Ring Laying, U. S. Navy Goodyear Zeppelin, Akron, Ohio, U. S. A., November 7, 1929."

Written for MEKEEL'S WEEKLY

HAITIAN POSTAL REVENUE, 1926-27

By HARRY E. HUBER.

During the fiscal year ended Sept. 30, 1927, postage stamps were on sale at 95 offices throughout the Republic, eleven being at the open ports, and 84 in the rural communes. The value of stamps sold was G.210,119.85 as compared with G.197,485.43 in the preceding year.

District.	Postage Stamps.	Box Rents
Aquin Gds.	1635.60
Cap Haitien	20772.95 Gds.	1600.00
Cayes	12750.69	765.00
Gonaives	8257.35	602.00
Jacmel	8528.85	527.50
Jeremie	7477.25	355.00
Miragoane	2934.70
Petit Goave	4170.98	460.00
Port au Prince	132402.18	7449.66
Port de Paix	6334.85	225.10
Saint Marc	4854.45	545.00
	G. 210119.85	G. 12529.26

The total Haitian revenue for the year was Gds. 38,861,534.79, from which it will be seen that the revenue from the sale of postage stamps comprises only slightly more than a half of one percent. On the other hand, the customs receipts comprise 86.62% (Gds. 33,661,876.23).

At the close of the year there were 19 Americans and 266 Haitians in the office of the Financial Adviser-Receiver General, and 2 Americans and 129 Haitians in the Bureau of Internal Revenue.

Towards the end of May, 1927, the original printing of the 25c Commerce (2,000,000) exhausted, and a reprinting of 200,000 was ordered from the American Bank Note Co. These were received and issued the latter part of August, and differ somewhat from the original printing (dull blue with brown gum), in that the blue is deeper and brighter, the paper is whiter, and the gum is white.

In March, 1927, Commr. Francisco de Pinedo passed through Port au Prince on his four-continent flight from Sardinia. The Haitian Post Office Dept. prepared an air mail for the United States, on advice from the Italian Charge d'Affaires, that such mail would be accepted. De Pinedo refused to carry the mail, and the letters prepared were subsequently returned to the senders where known, or dispatched by steamer.

P. O. Box 445, Gr. Cent. Sta., N. Y. C. [31

In the following month, April, 1927, the U. S. Army Pan-American Flying Squadron (Major H. A. Dargue, Flight Commander) arrived at Port au Prince. A small courtesy air mail of 95 letters was accepted for conveyance to the United States.

On April 19, 1927, Port de Paix, on the northern coast of Haiti, was given a weekly air mail service, from Port au Prince,—and on July 12, 1927, a weekly air mail service was inaugurated to Jeremie, on the northern shore of the Tiburon peninsula.

On July 12, 1927, a special marking was applied to the stamps on letters addressed to the "Comite Marcelin Berthelot, Port au Prince." This marking applied in red, took the form of an outline retort, enclosing "1827—Berthelot—1927." The

No. 6--BN of the Peach Orchard Series of Handy Reference Leaflets

Up to Dec. 31, 1874, the U. S. stamp agent probably had issued between 1,100,000 and 1,300,000 National 24c to post offices. On Jan. 1, 1875, the agent is believed to have had about 150,525 National 24c still on hand. In the ensuing six months the issue of 24c stamps to post offices was:—

Jan. 1 to March 31,	44,525
Apr. 1 to June 30,	105,550
Total,	150,075

Excepting special prints, the only supply of 24c known to have been printed by the Continental Bank Note Co. was 365,000 which were delivered to the stamp agent sometime between January 1 and June 30 in 1875. Any 24c issued in 1875 before the Continental printing was received were necessarily National prints. Thereafter the issue to post offices may have comprised either National or Continental stamps only, or may have contained stamps from both of those companies. Therefore the issue of 24c stamps from the Continental printing may have been any number up to 150,075, or none at all. (See Elliott Perry article in MEKEEL'S of Feb. 13 and 27, and March 12, 1928.)

The 24c denomination was not issued to post offices after June 30, 1875. In 1885 there were 364,950 of the 24c stamps destroyed as remainders. The special printings of 1875 and 1880 (Scott Nos. 175 and 200), totalled 10,500 stamps, of which 284 were sold and the balance, 10,216, was destroyed in 1884.

Precancelled Stamps

A. F. Gamber, Editor,
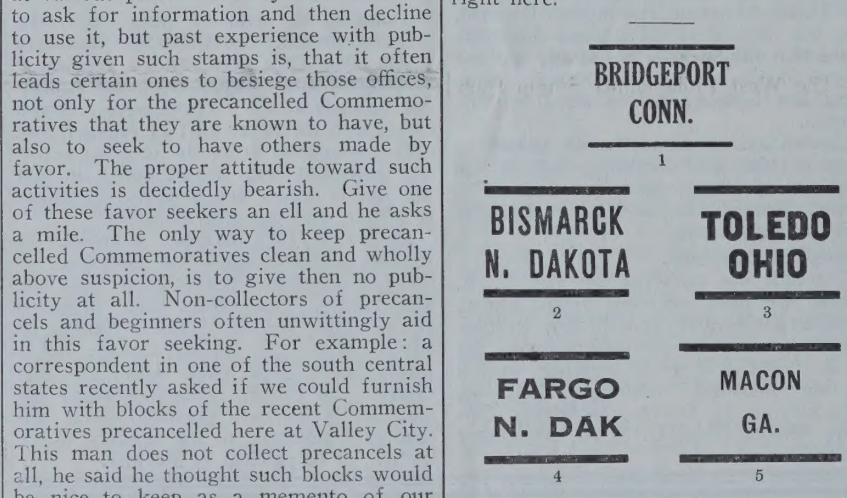
Valley City, N. D.

We don't hear any more about that projected new series. Postmaster General Brown got us all steamed up about it by his radio announcement last spring, but since then definite news has been conspicuous by its absence. If the set as a whole is to be no more striking or original than the recent commemoratives, why add more? In a League of Nations issuing homely stamps, our own land would rate number one membership.

In response to our oft repeated, and again repeated, request for news notes for this department, some of our friends have been sending in information about the recent Commemoratives precancelled at various places. It may seem churlish to ask for information and then decline to use it, but past experience with publicity given such stamps is, that it often leads certain ones to besiege those offices, not only for the precancelled Commemoratives that they are known to have, but also to seek to have others made by favor. The proper attitude toward such activities is decidedly bearish. Give one of these favor seekers an ell and he asks a mile. The only way to keep precancelled Commemoratives clean and wholly above suspicion, is to give then no publicity at all. Non-collectors of precancels and beginners often unwittingly aid in this favor seeking. For example: a correspondent in one of the south central states recently asked if we could furnish him with blocks of the recent Commemoratives precancelled here at Valley City. This man does not collect precancels at all, he said he thought such blocks would be nice to keep as a memento of our pleasant exchange relations. With all due appreciation of and thanks for the fineness of his sentiment, it just could not be done. Partly because our postmistress here never orders such stamps, and we don't ask her to, but instead applaud her policy; and partly because we prefer not to break the regulations. The only proper and legitimate way to get precancelled Commemoratives is to get them as all other precancels are gotten, viz., from the regular sources of supply packages. These late Commemoratives have been appearing in such quantities that quite a number of them are certain to show up precancelled here and there. This is especially true of the Edison. So just let nature take its course. If a precancelled Commemorative appears amid what you get from your regular sources, all to the good. If it comes from some one of those towns, usually smaller ones, which are known to have a bad repute for precancelling Commemoratives, let it go by, it won't be worth the space in your album. The writer has a list of such towns, which he compiled from the files of his own and others' bitter experiences about three years ago. It is yours for the postage.

The writer receives so many requests from beginners for enlightenment on certain terms peculiar to precancel collecting, that he will endeavor to define such terms in this department as they occur to him. We may as well make a start right here.



What is meant by U Style, or U Type? The letter U as used here is an abbreviation for Universal. The precancel catalog takes some particular type and applies to it, regardless of the town using it, a certain Universal Type number; just as Scott's catalog takes a certain stamp and makes of it a definite type. In the illustration above (No. 1) we see what is known as Universal Type 10. A count of all the towns using this type would run into several hundred, so to simplify matters and to bring all these various towns under one classification, this system of U types is used. The catalog refers to them as U Styles, collectors refer to them usually as U Types. This may be confusing to beginners. The two terms, U Styles and U Types, are interchangeable, and mean one and the same U Type is preferable, because clearer and more accurate. Wherever the word Style appears in the catalog, it should, in the interest of clarity and accuracy, be changed to Type. But we'd hate to have to pay the printer's bill for making the change, even at 1c each!

You must have noticed, from a comparison of the styles or types portrayed in the catalog, with those now in use, that fashions change here as elsewhere. A few years ago the fashion was a big, heavy, boldfaced type, which could be easily seen even at some distance. Types U-1, U-2, U-4 (Nos. 2, 3, 4 above) were the standard types supplied to various offices, unless the town name was a long one or made up of several words. Today all three of these types are out of fashion, as they wear out they are being replaced with much smaller ones. At the moment I can think of but few towns still using U-2. Toledo and Boston are, but both are badly worn and rate retirement. A few smaller cities, like Phoenix and Salem, Ohio, still use them, but neither town has much use for their plates and the resultant wear is not great. By the way, on the Salem plate the 9th row is inverted, hence tete beche pairs and blocks are possible. In the case of U-1, slightly lighter than U-2, it, too, is rapidly going out, being replaced by a smaller and lighter type. Witness the two Portlands, Dayton, Knoxville, Houston. There are a few U-1's still in the ring, but they're badly battered—Sheboygan, St. Paul (long hopeless), Allentown, San Diego. The smaller cities using this type, such as Rushville, Danville, Dansville, bid fair to continue to use them for some time, they are in the same class as Phoenix.

The type which is replacing these older ones is, in almost every case, U-12 (No. 5). Time is lacking to make a check of all towns using it, and it wouldn't be up-to-date tomorrow if one were made, its use is spreading so rapidly.

The U-4 type was never very widely used, it seems to have been confined to city names of only a few letters—Fargo, Marion, Ind., Salem, Mass., Orange, Tyrone, Warren, Pa. Most of them are still in use, though Warren has substituted a U-12, and Tyrone, Orange, and Fargo need new ones. The U-12 will get 'em before long.

The catalog U Types so far formulated through 20 are electros, or printed types. Those from 50 through 70 are rubber handstamps between bars, from 70 through 90, ditto between lines. Those from 90 through 100 are a special kind used for precancelling coil stamps. The covers were later sold at a premium by the Committee, for the benefit of the Berthelot Centenary Fund. The Committee had petitioned the Government to provide an overprinted stamp, which might be sold at a premium, but this was refused, and the cancellation provided as a substitute.

On July 14, 1927, an experimental air flight was made from Barahona, Dominican Republic, to Port au Prince. A small mail of 12 letters (11 ordinary, and 1 official) was brought. On the return flight, July 18th, 90 letters were dispatched to Barahona, and 473 letters to Santo Domingo City.

FRED O. OHLUND.

HE NEW 10c NEWFOUNDLAND

When Mr. Wills reported the issue of ıe 10c stamp printed by John Dickinson Co., he stated laconically that its only stinction from the Whitehead, Morris rinting were its lighter shade of violet ıd the perf. 13½ as against the former ale of 14.

Having made a little study of the two rintings I have to say that the color fference does not hold water, because I ıve several copies of the first issue, one f exactly the same tint as that of the ewcomer, and as to the perforation, the ight difference is not easy to discern r the average collector.

For the present day collector it would e easier then to apply the formula: "If ou got the stamp it is the old one, if ou get it it's the new one" because the ormer is now extinct; but leaving jokes one, the simplest way to distinguish the vo printings is, to look at the centre of ıe stamps; the Whitehead, Morris copy as clouds in the sky, whereas the Dickson stamp has only a soft shading hich cannot be called clouds; incidental, it will be noticed that on the first amp the cloud appearing over the cross the centre looks like an aeroplane. This oud effect is plain and simple and ould dispose of the entire matter as to istinguishing the two issues.

Now, for the real student there are ıite a number of additional differences ı the two stamps, but a magnifying lass will be in order to find them; to void the repeating of the two printers' ames I will call the two issues a and b.

In "a" the value at top stands clear of ıe heavy inner frame line, in "b" it is rtly imbedded in this line, and generally ıe letters C and N of CENT have flaws, hile the first printing is clear.

The eternal flame on the pedestals at ther side of the vignette at left in "a" nds in one, in "b" in two equally heavy ngues; at right in "a" one tongue winds around another, while in "b" there are three tongues parallel to each other.

The man on the top of the monument, holding aloft a cross, is one solid figure in "a", while in "b" he has a white line running from head to foot, making him look as if split in two.

There are several other minor distinguishing marks, but the above are the most conspicuous and should suffice for the average collector.

LAST MINUTE ITEMS

—The West Philadelphia Stamp Club has just been organized and the following officers elected: Pres., William Emmert; Vice-Pres., Forrest P. Hand; Sec., Chester A. Sittig; Treas., George Creed. Further information can be obtained from E. L. Pollock, 754 So. 60th St., Phila., Pa.

—F. B. Akarman sends us a cover from San Pedro Sula, Honduras, which bears a 6c blue current issue with diagonal overprint in red, 1929-30. Mr. Akarman writes "this was done on account of the great number of counterfeit and cleaned stamps that are being used." To a lay collector it would seem that it would be easily possible to pass the counterfeiting on to the overprint which is crudely made.

—St. Petersburg, Fla., will have air mail service beginning Dec. 14, Route 25.

—The first anniversary exhibition and banquet of the Appleton (Wis.) Philatelic Society was held Nov. 23, at the Conway Hotel, Appleton. An exhibition was held from 10 A. M. to 10 P. M. In connection with the banquet a handsome menu was printed and it was decorated with a block of four ½c precanceled "Appleton, Wis." in red. H. M. Brehm was the toastmaster. There are only twelve members in this Society, but it is livelier than many organizations several times its size.

—The Bridgeport (Conn.) Philatelic Club will have an exhibition running a whole week, afternoons and evenings, Dec. 9 to 14 inclusive. It will be held in the Bridgeport Public Library.

Types are those used by the Bureau ı the manufacture of Bureau Prints. he E Types are those used by the enelope contractors in overprinting 1c amped envelopes for use under Section 35 ½. The F Types cover French Preancels, the L Types, those of Luxemırg. These last three will appear for the rst time in the 1930 catalog this fall. When we say the numbers through 20 enote electros we do not mean that there re 20 separate electro types. So far only 13 of the 20 numbers are in use. Of the series 50 to 70, only 12 are in use; for 70-90, 13 in use; for 90-100, 7 in use. It isn't as complex as it seems.

Our European Letter

By A. WAGNER, Essen, Germany.

Austrian Republic.—A new series of landscape postage stamps is now making its appearance here, which, beyond the denominations already known, also includes a new value of 60gr. It is gratifying to state that after a pretty long interval Austria again presents to the world a set of stamps that deserves to be called attractive, and does credit to the highly developed Austrian graphic arts.

The stamps of the old issue continue in use until further notice, with the exception of the 20, 45, 50 and 80gr values, which will be withdrawn on Dec. 31, 1929. The values of from 1 to 8gr continue in use without any alteration of the design.

Some details relative to the colors and values of the novelties, and the scenery represented are given hereafter:

16gr gray, a piece of Duernstein with the famous church and the home-river.

30gr blue-violet, Seewiesen in Styria.

40gr dark blue, the former Hofburg (Imperial Palace), at Innsbruck, the picturesquely situated capital of Tyrol, in whose mountainous surroundings with snow-capped peaks up to 12,000 feet the writer spent many summer vacations in the happy pre-war days. An electric railway from Innsbruck via Mittenwald and Garmisch takes the tourist in a short time to Oberammergau (already on Ba-

Editorial

TWO letters have been received asking for information that will apply to the question of customs levy on stamps consigned to collectors here on approval from abroad, and we have been promised particulars of interest on the subject for the next issue.

FOR some time, the banks and the post office department have been cooperating on a plan to provide an improvement in the method of handling bank mail, which, in large cities, exceeds in poundage and extent, the first-class mailings of other users of postage at the rate of more than 2c a piece. Daily transfers of bank paper in envelopes of varying size, enclosing bulky contents, cannot be handled by the meter machines. This "transfer mail", as it is called by banks, is first-class mail and celerity in transporting it is a requirement as it represents so much money that a day's interest on it has to be considered. As it is, "transient mail" is sent in heavy envelopes that are weighed in each case and sent to the post office; and the necessary stamps on them usually are cancelled by hand. A plan has been submitted to the department for the payment by the banks of the amount of postage by bulk, instead of by the piece. This course would remove postage due possibilities and decrease the number of postage due stamps used, and consequently make a saving. The suggestion is made that if it is mandatory that first-class mail bear an authorized imprint, "it might be possible to prepare a new form of stamp costing say one cent each, or better still, a meter imprint—or a permit number which stamp could be applied early in the day to all envelopes which later will be sent out, subject to further payment of first-class postage rates in bulk." A citation shows that the volume of mail sent by eight banks (not selected as the largest) out of one thousand amounted to over a ton daily for which more than $900 postage was paid each day. The bulk method, if adopted, would close a source of supply of the high denominations, U. S., as the majority of these stamps that reach collectors come from federal reserve, clearing-house or other bank mail.

CANADA has a system of issuing small notes to displace postage stamps and change that often are sent in payment for merchandise in small amount in this country, and the department at Washington has been urged to copy this convenience which would be appreciated by stamp dealers, among others.

COVARRUBIAS, the Mexican artist, whose work has brought him to the fore as an illustrator, has a symposium of six "collectors, average and mean," in the December issue of Vanity Fair. His caricatures are not exactly acrid but by no means are they sugar-coated. The first on the list is a "Stamp Collector Hot After an 1856 Tasmanian," showing a spectacled member of the stamp "tongs" intent on an album page, with his pointed nose almost boring a hole in his magnifying-glass. Any Tasmanian of 1856 is a valuable stamp and our assumption is that Covarrubias has seen the philatelist on his native heath.

SECOND Assistant Postmaster General W. Irving Glover asks that public notice be given to his instructions to postmasters forbidding the acceptance of letters and parcel post packages to foreign countries and the U. S. possessions if not accompanied by export declarations when the value of the contents as merchandise is $25 or more. This stipulation is such as to enable the government, through the Department of Commerce, to keep a record of exports by mail to the different countries.

A CORRESPONDENT says that if we want to place stamp collecting on a par with other forms of collecting, we should try to divest it of its savor of "juvenility", as stamp collecting suggests to the popular mind, the hap-hazard assembling of stamps by young folks rather than a pursuit with a solid background. The critic says that he does not wish to reflect on the boys and girls but adds that his view is forced on him by the comments of his adult friends when they learn that he collects stamps. If this man were to be taken at his word, he would have a cessation of all activities that encourage boys and girls to take to stamps. If this condition were to come to pass, the philatelic tree would begin to die at its roots. The proposition is self-evident that the ranks have to be recruited from the young. The feeling of personal preference that is shown becomes almost petty in the light of this truth. Collecting must be recognized as a pursuit for both young and old and it is working out its destiny on this premise. No class has a monopoly of the pleasures of collecting. That there is a vast difference in the status of the boy collector and the advanced philatelist, we all know, but the beginner may progress, step by step, to the position held by the senior collectors.

TO pursue the subject of the preceding paragraph, we quote the following foreword from "A Stamp Collector's Souvenir," a pamphlet published for free distribution by a leading stamp dealer in 1892: "Who are the stamp collectors? Many people have the impression that stamp collecting is simply a boys' amusement, is soon dropped, and of very little importance. In many cases, this is true but that there are thousands of more serious collectors who find a great deal more in it than the thoughtless reader may suppose. Many a father has had his interest awakened in stamp collecting by assisting his boy to find the proper place in the album for a difficult stamp, and has become and continued an active collector long after the boy has laid his stamps aside." The boys need no apologist. They fill an important role in philately and their influence as cited in the foregoing remarks is helpful to the adults, who, in turn, should have a warm spot for the boys.

"WHERE do you get your stamps?" is a question asked of dealers by outsiders. The government is to issue about 4,000,000,000 stamps for the Christmas season. There will be a reenforcement for the pound trade, since the weight of the stamps will be about 300 tons and if "laid end-to-end, the stamps would measure 63,131 miles." During the last thirty days, nearly three billion stamps have been issued.

A CORRESPONDENT writes that one of the planes used for the Cairo-to-Karachi stage of the England-to-India air mail service was burned with 25,000 pieces of mail. Three men were killed, including the pilot, Woodbridge, who had a distinguished war record as a British flyer.

THE Chicago "Evening Post" recently contained an article, a column in length, that described the commemorative issues of the U. S.; and as showing how beneficial publicity of this kind may be, it is to be recorded that we know of two collectors who have been made by the notice. They were led to inquire into the subject of stamps and the chances are that they will develop into philatelists.

THE postmaster at Kingsport, Tennessee, was staggered when a representative of the Kingsport Press asked for $20,000 worth of stamps from 8c to 20c, to be used on catalogues that the Press has printed for an eastern electrical equipment house. The stamps, precanceled, are being applied at the Press plant by government employees as the order swamped the Kingsport office. Evidently, Kingsport is not depending on Senator Pratt alone, to make it famous, in a stamp sense.

Stamp News for the Juniors

This page is primarily for you, the Junior collector. We are interested in what interests you and we want you to take possession of it, if in any way it can serve you.

We also invite the Senior collector to extend words of advice, encouragement and stimulation and thus develop in the Junior a real passion for Philately.

Bear in mind that two short articles of from 50 to 75 words read better than one long one. Address all communications to the Beverly office.

Stati Parm (or Parmensi).—Parma.

S. Thome e Principe.—St. Thomas and Prince Islands.

S. U.—These letters were overprinted on a few Straits Settlements stamps intended for use in the native state of Sungei Ujong.

Sultanat d'Anjouan.—Anjouan.

Sverige.—Sweden.

T.—A large "T" overprinted on the stamps of such countries as Abyssinia and Bulgaria generally indicates that they were used as postage due labels.

Takca. — This word appears upon most of the Bulgarian postage due stamps.

Tassa Gazzette.—On the newspaper stamp of Modena.

Telegrafos.—Telegraphs.

Tjeneste.—On the official stamps of Denmark.

Toga.—Tonga.

Toscano.—Tuscany.

U. G.—These letters, with numerals to denote the value, form the "design" of the first typewritten stamps of Uganda.

Ultramar.—The only inscription on many of the Spanish issues of Cuba.

Van Diemans Land.—Tasmania.

Z. Afr. Republiek. — South African Republic (Now known as the Transvaal).

U. S. 1873 Secret Marks

These are small marks introduced into the designs of stamps for some specific purpose. It was at one time very generally believed that stamp manufacturers were in the habit of introducing secret marks into their work as an extra precaution against, or a help in the detection of, forgeries. Where these marks are intentionally introduced they are simply meant as distinguishing marks, and there is nothing "secret" about them. Thus the "hairlines" on certain British stamps, which are usually known as secret marks, were introduced to distinguish stamps printed from certain plates. In the same way the so-called secret marks on the United States stamps of 1873 were introduced into the designs so that the Continental Bank Note Co. could distinguish between the impressions from plates of their own manufacture and those made by the National Bank Note Co.

1870—Without semi-circles.
1873—With same, lower right corner.

12 Violet

1870—Rounded out balls.
1873—Balls of "2" crescent shaped.

A Few Bollos

Bollo Della Posta di Sicilia.—An inscription appearing on the stamps of Sicily meaning "stamp of the Post of Sicily."

Bollo Postale.—An inscription shown upon the stamps of the small republic of San Marino meaning "Postage Stamp."

Bollo Straordinario Per le Poste.—The inscription shown on the so-called newspaper stamp of Tuscany issued in 1854. Its literal meaning is "Stamp extraordinary for the post." The stamp was not a postage stamp in the strict meaning of the term but represented a fiscal tax collected on newspapers coming from foreign countries.

Commission Fur Retourbriefe

An inscription shown upon the so-called return letter "stamps" of Bavaria and Wurtemberg meaning "Returned Letter Department." These labels have no philatelic significance whatsoever though they were listed in many of the old catalogues and at one time spaces were provided for them in many printed albums. On some of the labels of Bavaria the last word of the inscription is "Ruckbriefe."

Bits of Information

Cent de Peseta.—Many of the stamps of Spain and her Colonies were expressed in this value. The centimo de peseta was worth about a fifth of a cent in American money.

Peroxide.—The ordinary peroxide of hydrogen of commerce is often useful in restoring the colors of stamps which have become blackened or discolored by atmospheric means. These stamps, usually known as oxidized specimens, should be carefully washed with a weak solution of peroxide, applied with a camels hair brush, and as a rule the color will be perfectly restored. In some cases two or three treatments are necessary before the desired result is obtained.

Serpentine Roulette. — A roulette formed of wavy cuts with small breaks between the curves. The 1860-71 stamps of Finland furnish excellent examples of this style of roulette.

Serrated Perforation.—A form of rouletting in which the cuts are curved, and the edges show little hollows or scallops. More usually known by the French term "Percé en arc."

Serra Riverdale Bond.—A watermark appearing in Argentine Republic stamps issued in June, 1919. These words are four times repeated in sheets of these stamps.

Junior Dictionary

Melat-i-kazerun 1335 — (National Committee of Kazerun 1917).—The 1911 set of Persian stamps with this surcharge was issued by the rebel leader Nasr-i-Divan, who led a rebellion against the British in So. Persia. These stamps were in use about two weeks and they have no philatelic standing. Date of issue, January, 1917.

Merson, Olivier. — A French artist who drew the design used for the current 40c to 5fr values of France. His name, in tiny capital letters, is shown on the left hand end of the lower border of the design.

Meshad.—A walled city, capital of Khorassan province, Persia, famed in philately for having issued in 1902 a set of six stamps for provisional use. The postmaster, having sold out his regular stock, issued the set referred to. In the middle of the design are the letters V.C. for Victor Castaigne, the then local postmaster.

Metallik.—The value in which most of the Cretan stamps issued within the Russian Sphere of Administration in 1899 were expressed. A metallik is the fourth part of a grosion or piastre and its value in American money is a little more than a cent.

Johnny's Diary

By Capt. A. C. Townsend.

July 1, 1894.—Me and Willy Myers are going to hustle this month and see who can get the most new stamps. He has 822 kinds now, and I've only got 531, but you bet I'm going to make him hump himself to keep ahead. Collecting is a dead easy game in the summer anyway, so many of the fellers get lazy and would rather go swimmin' or get a glass of soda water than a dollar's worth of stamps. I traded for 4 new ones today. They didn't amount to much, but Willy only got 2.

July 2.—I got 6 new ones today. Most of them were common but I got one good old Mauritius from Ed Wilkins. He was goin' fishin' and wanted to borrow my good line. I played I wanted to go fishin' too, and wouldn't let him have it till he offered me a good stamp, and I took that one. He could have sold it and bought 2 lines. Willy ran across a feller that wants to swop a bicycle for stamps. We are going to cook up some sort of a deal with him.

July 3.—Willy beat me today. He sold a trader for a dime and then went around and played tag with Hen Allen till he got his tongue hangin' out. Then he offered to treat to soda for Hen's 6c Justice, and he got a beauty. I know a feller that has a 2c Exec. but he wants the earth for it. Me and Willy found a stray Nufounland dog today, and hid him in our cellar. He chewed up our hosepipe somethin' awful and we sneaked him out again and hid him in Willy's woodshed. Good thing we did, for Pop went down cellar tonight and says the rats down there is getting fearful.

July 4.—We got a dollar for findin' that dog. A lady had an ad in the morning paper and was mighty glad to get him and said we was good boys for taking care of him. We struck her for stamps and she said she'd look over some old letters and to come back Saturday. We bought firecrackers with the dollar and did a big business all day trading them for stamps. We got some daisies too. Willy and me didn't shoot but a few fireworks but we feel good all the same.

July 5.—We got 39 new stamps yesterday between us. That makes me 559 and Willy 848. I got that 2c Exec. too. The feller that owned it came around last night and we were all havin' so much fun he traded me the Exec. for 2 cannon crackers and a hunting book I had. That made Willy sick. Tomorrow we are goin' to see a boy we hear has a lot of Depts. and get acquainted with him. Most of the fellers are awful short of Depts. Oh, yes. I swapped my mouth organ to a chap today for an old watch he had. I don't know what to do with it, but it was a good trade and I guess I'll work it in somewhere. That's what Mom says about the things she buys at bargain sales.

Damus Petimus Que Vicissim

A motto appearing on most of the stamps of British Guiana. It means "We give and we seek in turn," and evidently has reference to the interchange of products between the Colony and other countries.

OFF-SIDE—

THE Christian Science Monitor has presented not a few very interesting articles on stamp collecting and it misses no opportunity to say that philately is one of the most attractive of pursuits.

"I HAVE a sure way to impress the non-collector who looks at my album," say a correspondent. "If he seems to glance at my treasures with little enthusiasm, I can literally make him sit up and take notice, by telling him how much his stamp or that one is worth."

IF the movie houses throughout the country continue to give away packages of cheap stamps to the boys and girls, at the rate reported to us, there will soon be a scarcity of the common stamps in huge lots.

FROM the Philadelphia Stamp Club Bulletin, which is one of the best club journals that reaches us, we learn that Mr. Eugene Klein gave a talk on his recent European trip at a meeting and detailed his experiences of philatelic kind in Spain, especially, where he said the dealers were substantial business men.

THE Rubber City Stamp Club, Akron, Ohio, will celebrate its tenth anniversary by a celebration at the Portage Hotel, on December 7th and 8th, 1929. The organization is an active one and it is probable that there will be guests from out of town at the "open house."

CHICAGO Commerce asks: "Do you know what a state overprinted stamp is? Does your boy know and collect them?" Any prizes offered for the correct answers?

A DEALER got a letter from a point in Iowa, enclosing a 3c green, 1879, U. S., which, while "worth more," according to the correspondent, would be sacrificed for one hundred dollars even. The dealer returned the stamp at once and enclosed a 3c green of the same type, with his compliments. You should see the answer that he got from the lady who sent the stamp; his generosity certainly slapped him in the face.

PIERCE W. HANGGE, staff photographer of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, who is to be credited with the insertion of a number of stamp articles in his newspaper, was a recent visitor to Chicago.

THE BOSTON STORE, Chicago, has installed a philatelic section in the stationery department of the great emporium.

DONALD E. DICKASON, Editor,
Wooster, Ohio

(Coöperators will find their names listed each week. If a reply be necessary, enclose a self-addressed stamped envelope.)

George H. Kieley, of the Boston Post Office, and A. A. M. S. No. 69, has just sent me a little booklet, compiled by himself for the P. O., which gives very complete, yet condensed information about the U. S. domestic and foreign air mail service—schedules, postage rates, all points en route, etc. This will make a very useful guide for all collectors of air mail, and a copy will be sent to all who request it from the Boston, Mass., postmaster, or from Mr. Kieley. Enclose 2c postage, or a long stamped envelope.

Official Flights

On Nov. 4th, John S. Campbell of Cadiz, Ohio, received a badly burned face of a cover that had come from a wrecked air mail plane, which had fallen west of Mt. Vernon, O., on Oct. 29. The postmaster at that place forwarded this with a statement to this effect: Mr. Campbell wishes to know if it could have been any of our advertisers' letters, for excluding his philatelic mail, he has little business connections.H. Richard Neihoff also reports a letter from this wreck, and states that it has the backstamp "Irregularity No. 892, Cincinnati, Ohio."

Reports recently published forecasted a reduction in the air mail postage rate to Latin America in order to increase use of the service, but no official announcement has been forthcoming as yet. Reports continue that the New York, Rio and Buenos Aires line will be open for its entire length by Jan. 1st, and that the southern portion of the line is already in operation. No. U. S. mail contract has been arranged thus far, though I understand that the company strongly hopes to arrange one soon. I urgently request that anyone having access to information about this proposed service, either northern or southern end, let us have it at the earliest possible moment. Eight U. S. stops are proposed, and thirty-three in foreign countries, so you'd better start saving up for the postage bill, in case it eventually does get started off.

I have just received covers dispatched from Panama to Buenos Aires via the first FAM 9 flight Oct. 8th, and note that two different first flight cachets were used from Colon and Panama City, respectively—the same in style, but with the city name differing.Royce A. Wight writes, referring to the published statement that no mail was carried from Chile to Buenos Aires via this flight, and says that the U. S. Consul at Arica had just sent him word that he had mailed his covers according to request. H. A. Krumweide calls attention to the saving in time via the new West Indian route. Says his covers San Juan to Georgetown went down in one day by plane, and back in 17 days by the regular channels.

Otto Edenharter calls my attention to the Swiss flight of the Graf Zeppelin, which took place Sept. 27, 28, and Oct. 2. Covers bear both German and Swiss stamps and postmarks, and have the arrival cancellation of some 13 Swiss cities. In line with the note from Mr. Edenharter published two weeks ago, a clipping from Miss Anna Schafer gives the same information in fuller form. As noted, covers, postage 1 mark, or about 25c, and cards postage half a mark, may be sent at any time to the Postmaster at Friedrichshafen, money orders for the postage, and he will hold them for dispatch via future flights of the ship to nearby or European points. Covers may be addressed anywhere. A different clipping states that the ship is about to be laid up for the winter, so you may have

STILL ANOTHER

Back in 1920, the Bureau of Engraving and Printing used a quantity of ink with foreign matter that resulted in the ruining of numerous 2c plates within an extremely short period. As new plates could not be laid down in the usual way in sufficiently short time, it was necessary to revert again to the off-set surface method, which had been issued during the War in the case of the 1c and 3c.

The first of the 2c was produced quite hurriedly and resulted in what Scott now designates as Type IV, #532b, the first three types being the engraved varieties. When sheets of the imperforate stamp were first located in the Chicago post office, a few were purchased, and when more were wanted, it was found that the entire supply had been cut up into coils by the mailing machine companies. As a result, blocks changed hands at from $10 to $15 or more. Later on, a further supply was found in a western Pennsylvania post office, which resulted in the price becoming more reasonable.

Scott now prices this 1920 2c off-set imperf. Type IV variety at $1 for a single stamp and $5 for a block of four.

These are now offered as follows:

Single	$ .75
Pair	1.50
Block	3.50
Arrow Block	4.50
Plate block of 6	8.00

If you do not have the commoner Type V of this stamp imperf., Scott's #532—

Pairs are available at .20

ONE MOMENT PLEASE!!

WHAT ARE YOU? An accumulator or a collector? It is easy to buy odd lots, poor copies, broken collections, etc., but these methods leave spotty pages and undesired duplicates.

It is easy to form a collection that you can be proud of, that contains nice copies and includes the scarcer and out-of-the-way items.

For years we have been building up a stock through careful and judicious buying, with an eye to collector's needs. We believe we can help you to form your collection correctly. We can handle want lists of any country, and everything is submitted on approval without obligation to purchase. Naturally, substantial references are required.

As to prices—most collectors are of the opinion that buying from want lists is more expensive than from price lists and approvals. Our stock is arranged to fill lists speedily and prices will average ½ catalogue. Special extra discounts to liberal buyers.

You owe it to yourself to see how much we can save you on your stamp purchases. It costs you just 2c to find out.

Various new contract routes are in the offing, the latest to receive mention as coming before long being the extension of No. 11 from Pittsburgh to Washington via Norfolk. Bids for this are soon to be received by the Department. The southern transcontinental line is still not definitely shaped up, due to the frantic claim of a great many cities to have the line give them service.Ann Arbor, Mich., received its first direct air mail service since spring on Nov. 16. Poor airport conditions had caused this stop to be omitted during the interval.

I have just received a letter from the Ile de France ship-to-shore flight of Oct. 24th, which was in the sack dropped by parachute as the plane passed over Havre on its way to its destination at Paris. Cover bears the New York postmark of Oct. 18, the ship postmark of the 24th, and that of Le Havre the 24th.Covers sent some time ago for the first flight from Colima, Mexico, have been received postmarked there Nov. 7, "Servicio Ambulante" the 8th, and backstamped the "Servicio Aereo" cancellation at Mexico City the 9th. No special cachet, and that "Ambulante" arouses my curiosity. Doesn't that mean something on the idea of "walking" or "on foot"? What is it, Mr. Saurez or Mr. Rübsamen?

I said sorrowful things two weeks ago about the postal officials at Madagascar. This time, I shall have to sing the praises of the U. S. Consul at Tananarive, who, under date of Sept. 23, acknowledges covers and remittance sent him, says that present indications are that the route from there to Majunga will not open till at least January, and possibly not till April, and promises that, if at all possible, he will get my covers on the first trip. I hate to make that gentleman a lot of work, but you might find it worthwhile to try it too. No idea what postage is necessary—I sent 20 covers and $5.00, and asked him to mail as many of them as the funds would permit.

W. R. Patton is authority for the statement that the W. C. A. flight Winnipeg-Edmonton, which an Aviation journal announced for about Oct. 15, has not flown, and will not fly. Haven't heard from the Co. to whom I sent covers and remittance, so possibly they are holding for some other flight.

Harry Peterson hoped for the best, and sent a cover to the "Land of the Soviets" fliers, with the request that they carry it on their projected trans-Atlantic trip. It was returned to him, but on its face were the signatures of all four fliers!Many Armistice Day cachets, from all reports. I've only seen a few, which include the Bombing Military Aviators, one of which I gave notice some time ago; Syracuse, N. Y., Saint Louis, Pittsburgh, and Indianapolis. One from Northampton, Pa., was flown over Northampton County by Pilot Bobby Musselman.

Armistice Day was naturally a popular dedication date. Selma, Ala., had originally planned their event for last June 27, and a 4 leaf clover cachet on the front of covers sent in last summer is so marked. A memorial monument cachet, properly dated, was applied to all covers, also, both with and without the June one. Bonham, Tex., used a 3 line black printed cachet, signed by Mayor Crawford. Pocatello, Idaho, had a box shaped cachet in either blue or black, and Austin L. Jones kindly remembers me with a pilot signature. Calexico, Calif., used their Chamber of Commerce rubber stamp, "Where the Imperial Valley Begins", and added a written "Airport Dedicated Nov. 11, 1929", signed by the Secretary.Nov. 7th marked the date for Camden, S. C., with simply a written cachet and signature.Anyone know of anything at Durant, Okla., Nov. 8? Covers, without cachet, were mailed then. J. J. Maye sends me covers dated Nov. 16 and 17, with a cachet for Air Meet and Races at Hadley Airport, New Brunswick, postmarked with the Air Mail Field cancellations of New York and New Brunswick, respectively.

The Alamosa, Colo., dedication Nov. 11th, almost deserves a paragraph to itself. With the collector's interest backed by O. H. Phinney, we have an unusually fine lot of covers. 5,792 mailed with the distinctive potato shaped cachet, in black or purple. They were unusually generous with signatures, many that I have seen having those of the Postmaster, Mayor, Pilot, and State Governor John C. Adams. Mrs. Ellen Godfrey, who sent a cover for this to the P. M. last February, received it back marked "First cover received for this flight", and with 15 separate signatures on it! Covers were flown to Pueblo, as is the Colorado custom, and were there postmarked Nov. 11, 3.30 P. M. With them were flown specially cacheted covers from Antonito which sent its mail via special plane to Alamosa as part of the affair. Antonito dedicated last year, but had no cachet. 20 lbs. from there.

Tallahassee, Fla., also used the 11th and 12th, and produced a bright cerise cachet, with facsimile signatures.Kenneth Shepard, son of the Menlo Park P. M., says that there was no flight in connection with the Jubilee cachet, but that the backstamp of Metuchen, a town 1½ miles away, is always placed on Menlo Park mail, which goes there via bus en route.

Stillwater, Okla., still no date, but will have cachet. Covers may go to John W. Covers sent to Mr. Krimm, as stated then, or to Mr. Stern, will doubtless receive proper attention. Dates are Dec. 9-14, and covers should be in the 7th. "FERRER" DILIGENCIAS

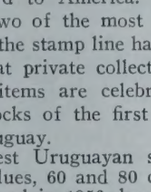
Celebrated "Pack" Blocks Purchased by a British Collector

By FRED J. MELVILLE.

It is an agreeable change to be able to record a notable accession to the store of philatelic rarities in this country from the United States. The trend of stampic gems, as with other rare things, has long been outward to America. During the last week two of the most sought-after treasures in the stamp line have been added to a great private collection in England. The items are celebrated as the "Ferrer" blocks of the first "diligencia" issue of Uruguay.

The earliest Uruguayan stamps were the three values, 60 and 80 centavos and one real, issued in 1856, known as "diligencias" from the word inscribed upon them. They were in use when the mails were still conveyed in the old-time diligences.



All three are rare stamps, ranging from £20 for the red 1 real to £50 for the blue 60 centavos. But there are deep blue prints of the 60c which fetch £75, and an indigo blue variety at £100. In addition there is a second type of the 60c blue (it has only 67 rays to the sun instead of 104) which fetches £150 to £200 per specimen. The 80c green is normally worth from £20 to £30.

The chief of the two Ferrer blocks consists of fifteen of the 80 centavos green forming three-sevenths of a full original sheet. The second is a block of four of the same denomination. Apart from these two items no other block of any of the diligencias is known. Indeed, there is only one pair recorded; this is in the Tapling collection at the British Museum, and has unfortunately been spoiled by the addition of a fictitious postmark.

Most of our expert knowledge of this issue is derived from the two Ferrer blocks, the present value of which is about £5,000 for the block of fifteen and £1,000 for the block of four. The latter has been cut from the top left corner of the sheet and still has the sheet margins at top and left.

These remarkable items were first heard of in the collection of the late Dr. Wonner, a former Consul of Uruguay, at Milan, who wrote a monograph on the stamps of that country in 1887. Later they figured in the great collection of Senor Vicente Ferrer, of Montevideo, and for the past eighteen years have been the chief gems in the collection of Mr. Charles Lathrop Pack, of Lakewood, New Jersey, one of the greatest collectors of our time. Mr. Pack has devoted his later life to forest conservation in America, and since the war to re-afforestation in Europe. His life-long hobby has been stamp-collecting and his collections fill some hundreds of volumes.—London Daily Telegraph.

Filatelic Oddities

By SEVARD.

The Red Cross slogans appeared on schedule time, November 11th, and we have a host of towns still to hear from. The Red Cross slogan is the preparatory barrage and you must be prepared to send in your dues before November 30th. Then you can start to MAIL EARLY FOR CHRISTMAS. In order to make Christmas a surprise, we suggest buying your wife a few stocks, so that at Christmas, you both can have a real surprise.

The most recent collecting craze has hit the side of the cigarette package, that little oblong piece that tells the factory number, the state district and the circular 20, or 16, or 50, or whatever number the package contains. A much better collection is the automobile trade mark found on the radiators of the cars. These little enameled pieces look well mounted on velvet. The Lafayette cameo, or the Ambassador, the Bay State, the Rambler, the Ace, the Mitchell, the Saxon, the Chalmers, the E. M. F., trade plates are harbingers of many a jaunty ride out in the country, some few years back.

Penalty envelopes are about as uncollectible as anything we know on, as Shakespeare wonts to say. There really is nothing about them that merits attention. The customary penalty envelope has on it PENALTY FOR PRIVATE USE TO AVOID PAYMENT OF POSTAGE, $300, in the upper right hand corner. This type is varied as to the split in the two lines usually taken for its setting. Most of them end the first line at TO. There are some which have Official Business Penalty for Private Use $300. Others have a single line PENALTY TO AVOID PAYMENT OF POSTAGE $300. Or even less, PENALTY FOR PRIVATE USE, $300. The best ones are those which quote the entire law on penalty envelopes, and they are limited to Referees in Bankruptcies usually. The only time we get down to brass tacks is in insolvencies and bankruptcies anyway.

The Post Office Department in some cases numbers its penalty envelopes according to a size arrangement, as No. 13, No. 6, No. 4, which sizes do not agree with government stamped envelope sizes. Penalty Post Cards also exist. Whether to class these as postal stationery or penalty envelopes has always been a bug-a-boo with us collectors. Who else collects them?

DO NOT CONFUSE THE PENALTIES WITH WHAT IS KNOWN AS A CONGRESSIONAL WHICH IS THE FRANK ENVELOPE USED BY M. C.'S WITH THEIR FACSIMILE SIGNATURE IN THE UPPER RIGHT HAND CORNERS. THESE ARE SEPARATE, HISTORICALLY INTERESTING AND A WONDERFUL COLLECTION IF ENTIRELY COMPLETE.

Formerly all penalty envelopes were canceled. Today, some are, and some aren't. The tendency in Washington is not to cancel them. This makes them even less interesting and that's why we scarcely even have mentioned penalty envelopes here.

We note again the 1893 World's Fair Tickets in the auctions. They don't say whether or not the Handel ticket is there for the Temple of Music. That is the scarce one. We haven't seen the Pan-American's offered, or those wonderful first day covers from Buffalo, which reminds us that we have a Jamestown opening day cover. The Panama-Pacific opening day covers are often seen.

And we saw an advertisement listing the Lincoln 1909 stamp as being a first day when canceled Feb. 12, 1909. That is entirely wrong in fact, but correct in fancy. We don't want to crab anyone's sales, but philatelic truth will out. Just the same, the Feb. 12, 1909 cancel on the Lincoln stamp is a fine cover to own.

NOW THAT THE GOVERNMENT IS PUTTING IN THE CASSAVA FLAVOR IN THE STAMP GUM, WE EXPECT TO SEE A SPECIALIZED COLLECTION OF GUM FLAVORS. JUDGES AT COMING EXHIBITIONS WILL HAVE TO LICK EACH STAMP TO AWARD PRIZES, AND WE SUGGEST THAT ANY SUCH COLLECTION SHOULD COME IN BLOCKS OF ONE HUNDRED SO THAT ANY EXHIBITOR WILL BE ABLE TO EXHIBIT MORE THAN ONCE.

We received a beautiful stamp auction catalog last week, covered by a 9c frank. This is the box type C frank with period after CTS, and is not a meter nor a Standard permit. But the point is that 9c permits are very, very rare. It is our first one since 1921.

We almost threw that darn Federalsburg permit in the waste basket when we thought of checking up Herman Toaspirin's trade mark, the skyline of New York. Dear Herman, there are two more buildings now.

And when our meter and permit collection is finished, another building will be necessary.

OUR NEWFOUNDLAND LETTER

Reply to "A. C. T."—the modern "Capt. Kidd."

My Poor Man:

I am sorry for you, because you are so blind that you cannot see the cause of your dimmed sight. It is very evident that you have been hunting for illustrations of the U. S. A. stamps in Scott's catalogue! That would be a treasure worth finding.

As for the Nfld. "mosquito" it is known by the sense of touch rather than by sight. Its natural abode is along the rivers where the tourists come to hunt for salmon. The mosquito and the salmon go together, and the tourists cannot expect one without the other. The "bite" of the one fully compensates for the "sting" of the other. My advice to you is—come and see for yourself, and you need never again say, "I am told."

When we issue another set of stamps we shall try to picture a "Whale Factory", and then though you may be too blind to see the whale you can hunt for the smell of it.

Yours in sympathy,
REV. BUTLER.

lists contain an item not heretofore reported. A survey of the flat plates will be attempted as soon as the number of returns is deemed sufficient to be of value.

In checking over an air mail report from Robert K. Fessler, I discovered that a block of 31 combinations which should have appeared under group II in the issue of November 4, were inadvertently left out. Here they are: center 19597, borders 670-671-672-673; center 19598, borders same as above; center 19608, borders 670-671-672; centers 19611-616-617-618-619 with borders 670-671-672-673. No copies from borders 640-641-642-643 have been found with any center plate in group II.

From A. F. Gegenheimer comes a very interesting specimen of the 1c Huguenot-Walloon for examination. The masts on the ship have been extended 3/5mm and 2/5mm respectively, and give a half-mast appearance to the flags. Careful inspection under a powerful glass fails to disclose whether this is a printing or plate variety, but in either case it is hardly due to a mere accident. Here is what our Washington correspondent has to say concerning the oddity: "The Huguenot is a sticker. It's one of two things I'll bet—either a smudge, i.e., the ink wiped vertically to extend the masts, or someone has been doing some fancy work." Mr. Southgate continues: "Being a stamp on the right side of the guide line it is possible to examine all twelve proofs of the 1 cent. I did this but could not find a single one of them. That doesn't mean that it is not there, but I did examine carefully once. If it is not on the proof it is a printing variety, presumably. It is evidently no accidental scratch on the plate as it is very difficult to cut the hardened steel plate, even with an engraver's tool." Look over your specimens carefully and see if you can find one along the right hand side of the vertical guide line. If you do, please let us know, and be sure and give the Plate Number, if possible. The extension is quite plain and may easily be seen without the aid of a glass.

5c Air Mail Notes. Walter W. Hopkinson sends for inspection a block from center plate 19608 on which the aeroplane on the 85th stamp appears to have grown larger wings. Whether this is due to defective printing or a plate defect I do not know but will have a further report to make after the proof is examined. F. J. Stillman also reports minor markings on several combinations.

We acknowledge with thanks letters on many subjects and long lists of plate numbers and air mail combinations from the following: Mrs. J. W. Lundy (2), C. A. Forster, Robert K. Fessler, Thomas H. Hawk (specimens), George Griffin, Sam T. Vary, F. J. Stillman, L. D. Miller and L. O. Dutcher, who also includes a very interesting article on the Sullivan stamp.

oreign New Issues

PERCY C. SMITH, Editor,
Lexington, Mass.

Information in regard to new issues and va- ies will be welcome. If reply be necessary, lose self-addressed stamped envelope.)

Mr. R. Roberts reports the new issues ed below:

Germany.—The new Charity stamps 1929 are the 5pf+2pf green, yellow l vermilion; 8+4pf slate, orange and milion; 15+5pf carmine, orange and ck; 25+10pf indigo, orange and ver- ion; 50+40pf brown, orange and ver- ion. The type is similar to the last ıe with the different values varying device on the shield.

Azores.—Economist Stamp Co. re- t the appearance of the 25c, Ceres e, perf. 11½, surcharged "10c", "12c", c", and "20c" respectively. The over- nt is in black as before.

Libia.—Copies of the 1L25c blue and ramarine, design A46, and the 10c blue cial delivery stamp, type SD4, have n received from the Economist Stamp , with the surcharge "Libia" in black.

Mexico.—Whitfield King & Co. send chronicle three values of Child Wel- e stamps all in the same design with inscription "Correos-Mexico proteja a INFANCIA" of three lines at the top l "HAGA PATRIA" at the bottom. Val- and colors are 1c violet, 2c grey- wn, and 5c chocolate. Also two more ues of the air mail type AP3 have n issued, viz.: 10c violet and 30c grey.

Japan.—Regarding the Ise Shrine uilding Commemorative illustrated ve there are two values, 1½s purple l 3s carmine. They are line engraved l printed in sheets of 100 unwater- rked, perf. 12½. They were issued commemorate the fifty-eighth recon- uction of the sacred shrine of Ise. is Shrine is an emblem of the ancient into religion of Japan, and the Shrine built to contain the sacred mirror, the noval of which from the old Shrine is ceremony of the greatest importance, uiring in this service, many priests in rgeous raiment, garbed specially for ceremony, and many umbrellas. Two cial pictorial post cards are also is- d, one bearing a photograph of the rance to the Outer Shrine and by the e, the entrance to the Inner Shrine. e other post card is a colored paint- depicting the solemn procession of above mentioned ceremony proceeding ween the giant Cedars of Ise.

Japan has also issued a new air mail ies of a small type line engraved, watermarked horizontal wavy lines. The values are 8½s red-brown, 16½s yellow-green, 18s ultramarine, and 33s grey.

Newfoundland.—Two more values of the J. Dickinson & Co. printing have appeared, the 5c grey and 10c purple. In the Locomotive type the design is very similar to the previous one, but the engraving is not so clear. An easy quick method of telling is that there are about ten vertical lines of shading underneath the letters "NDL" of "NEWFOUNDLAND" and "TA" of "POSTAGE" in the new printing, whereas in the old Whitehead Morris printing there are not these vertical lines in this position. The shade is more of a greenish slate.

In the 10c War Memorial St. John's the inner frame line at the top is less heavily shaded and some of the clouds in the sky have been erased, especially on the right, and there is no stop after St. John's in the lettering "WAR MEMORIAL, ST. JOHN'S."

Nigeria.—New shades of the 4p on pale lemon paper, and 1sh dull gray-black on yellow-green paper, script watermark, are reported.

Northern Rhodesia.—A new value in the current series is at hand. The 3sh in indigo and purple, perf. 12½, is the denomination.

West Australia. — The 1½p rose, Centenary stamps forecasted some time ago, has been issued on unwatermarked paper, perf. 11. The stamp is a peculiar medley of ancient and modern, it has the classical design of the black swan (the emblem of West Australia) in an oval, similar to the old 1sh stamp except that the swan instead of floating on the water is flotant, in the heraldic sense. The inscription "Centenary of Western Australia" is in an oval surrounding the swan. This again is in a poor sort of a frame with the date "1829" in left and "1929" in the right corner, and a peculiar floriate device in the lower corners. Outside this is a frame of horizontal lines engraved in which the lettering "Australia" at the top and "Postage" at each side, value tablet in a sort of shield at each lower corner, form a very poor and weak outer frame to a beautiful centre. It has an unfinished appearance and would have been greatly improved if the shading on the outside frame had been deeply crossed hatched.

varian territory), which has attained universal celebrity owing to the Passion Plays. They will again take place in 1930, and attract countless visitors from all parts of the Christian world.

Lastly, but not leastly, the 2sch stamp, steel-green, deserves mention, giving a fine view of the world-renowned St. Stephen's Cathedral.

In creating this new set of postage stamps the leading thought has been to again arouse interest in little Austria by making the world acquainted with her beauty spots. Possibly the data given may recall to many a traveller's mind pleasant days spent in one or the other of the above international tourists' resorts.

Belgium. — The government has again overprinted in red a number of the current postage stamps with the well-known winged railroad wheel, indicating that the stamps are intended to be used as official stamps in connection with the railroad service. The new set comprises the following values: 5c slate, 10c olive, 35c dark green.

Great Britain.—The present head of the city of London, the Lord Mayor, is no less a person than Sir William Waterlow, the proprietor of the famous printing establishment of Waterlow & Sons. According to a French philatelic paper Sir William in the capacity of Lord Chief Justice accompanied last year's Lord Mayor on the occasion of the opening of the last London stamp exhibition, where he also delivered a lecture on "The Gumming of Stamps," which was much commented upon.

Italy.—From Oct. 12 to Oct. 20, a stamp exhibition was held at Turin. Mail matter posted on that occasion received a cachet with the following legend: Esposizione Filatelica Nazionale, Torino. (National Philatelic Exhibition, Turin.)

The slate-colored 10 Lire stamp of the pictorial set commemorating the XIV Centenary of the Abbey of Monte Cassino has appeared in the meantime. In the centre of the stamp, which has been recess-printed by the Habilimento Poligrafico per l'Amministrazione dello Stato on white, unwatermarked paper is depicted St. Benedict of Nursia, the founder of the order of the Benedictines, the figure of the Saint having been copied from an old, precious mosaic that is still in the possession of the Abbey. Around St. Benedict are grouped the Latin legends: "Ora et Labora" or Work and Pray, and "Ejus in obitu nostro praesentia muniamur" or May his presence protect us when we depart this life.

The excess which the Monte Cassino stamps are being sold at, will be handed over to a committee which contemplates holding shortly an exhibition at Monte Cassino with a view to preserving the historically interesting Abbey for future generations.

Sweden.—The appearance of the 45 ore stamp with the profile of King Gustav's head is to be recorded. The color is dark red-brown and the perforation 10 vertically. Recess-printing on white paper.

Great Collection of Egypt

However regrettable it may be that collections of front rank importance should be sold and sent abroad, there is a double source of satisfaction in the destiny of Mr. A. S. Mackenzie Low's wonderful collection of Egypt. This was a collection into which its owner put his heart and soul over the greater part of his life. It must be nearly a quarter of a century since we first enthused with Mr. Low then, as we were, in early youth, over the richly filled pages of his Egyptian collection.

Addition to a Royal Collection

All through the years since then, Egypt and Mackenzie Low have been almost synonymous, each called up memories of the other. It is scarcely possible that Mr. Low handed over his collection to the auctioneer (Mr. H. R. Harmer) without poignant sense of parting with a life-long friend, but it will not be without some consolation that the great collection has gone intact to enrich the collection of the King of Egypt, Fuad I. The labours of a patient and enduring enthusiasm will thus not be scattered to the four corners of the collecting world, but will go where they may well be appreciated at their greatest worth, both in the historical and philatelic sense.

"Ferrer" Blocks Come to England

Some of the most remarkable rarities of Uruguay have been acquired by a British collector from the famous collection of Mr. Charles Lathrop Pack. These include the celebrated "Ferrer" blocks of the "diligencias," said to be the only known blocks of these stamps. The larger one consists of fifteen of the 80 centavos green from the right side of a sheet of 35, with margins at top and side. It has been the chief factor and principle evidence in the plating of this issue.

The second block is one of four from the bottom right corner of the sheet with corner margins; this overlaps the larger block, and determines with certainty eighteen out of the 35 positions. We understand that the two famous blocks will be exhibited at a meeting of the Junior Philatelic Society, November 15.

Afghanistan Again

Afghanistan is in the soup, or at least in the newspapers again, and the philatelic mysteries of an Afghan year may take some unraveling. Four Kings have ruled over Kabul in a twelvemonth, but it is a comforting reflection for philatelists that the powers that be or have been or might have been were too occupied in knocking nails into one another and inventing novelties of torture to bother about novelties in the stamp line.

French Post Offices

The French Touring Club, which has taken a good deal of interest in trying to get scenic stamps for France, is now trying to get the French post offices to tidy themselves up. The club is offering a series of prizes for those post offices, all over France, which are the cleanest and best kept.

The Paris correspondent of the "Observer" thinks the idea a good one, and hopes it will attract public attention to the amazingly slovenly way in which post offices, and indeed all public administrative offices, are kept in France.

What's in a Name?

Britain is promised a visit from the Nizam of Hyderabad and his two sons next year. The Nizams have hitherto only left their State on occasions of great importance, but the present Nizam is changing this tradition.

Hyderabad is one of those States which suffered from a confusion of names in the early stamp albums and catalogues. The stamps were then classed as those of Deccan, the name of the whole Indian peninsula south of the Vindhya range of mountains, and more particularly to the table land between the Narbada and Krishna rivers.

Hyderabad is the largest and most populous of the internal Indian States, which accounts for the majority of its postage stamp issues being so plentiful on the stamp market.—Stamp Collectors Fortnightly.

characteristic dot or color mark, as far as can be found, but the following may be noted:

Design anomaly. There is an apparent omission in the line engraving of this plate. The longitudinal panel enclosing the legend "Ille Centenaire De Quebec" shows a double line vertically on the right, while on the left the line is only single. One would imagine that the engraver's original intention would be to enclose this panel the same on both sides, as to produce a symmetrical design, however—this is merely a surmise.

5c Indigo Blue—

Constant dot. A dot will be found by counting upward the balls in the right border design and this dot will be found, well defined, opposite the ninth (9th) ball in the white space to the right. Every specimen examined showed this dot to be constant and unvarying.

Constant dot—Not verified. On page 292 in the May number of the Canadian Philatelist, it is stated "A constant guide dot at bottom of P of POSTAGE in the 5c Quebec." None of the specimens examined by the writer presented this dot.

Dots not constant. 50% will show a guide dot in the P of POSTAGE. Many specimens show the unobliterated guide lines running vertically through this P. (See further notes on this.)

7c Olive-green—

Constant dot. Outward from the upper transverse line at the base of the right column, and in line with it in the white interspace, a small dot or stroke of color will be found. Or it may be defined by counting from the bottom, close to the right frame line, and the dot will appear in the white interspace between the 19th and 20th lines. Every specimen examined showed this dot with no variation.

Dots not constant. 50% showed dots in the letter P of POSTAGE.

10c Violet—

Constant line of color. Directly under the convexity of the left scroll and in the inner white space passing vertically downward from it, there appears a short stroke or line of color, well defined, and it was present on every specimen examined. This stroke or line is absent on an analogous position on the right side of the design.

Design peculiarity. There is a small pyramid of color at the centre of the upper border of the stamp, directly above the letter P of POSTAGE. This is the only variety in the set in which part of the design extends outside the frame line proper.

Dots not constant. In this denomination the dots in the pillar of the P in POSTAGE—usually found in all other varieties—are singularly absent in the 10c. This equally applies to the unobliterated guide lines.

15c Brown-orange—

Constant dot. On the left border of the stamp and inside the white line extending vertically on the right of the frame line (2) two dots will be found almost in the centre of this white line. Or they may be defined in the space bounded above by the rock, and below by the bow of the canoe.

Constant Plate or Ink defect. The base line of the left column, immediately above the upper white space of the tablet inclosing the leaf—is not printed, but shows only as a dot or line of color. This is very likely a plate or ink defect. Compare this with the right side of the design, and it will be found that this line is carried completely through to the inside of the frame line.

Dots not constant. The dots in the of POSTAGE were found to be much smaller than those of the other varieties of the series, they were also more constant appearing in about 75% of the specimens examined.

20c Dull Brown—

Constant dot. A well defined identification dot will be found immediately above the lower right scroll, in the white concave space of the lower panel. This is one of the clearest dots to define in the series.

Dots not constant. The dots in the pillar of the P in POSTAGE are present in about 50%, and guide lines are met with frequently. These dots are found in all denominations and are connected with the guide lines passing vertically through the pillar of the P, which is the center of the stamp. In all varieties — guide lines plainly visible to the naked eye, may be seen running through this direct centre of the design in many specimens.

More Newfoundland Dickinsons, 1929

By HARRY E. HUBER.

Fresh supplies of the 2c s.s. Caribou, and 3c Their Majesties, of the Publicity series, were received at St. John's, from the new contractors, Messrs. John Dickinson & Co., Ltd., by the cross-country express from Port aux Basques, on Sunday, August 25th, and issued Monday, August 26th. Inasmuch as the THREE CENTS on 6c pictorial, issued August 23 (to the extent of 100,000 copies) had sold out in two days, these supplies made unnecessary the issue of other provisionals. Had there been a delay in transit the remainder stock of the 8c of the pictorial series would doubtless have been drawn upon, and surcharged in a similar manner.

4c H.R.H. the Prince of Wales

With the second lot of the 2c and 3c Dickinson printed stamps of the Publicity series, came the first of the 4c from the new contractors. These were received on August 25th and issued on Monday, the 26th.

The small differences in the 2c and 3c stamps produced by Dickinson & Co. were described in MEKEEL'S WEEKLY of Sept. 23, 1929. In the 4c the design has been considerably changed in many important details. The head of His Highness has been made smaller; as a matter of fact, it seems to have been copied from an entirely different and more recent photograph. The uniform and decorations are changed slightly; his face is thinner, and the hair is arranged differently.

The acanthus leaf decorations in the lower corners are entirely different, and no attempt was made to reproduce the Whitehead, Morris design in this feature. It extends further up at the sides, and instead of six concentric circular ornaments, there are now five rosettes.

The three feathers at the top of the design, over the motto "Ich Dien" (I Serve), are more upright, and the left feather does not impinge on the "R" of "Four." The nose of the numeral "4", in the upper corners, is more finished than previously.

The color is a deep claret, instead of mauve; the paper is soft, and the perforation comb 13½x13½ instead of 14x14, as before.

The paper almost resembles that which Whitehead, Morris & Co., Ltd., used for the lithographed series of the Guy Tercentenary issue of August 15, 1910. The gum applied by Dickinson & Co. is flat and smooth, and the stamps do not have the same tendency to curl as the Whitehead, Morris stamps of the Publicity series, printed on a hard, almost bond, paper.

The perforation is also very much better centered, although on some of the 4c it is very rough, as if the perforating pins had become dulled, or else an attempt had been made to perforate too many sheets at a time, the result being that the small paper punchings are not cleaned from the holes.

5c Express Crossing Newfoundland

The fourth denomination of the Dickinson printing to come into use, the 5c Express Crossing Newfoundland, was received at St. John's, on Friday, Sept. 13th, and issued on the following day.

There is very little change in the appearance of the stamp. The paper, of course, is soft, and the perforation comb 13½x13½ (it was comb 14 in the Whitehead, Morris printing). The scrolls have been changed slightly, and the smoke issuing from the locomotive is more sharply defined at the bottom. The color is a bit deeper than previously.

1c Map of Newfoundland and the Labrador

Although received at St. John's in June, 1929, the 1c was not brought into use until the Whitehead, Morris stocks had been cleared from the Wholesale Dept.—which was on or about September 26th. The perforation is comb 14—in the Whitehead, Morris production it comes with two perforations, i.e., comb 14, and single line 13x13½.

Being the first denomination to be produced by the new contractors, the 1c shows that haste was evidently used in engraving the die. The lettering on the map is very indistinct, especially the names of the towns, and the capes. The color is a deeper green, and the portions representing Canada are more heavily shaded, bringing into prominence (by reason of contrast) the territory of Newfoundland, both on the Labrador as well as the island. In addition, Cape Norman has been placed correctly above Cape

COIL STAMPS

A FRIENDLY COMMENTARY ON SOME OF THE 1930 PRICINGS

By HERMANN FOCKE.

The 1930 Standard Catalogue is out, as usual the first to appear in print on this side of the Great Pond, with more than 1,800 pages of material, most probably not to the satisfaction of everybody, but nevertheless a "book of knowledge" indispensable to dealer and collector alike.

As to prices, it may be safely said, that there is, and always will be a vast difference of opinion—I myself will throw in a few remarks further on—but then, the word catalogue itself does not really imply that it is a price list, but rather an enumeration of articles of a certain kind, the word being derived from the Greek "kata—légein" verbally: counting down, or along, the line.

It must be noted, however, that the majority of new issues which appeared in the year gone by, are to be found in the Addenda comprising 16 full pages, and even they contain little that appeared in the second half of the year, so that in this respect the book cannot be considered an up-to-date catalogue, but is rather a price list to be valid in the year to come, but this would be an anomaly, because nobody can foretell what prices are to rule in the future.

What are prices anyway? The Scott Stamp Co. themselves will grant a discount from their own catalogue values, most dealers will sell at a discount of from 40 to 50%, while at auction sales one can often buy quite desirable stamps much lower, and then again a choice specimen will bring full catalogue and even more.

What strikes me, though, are some of the foot notes which belittle and even condemn a certain issue as being "unnecessary" or "speculative", and particularly the first adjective, because if the full truth were told about unnecessary stamps, we might rightfully say that about 90% of all issues for the last five or ten years belong into that class, not forgetting our own eternal commemoratives; and as to "speculative", who makes an objective speculative, certainly not the original producer offering it to the public, but rather the public itself, or those that trade in it, and in our line the blame should not be placed against the governments, issuing the stamps, but against the dealers who try to or do buy up a certain issue, to make the collector pay a fancy price for it, often for him to discover afterwards, that he has been mulcted, an experience not uncommon in these days, which will discourage him, and eventually be harmful to the hobby as a whole.

These foot notes are arbitrary, to say the least, and should not appear in a catalogue which, as stated above, is supposed to simply enumerate and describe the number of stamps issued by the Nations of the World up to the time of its appearance.

But now, just a few remarks, at random, about the prices of some stamps in the new catalogue: Why is Curacao, No. 59, mint, priced at $4.00; also Dutch Indies, No. 120, mint, at $2.00; also Suriname, No. 90, mint, at $2.50? They are all of the same face value of $1 and now in issue.

Danish West Indies, Nos. 52, 54 and 56/58 are each priced at $2.00 in used condition. Considering that the number of these stamps sent to St. Thomas amounted to only 300 each, of which about 90% went into the hands of dealers and collectors in mint condition, does not the price of $2 appear preposterously low for the used copies? How many of these exist genuinely used before April 30, 1917, the day when the Islands became property of the U. S.? Most copies which I have seen bear fake cancellations applied during the American administration.

Any one of these five stamps with a clear St. Thomas cancellation, and with date prior to April 30, 1917, is a great rarity, worth many times the catalogue price.

Many of the British West Indian stamps, though declared obsolete, can still be bought at face in some of the smaller places, and their quotations are too high—today!

The prices for most of the issues of Germany during the inflation period of 1922-23 are ridiculously low for the postally used varieties. Try and buy them at Scott's stores or anywhere else, and see how many can be supplied.

Why do we keep Cayman Islands, No. 30a, in the catalogue up to this day, when it is well known that this stamp was never intended nor even admitted for postage? Scott prices it at $60.00 used; have they ever had or seen the stamp genuinely used?

Papua, No. 83, is raised to $2.00; why? I have stated repeatedly that this stamp is still, or again, in issue and is, therefore, priced much too high.

Greece, No. 213, is still current and at the present rate of exchange is worth just 33c; is not $5.00 a little high for this stamp?

Mexico, Nos. 667 to 670, are unduly low priced in used condition; I have seen many mint copies, but mighty few used ones; the stamps were in issue for a very short time and used copies are quite scarce; can they actually be supplied at Scott's prices? If so, tell me where, and I should like to put a few away for a nice profit-taking.

But after all, the catalogue is a great piece of work on which the makers deserve our congratulations and thanks.

HOW MANY WERE ISSUED?

The November issue of WASHINGTON STAMP NEWS contained a list of the quantities issued of all twentieth century United States commemorative stamps.

If you have never seen a copy of WASHINGTON STAMP NEWS, the November issue is yours for the asking, free.

If you have seen a copy but have not subscribed, the November issue will be sent you upon receipt of $1.00 for a year's subscripteion.

Fancy Bits of Private Coils

Long before plate numbers, stars, imprints, center lines and paste-ups had any general recognition a New York collector accumulated, rather than collected, quite a good lot of such items. Ten or twelve years ago we bought them and tucked them away. To-day they make a nice little lot. We have seen so few of them on the market we believe that list prices very much under rate their scarcity. However, we have accepted the new Stanley Gibbons, Inc., prices for these out-of-the-way varieties.

Most of these are U. S. Auto Vending, types II and III, with a few Shermacks and Mailometers. Almost all are of the issues 1902 to 1908. Approval selections to your want list, or we'll make up a representative lot.

Bureau Prints

H. M. SOUTHGATE, Editor,
5800 Conn. Ave., Chevy Chase, Md.

Here is a list of the Standard or B11 Bureau Precancels that are to be anticipated if not already found. Being a month or more behind in checking the new items reported in the press, some of the varieties listed have doubtless been listed as found.

It is the writer's purpose to list as far as practicable the Standard type overprints replacing the old type as ordered. Occasionally there will be a slip, an old type stereotype precanceling roll being used altho the new type plate may be available and possibly used for some of the printing. Sometimes a cancellation may show up. So this list must not be taken as gospel but rather for what it purports to be, an intelligent guess. Questionable items continually show up. For example, Girard 1c ordinary may come out with the Standard overprint or possibly the old type. In general, where doubt exists no listing will be given.

To condense the list as far as practicable, catalogue numbers are omitted, the numeral of value followed by Ord. (ordinary) or Coil to designate the class of stamp being all that should be necessary for identification of any item.

It is hoped that this list will be of use to collectors in locating new varieties promptly.

HAITIAN NEW ISSUES

By PERCY C. SMITH.

Two very attractive new issues have recently been placed on sale in this island country. The air mail issue is one of two values on order. The 50c dark violet, illustrated above, was placed on sale November 4th last, and the other value will be the 1g in light blue and is expected to appear about December 1st. The 10c red commemorative, with the portrait of "Borno President", was issued at the same time as the air mail stamp. Both are the work of the American Bank Note Co.

Washington Letter

By PHILIP H. WARD, JR.,
Box 2175, Middle City Sta., Phila., Pa.

(U. S. oddities and varieties will be noted in this department. If reply be necessary, enclose self-addressed stamped envelope.)

1857, 12c "Around the Horn"

During the fifty's and early sixty's, the New York post office used a circular postmark applied in black, giving the name of the town, with the month and day, in addition to a small circular grid within the larger circle. This has always been considered a postmark used on mail going west "Around the Horn." We have always assumed this to be the case, but personally, I have never read nor seen any note of importance that would confirm such information. Nevertheless, it is a scarce marking and is usually found on covers from New York to San Francisco or other California destinations. It is quite common on the 10-cent, which is the usual denomination upon which it is found and is frequently seen on the 1-cent and 3-cent. I have recently been shown a cover addressed to the West containing a magnificent copy of the 12-cent, tied to the envelope with such a postmark. This is the first time that the 12-cent has been so noted.

2c New Gumming

Remarks have been made on several occasions relative to the 2-cent stamps now being produced by the process whereby they are gummed after having first been printed and dried. Numerous quantities have been sent to the large offices, and it is understood that they are proving much more satisfactory to the large mail users. It is hoped and believed that these new stamps will overcome many of the troubles that have been experienced with the rotary produ in the past. No doubt, the other denominations will follow in short orde Quite possibly, the new Air Mail stam produced by the rotary press will be a early variety printed and gummed in th manner.

Metered Mail

In further reference to remarks r garding "metered mail", Mr. J. Lawren Jones, Jr., sends an interesting cove showing the square type, in which tw 6-cent and one 20-cent have been in pressed upon a piece of gummed pap and stuck to the envelope. The comm nication was on a registered letter fro New York, and the postal clerk cancell each individual stamp.

We wish to thank Messrs. I. Levi E. L. Randall, Arthur King and J. Mengelson for notes of interest.

NEW SEASON APPROVAL BOOKS

During the summer I have remade all my approval books, and have combined in them many important purchases made during the past year.

The following is a list of new books that are now ready. In general these contain stamps from a few cents to some twenty dollars each. A list of my books of rare stamps will be issued later on.

Prices will be found very moderate, as a rule 35 to 50 per cent below catalogue quotations, and all these priced on this basis of the 1929 catalogue.

NEW DOMINICANS, 1930

A new series of postage stamps is in preparation by the Dominican Republic, and as the Frontiers Treaty commemorative series will soon be exhausting, it may be expected that they will be issued during December, or very early in 1930. At last word (October), the stamps had been printed.

The series will be of five denominations, ½c, 1c, 2c, 5c and 10c, and show the church of San Ignacio de Loyola, at Santo Domingo City, occupied in the early days by the Jesuits, but at present by the offices of Secretary of State, of Finance and Commerce, and other departments of the government.

In the convent adjoining the church, the Reverend Friars de la Compania de Jesus operated the famous college in which were granted University degrees, by virtue of a Bull of Pope Benedict XIV. The buildings were constructed of cut stone in the early days of the 18th century, the principal funds being donated by Don Jeronimo de Quezada, Alderman of the city. At the request of King Charles III, Pope Clement XIV abolished the order, and the friars were exiled from the island, and their college discontinued.

WARD-MELVILLE

It is very seldom that a typographical error appears in the WEEKLY, but there was one last week that we greatly regret and now make amends for as far as possible. The Major Henry article on page one last week was not written by Philip H. Ward, Jr., but by Fred. J. Melville. Mr. Jewett magnanimously assumes responsibility for the mistake. The fact that so few notices of this character appear in the WEEKLY makes the efficiency of our Portland office stand out with all the greater lustre. Our apologies to Mr. Melville will be gladly accepted for he himself is a newspaper man as well as a kind-hearted philatelist.

HONDURAS PROVISIONALS

NEW YORK, Nov. 30.

It is reported that a large number of the current 6 centavos stamp in blue has been stolen, and that the balance on hand had to be overprinted with something to distinguish them from the stolen stamps. For convenience's sake the stamps have been surcharged diagonally in red "1929 á 1930," but let us hope that these atrocities will not be kept in use all during the coming year. I have received so far three letters, and on each there was a different variety; (a) the stamp in light blue color, the surcharge reading downward from left to right; (b) the dark blue variety with surcharge reading up from left to right; and (c) the dark stamp with surcharge inverted reading down from right to left, all diagonally, as stated above.

SUBURBAN CLUB NOTES

The Suburban Club has been a believer in inter-club visits, but the movement has been slow in getting started so far as Boston is concerned. It was not until Mr. Rogers of the Boston Tercentenary committee addressed the B. P. S. that the movement really took form. I was present as chairman of the Suburban Club convention committee, and at our next meeting, the B. P. S. was formally invited to visit with us Nov. 21.

On the same evening we had an exhibition of U. S. envelopes by S. G. Bixby followed by an auction. At our next meeting we shall have our annual donation auction, the entire proceeds to be used in providing an entertainment at our Dec. 19 Christmas party. Last year 121 were present.

THE NEW 5c NEWFOUNDLAN

NEW YORK, Nov. 30.

Of the six values of the publicity se printed by John Dickinson & Co., whic have been received so far, the 5c is th most difficult to distinguish from th stamp, printed by Whitehead-Morri Ltd., the color being practically the sam greenish-gray shade, and only with th assistance of a magnifying glass can on discover the many minor variations o the two stamps.

The most noticeable difference, in m opinion, is the lighter appearance of th center or vignette of the new stamp, be cause the clouds have been omitted an the shading of the hills is far less pro nounced than on the stamp of the firs issue. This can be easily seen, even with out a glass, when the two stamps ar placed side by side.

With the magnifying glass the follow ing most conspicuous variations betwee (a) (the Whitehead-Morris stamp) an (b) (the Dickinson stamp) will be read ily discovered:

To the right of the engine's boile there will be seen in (a) two pine tree at the margin of the picture, and to th left of these there are two smaller tree between what appear to be three boulder or perhaps shrubs; in (b) there are th two large trees and only one solid clum of bushes.

The space between the first and secon coach is clearly shown in (b) but hard ly visible in (a); the driving rod of th engine between the first and second driv ing wheels is drawn in one dark line i (a), while in (b) there are two color less lines, and there is also a cloud o steam from the piston, which is not s pronounced in (a).

The bar or rod, holding the two smal pilot wheels, extends clearly across th second of these wheels in (a), while i (b) it only touches the flange or rim o the wheel.

The scrolls and other ornaments sho a number of varieties too difficult t describe.

Editorial

A READER in Boston asks if the post office department has decided to issue a commemorative stamp to celebrate the great occasion in Boston, in 1930, saying that he is particularly anxious to know for "a special reason." According to our records, the announcement was made on September 25, 1929, at Washington, that the question of "a new postage stamp to commemorate the founding of the Massachusetts Bay Society some three hundred years ago at Boston, Mass., is under consideration by postal officials." At the same time, the statement was made that when he considers subjects for special stamps next year, the postmaster general will "keep in mind the importance of this latest application for a special stamp." Nothing further can be said at this time, as the status quo of the question is embraced in the foregoing quotations.

MR. HAMPTON R. LEE, Charleston, S. C., writes to say that on October 4, 1929, the post office department announced that a special daily air mail service was authorized, with Atlanta, Georgia, as its base, as a consequence of the impairment of the land service by the floods in Georgia and South Carolina. Accumulated mail could not be moved until the waters receded and the mail was to be handled by plane for some days or until the usual service could be restored. We heard of this stroke of enterprise on the part of the postal authorities, and now that Mr. Lee recalls it to mind, we ask with him, if any special markings were on the mail that was collected by the planes.

EVERY now and then a problem involving foreign exchange is referred to us that requires that we have recourse to the latest table of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York for the desired information. Some time ago, when he was in Shanghai, Mr. Theodore Siddall described the complexities of the Chinese coinage systems, and now a correspondent asks for a compilation that will help him in his operations, at present. We learn that there are eight standards applying in that country, and we list them, with the values in cents of our money: Yuan dollar, 39.38; Mexican dollar, 39.5; Tientsin or Peiyang dollar, 39.7; Hong Kong dollar, 42.53; Shanghai tael, 54.87; Hankow tael, 56.21; Chefoo tael, 57.27; and Tientsin tael, 57.87.

OCCASIONAL complaints come to us of the removal of stamps from mail addressed to collectors, evidently while it is in transit. Almost from the beginning of philatelic time, this grave nuisance has been a source of loss and irritation; and as early as in the '60's, references to it have appeared in the stamp papers. Recently, while complaints have come, yet they are in smaller number than previously. The post office department has been coping with this evil with some success and periodically, the authorities call attention to this form of thievery. The latest notice says that all employees of the postal service should be on the alert to scotch the practice of the "surreptitious removal of stamps from matter in the mails" since there is a penalty for indulging in it.

NEWS from Mexico says that the operation of postal air lines has been abandoned by the government and placed in the hands of private contractors. There are six or more air lines covering Mexico that are conducted by private companies; and the air service is being developed there much in the manner that is being employed here.

MR. W. P. BURKHIMER, Wilmington, North Carolina, writes: "The Chamber of Commerce of Wilmington, N. C., is trying to get a special cancellation for the opening day, December 10th, of its twin bridges over the Cape Fear River. If this special cancellation is secured, it will be used on the opening day. If the present idea is adopted, the cancellation will show a picture of one of the spans of the bridges, with date and the name of Wilmington, N. C. These bridges have been erected at a cost of $1,250,000. The opening will be celebrated with speeches by the governor of this state and others."

A LETTER from Mr. M. S. Dangerfield, New York, agrees in its statements with the opinion expressed by an English writer that the danger of cultivating the by-paths of collecting lies in the tendency to neglect the stamps, themselves. It is easier to wander in the lanes along the road than to travel on the highway, according to our correspondent, who would have us attend to the stamps themselves rather than their suggestions. There is no question but it is more advisable to study stamps themselves than to follow their off-shoots, if the scientific advancement of philately is the great end, but in a practical way, the collector of postal markings, records and other data has weight. He is within the confines of philately and is always in the position of a convert to "pure collecting." Too, the old slogan of individual independence in collecting is not to be repudiated. Withal, the amplification of the collecting field means more followers who are aware of the stamp as a fundamental proposition on which they build their fancies.

THE Canadian post office department in announcing the inauguration of a new air mail route about December 20, 1929, between Oskelaneo, Quebec, and Chibougamau, Quebec, describes the manner in which first-day covers may be had. There is a constant demand for this information as there is always someone just joining our family circle who is ignorant of our customs. We quote: "If you are interested in air mail covers and are anxious to secure the special cachets, it would be advisable to prepare your covers at the earliest possible moment and forward them under cover to the District Superintendent of the Postal Service at Quebec, with the request that they be held until this air mail flight takes place. All covers handled in this manner must bear the necessary Canadian postage at the air mail rate or should be accompanied by a Money Order covering the correct amount of postage. Covers should be addressed to the actual place of destination:—for instance, a resident of Reading, Pa., desiring to send a letter to himself by the first flight between Oskelaneo and Chibougamau, should address such letter to himself at Reading and not to the post office at Chibougamau, being careful to mark it, 'Via Air Mail, Oskelaneo-Chibougamau.' The letter should then be forwarded under cover to the District Superintendent of Postal Service at Quebec for transmission by the flight in question." This scheme is typical of that which applies to first flight covers and with revision may be adapted to use. As for the Canadian flight mentioned, there seems to be a joker in the regulations, as we read: "However, these special cachets will be used only on such covers as are sent to the District Superintendent of Postal Service at Quebec, P. Q., bearing Canadian postage at the air mail rate, which is 5c the first ounce and 10c for each succeeding ounce or fraction thereof."

THE Scientific Crime Detection Laboratory in Affiliation with Northwestern University, Evanston, Illinois, will open February 1, 1930, at 155 E. Ohio Street, Chicago. This will be the first institution of its kind to be established and the director is Col. Calvin H. Goddard of New York and Washington, the ballistics (the science, etc., of projectiles) expert, and among the branches in the course of study will be forged stamps and forged postmarks by which "criminals establish false alibis." While there is no philatelic significance in the description of these "studies," yet it is something to know that the stamp and postmark are recognized in the field of penology.

Air Mail News

DONALD E. DICKASON, Editor,
Wooster, Ohio

(Coöperators will find their names listed each week. If a reply be necessary, enclose a self-addressed stamped envelope.)

A priced catalog of the recent Lissiuk sale of air mail stamps and covers makes interesting reading. I can't give many details here, but a few high spots may prove of interest. Prices were quite spotty—good on certain items, very good on some, and quite low on others. If a hasty examination gives me accurate results, I should say that the general prices for foreign covers were somewhat better than those for U. S., on a catalog comparison basis. There is no doubt at all that interest in foreign flown covers is increasing by leaps and bounds, led on by the FAM's, foreign air mail stamps, Zeppelin flights, etc., all of which add additional contacts with aerophilatelic affairs outside our own country. The new Berkshire catalog, of course, will increase still further this interest, and is doubtless already affecting it in anticipation.

The Ile de France surcharged stamp, the 90c on cover, brought $52.50, as compared with a $30.00 catalog for a mint copy. The 1f50c surcharged brought $175.00 on a pilot signed cover, compared to $90.00 catalog!The 1928 Graf Zeppelin dropped over Washington brought $40.Newfoundland Pinedo covers sold for $131, $151, and $135 respectively. The Chile 3P on 5c mint sold for $8.25, and the 6P on 10c for $24.50, both well over catalog.The first Peru stamp went at $12.50.The Panama 25c inverted overprint brought $15.00.A collection of 292 Canadian semi-official stamps in pairs, blocks, etc., was sold for $200.00.

I very much wish that readers in foreign countries would do a little better in the way of advance information of coming events. Sources of such information are few and unreliable at best. I should appreciate both for myself and for all our readers your efforts in our behalf, if anything of interest is coming in your part of the world. Incidentally, I should be only too glad to pay any reasonable charge to those of you who will mail me personally a few covers by such new first or special flights with which you may be in contact.

A preliminary agreement has been reached for air mail service between Egypt and South Africa, stops at Alexandria, Khartoum, Kisumu, Ndola, Johannesburg, and Cape Town.Guatemala City and Flores, Guatemala, were scheduled for a new service about Dec. 1, word of which came too late for publication, however.The recent "Bluenose" flight in Newfoundland seems to be still stirring up quite a bit of interest. Took place July 27th last, and was an official government dispatch by private plane from Harbour Grace, St. John's to North Sidney, and made in just over 4 hours the distance which usually takes 36 hours for mail to cover.

Our thanks are due to the Hon. W. Irving Glover for his special letter announcing the addition of St. Petersburg, Fla., to CAM 25 Dec. 14th. This letter arrived just in time to make last week's Stop Press notes, which doubtless enabled a lot of you to get in who would otherwise have missed out on this.Major C. M. Lopez tells me that he understands that just 28 covers went from St. Kitts to Antigua on the FAM extension. Guess I'm open to congratulations on that one. Just looked in my collection, and I find one lone copy there!

You may recall that the Post Office announcement of the Chile-Argentina extension for Route 9 specifically stated that mail for Uruguay would be accepted for the first dispatch. My covers have just returned, having the usual Argentine backstamp of the 14th, and that of Montevideo the 16th.J. B. Jackson very kindly sends me a copy of the Nov. 1 Ford News, which gives a full account of the Edison celebration, and shows a picture of the now famous Greenfield Post Office.

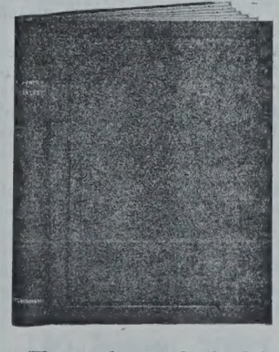
BLANK LOOSE LEAF ALBUMS

The question of what album to get is one that many collectors find most difficult to decide.

We are convinced that a blank loose leaf album is the best solution of their difficulty in 95 out of every 100 cases. These vary in prices from about $2.00 to $15.00, according to the binding and quality of the paper employed, etc.



We have had specially made for us an album in the cheap price range called

"THE JUNIOR SPECIALIST"

This is a high grade spring back binder of convenient size and neat appearance, handsomely bound in dark blue morocco-grained cloth, tastefully embossed and lettered in gold. The album comes complete with 50 or 75 quadrille ruled pages, size 10¼ by 8¾ inches. The leaves can be had linen-hinged or fluted.

The linen-hinged leaves lie perfectly flat when the album is opened and are well worth the extra cost.

Album complete with 50 fluted leaves	$1.99
Album complete with 75 fluted leaves	2.34
Album complete with 50 linen hinged leaves	2.99
Album complete with 75 linen hinged leaves	3.89
Binder only	1.30
Fluted leaves per 100	1.40
Linen-hinged leaves per 100	3.60

Postage extra—shipping wt. 3 lbs.

We can also supply the Oriel albums, ranging in price from $5.95 to $15.00. Further particulars on application.

Epirus

This is the name sometimes given to the southwest portion of the Turkish province of Janina (lower Albania) and it is philatelically famed from the fact that a series of stamps were issued here, under the authority of a provisional government, during a rebellion against the Albanian government in 1914. Later other stamps, which have a better standing, were issued for this district including a number issued by the Greek authorities during the military occupation and subsequent annexation of Epirus. Thus history has again repeated itself, for in ancient times Epirus was a country of Greece and its original inhabitants were probably identical with those of Greece itself.

Study Your Stamps

Embossing. — One of the processes occasionally employed in the manufacture of postage stamps. Embossed stamps are, of course, those in which the whole or some portion of the design is in relief. Stamps are embossed in exactly the same way as letterheads, seals, etc., and the embossing may be perfectly plain on tinted paper, as in the case of the first stamps for Natal, or, as is more general, the raised portions are in white and the balance of the design in color. In this process two plates are necessary: one, on which the paper rests, forces the parts that are in relief upwards, and the other assists this and at the same time applies the printing ink. The first 6d, 10d and 1s stamps of Great Britain were embossed and these were struck one at a time but later and improved methods made it possible to emboss all the stamps in a sheet at one operation. The envelope stamps of the United States form excellent examples of embossing as applied to stamp manufacture.

Crown A. — Many of the recent stamps of the States included in the Commonwealth of Australia and those of the Commonwealth itself, are watermarked with a device consisting of a large "A" surmounted by a crown. The "A", of course, stands for "Australia."

Crown B. T.—A device perforated through certain British stamps used on the official correspondence emanating from the Board of Trade. These stamps were used as early as 1892, and probably before that date. It is interesting to note that this important Government Department was never supplied with overprinted stamps.

Dhar

A feudatory State in Central India having an area of 1,740 square miles and a population of about 20,000. Postage stamps for use in this State were first issued in 1897, but four years later (March 31, 1901) their use was discontinued.

A Few "Correos"

Correos Cs. De Eo.—This is shown upon the 1870 stamps for the Philippine Islands, the latter part of the inscription meaning "Centimos de escudo."

Correos Ctos.—The second word is an abbreviation for "cuartos" and the inscription appears on the Spanish stamps issued in 1864.

Correos Cuartos.—This is shown upon many of the stamps of Spain "cuartos" of course, referring to the facial value.

Correos David.—A mark found upon certain Panama stamps. At one time it was considered a special provisional for stamps issued in the town of David, but it is now believed to be merely a postmark.

Correos de Espana.—An inscription frequently met with on the stamps of Spain and simply meaning "Spanish Post Office."

Correos E. U. M.—A watermark found on some of the stamps of Mexico. The last three letters stand for "Estados Unidos Mexicanos." (United States of Mexico.)

Correos Franco. — An inscription shown upon the Spanish stamps of the issues of 1850 to 1854, on which the date is also shown. The word "Franco" means free.

Correos Guiria. — A control mark stamped on several of the provisional labels issued in the district of Marino, Venezuela, in 1903.

Correos Interior. — An inscription shown upon the stamps of the Philippine Islands issued between 1859 and 1863, signifying "Inland Postage."

Junior Dictionary

Monumento de Colon en Genova.—On the 5 peso Salvador 1893 is shown a statue with this inscription below, meaning, "Statue of Columbus in Genoa."

Moody, J. A.—The postmaster of Victoria, Texas, in 1861, who is known to philatelic fame from the fact that he caused special 5c and 10c stamps to be issued to facilitate the working of his office before the general Confederate issue was ready.

Moon.—The value in which the first stamps of Corea are expressed. It corresponds to the brass "cash" of China.

M. O. P.—These letters are found on certain Argentine stamps issued in 1913 for official use. They stand for "Ministerio de Obras Publicas", which means "Ministry of Public Works."

Moquegua.—The capital of the department of the same name in the republic of Peru. It has suffered severely from earthquakes, especially in 1715 and 1868. In 1881 a special overprint was applied to all the stamps used in this city.

Morazan.—A former President of the republic of Salvador, whose name is shown in the upper left corner of the design adopted for the 3c stamp of 1887 and the 1c of 1889. Morazan was president of the Federation of the Five Republics, which had a very short existence.

Mosul.—This is a province in Mesopotamia of 29,220 square miles. Its capital city bears the same name and is located near the site of ancient Nineveh.

July 6.—Jingo, we struck luck today. That feller had some good U. S. and we traded foreign for a lot of them. Then we got chummy and told him we'd take him to our private swimmin' place, and show him how to have some fun with an old maid who lives on the way there by yowling like her cats. He was just saying how glad he was he met us when a feller that he's scared of came by and made a face at him, and Willy hustled out and licked the feller and chased him down the block. So Harry (that's the kid's name) said we was the best fellers he knew and gave us each a 24c Navy he had put away. Willy wanted the best one because he licked the kid but I kicked. So we tossed for it and I won. Harry told us of another feller who has just started collectin' and has some good traders that his uncle in New York sent him, so we went around on the way home and helped him start. His uncle is in an export house and I got nearly all the new Barbados and Willy got some dandy surcharged Ceylon.

July 7, 1894.—Willy and me went to see the lady whose dog it was this morning and she had a whole mess of stamps for us. We had lots of them, of course, but we got some fine old ones and some good traders. There was a 5 and a 10c 1847, some 1s and 10s of the next issue, and a lot of good 1869s and some nice envelopes, only some of the stamps were torn. Funny people can't learn to open envelopes without spoiling the stamps. We told the lady about our collections and when I told her how hard Depts. are to get she said she had a son in the Dept. of Justice at Washington and she'd write to him and see if he had any. We felt kinder sneaky about saving her dog then and we are goin' to get her some pond lilies to make up for it. After we left we scrapped over those 1847's and had to match again. Willy got the 10c, doggone it, but I got a pair of 12c 1857's with the 5c one so it wasn't so bad. We went around to see Mr. Waters after supper and traded him some of the good U. S. for foreign. He gives us good trades and we want to see how they pile up this week.

July 8.—Bein' Sunday we haven't hustled any but this afternoon we counted up. I've got 597 and Willy's got 883. Gosh, I only gained 3 on him, but that 2c Exec. counts for a lot. Our hired girl's feller came to see her tonight. I showed him that watch and he said he'd trade me a good jack plane for it. I'm goin' to do it if his plane's any good. I think I can see a pretty good stunt to pull off.

July 9.—I went down and got that plane this morning and went right down to Joe Morsman with it. He's got a carpenter shop and I swapped it to him for an old velosepeed or however you spell it that he had. I had to give him my knife too, but I came out ahead. When Willy came over we cleaned it up nice. Then he borrowed two dollars from his aunt and we went down to a second-hand man's and gave him the velosipede (that don't look right either) and the two dollars for a tricycle. I think we can sell it to Jenny Dobb's mother. I gave Joe 5 fishhooks for his set of China stamps today, and traded the one I had for a surcharged Gibraltar.

On the occasion of the British occupancy of this province by the India Expeditionary Force, troop D, in 1919, Turkish fiscal stamps were locally overprinted with new values in Indian currency.

THE KING OF THE SEDANGS

A Merry Banker's Memories of a Mimic Mystery Monarch

Students of what our Editor has so aptly called "Phantom Philately" may perhaps be interested in the following biographical information about Marie I, the self-styled King of the Sedangs, who enriched our collections with a set of so-called postage stamps.

The passage is taken from Walter H. Young's book, "A Merry Banker in the Far East," published by John Lane. The events related took place in Hong Kong, the Crawford mentioned being the Manager of the Bank in which the narrator was serving at the time.

"This soi-disant King of the Sedangs was the hero of Guy Boothby's book, The Fascination of the King. He was a disgraced and disreputable French Colonel, badly wanted in France, whence he had escaped to the Far East. With the aid of a few ragged troops, picked up the Lord knows where, he had taken possession of a no-man's land, situated somewhere in the Indo-China, and proclaimed himself king thereof.

He turned up in Hong Kong to raise the wind, his alleged purpose being the purchase of a gunboat from the British Government. In pursuance of his business, he came to the bank, and my chief, having a penchant for blue blood and crowned heads, took him up with great fervour and accustomed energy. Nothing was too good for 'My friend, King Marie of the Sedangs,' and we became pretty fed-up with him.

Never, never, shall I forget that Arabian night in the theatre—Crawford in the Royal box with the King on his right and a galaxy of lovely ladies, the crème de la crème of Hong Kong helping him to entertain His Majesty. When he presented Sà Majestay le Roo-oy,' these gracious and high-born dames abased themselves before the King, making the most exquisite court cheeses while sinking to the floor at the Colonel's feet. His Majesty was a very tall, well-built chap, about forty years of age, with an ugly face. On this occasion he wore ordinary dress-clothes, but across his manly chest there was a broad ribbon and a very large diamond star (paste supplied by the local jeweller) in imitation of our Order of the Garter. Crawford also wore with hauteur a decoration of the Sedang kingdom.

It was really a most brilliant scene, which I vastly enjoyed, although a bit embarrassed at the King's request that I should act as interpreter. None of those aristocrats of Hong Kong knew a word of French, nor did the King speak any language but his own.

The American Princesses from San Francisco made much of the King; they put him on their free list because of the great honour he did them in accepting their kisses and caresses. The most ardent of these ladies placed the Royal Arms of the Sedangs over her elaborate bed, and, with loving fingers, worked in gold thread the King's monogram on her exquisite lace bedspread.

The Colonel, being so much in clover, was in no hurry to go, the gunboat quest seemed to be forgotten, and he stayed on and on, month after month, until he became quite a common object, and a nuisance in the Club. We all became very tired of him, especially Murray Crawford, who was forking out the King's pocket money. Even the ardent lady, finding he was disturbing the comfort of her regular clients, removed the Royal Arms from her bed and person. This cruel princess had no more use for her cashless king; and when nastily banging the door in his face, told him in a strong American accent to cease 'lasciviating' her feelings by useless tears. I think the lady meant 'lacerating'! It became pretty well known that the French Government were after him, but he had no money to get away with; so my chief generously sent the hat round, and with the proceeds the King disappeared. He 'fascinated' me to the extent of fifty dollars, which is still owing.

A few months later it was reported that he died of snake-bite in Sumatra."—Stamp Collectors' Fortnightly.

AUSTRIA

The early issues of the Monarchy are, and always have been, great favorites with the specialist on account of the many plate and paper varieties and cancellations to be found.

Of the 1850-1858-1861 and 1867 issues we have a fine—yes, a very fine stock—and we invite correspondence from collectors of this country and of its neighbor, Hungary, with its interesting lithographed and engraved pieces.

GREETINGS FROM AUSTRALIA

By HUBERT LYMAN CLARK.

PERTH, W. A., Oct. 15.

Best wishes for a fine Thanksgiving, a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year. I send them all in one for I've no idea when it will reach you!

Also, accept with my compliments the enclosed block of four of the new centenary stamp issued two or three weeks ago. They went on sale in Broome on Sept. 28, but probably earlier here in Perth—I don't know. I like them. My visit out here has been a never-to-be-forgotten experience. From the point of view of my work on marine animals it has been a great success, equalling my fondest hopes. It has also been interesting and enjoyable to the last degree.

Damin, one of the most isolated towns on the earth, was our home for six weeks and the people were so kind to us we left with real regret. Broome, the center of the pearl fisheries, was our home for two months and proved one of the best places in the world for a marine zoölogist. Now we are in Perth, a charming and very flourishing city where I am again overwhelmed with kindness. The climate of Damin and Broome from June to September is simply perfect—to sing its praises properly would take too long, but believe me it is the best on earth—bar none.

We expect to be in Sydney most of next month, but beyond that plans are still tentative. We'll be back in Cambridge, Mass., in February, if not before.

IT'S COMING

It gives me great pleasure to state that I expect to be able to announce next week, the acquisition of one of the finest and largest collections of United States covers, ever gotten together.

The deal for the early portion has been concluded, and by the time these notes appear in print, no doubt, the entire transaction will have been closed. The lot starts in with a magnificent assortment of the early Postmasters, including upward of twenty-five covers with the 5-cent New York. There is a small but choice lot of Carriers mostly tied to the cover. The 1847 lot is certainly attractive and includes many singles and pairs with unusual cancellations and uses. Among the 1851 issue, I particularly note eight or ten copies of the 5-cent used from numerous towns, such as a blue Annapolis, a black Washington, Iowa, and the like. Fully ninety percent of these covers that come to hand are cancelled in New Orleans and this lot includes quite a number from other cities. There are two blocks of the 1851—5c in the lot, both on cover, one being the finest known.

Among the 1857 series, an outstanding piece is a block of four of the 5-cent red brown, used on the entire cover, with a 1-cent Type III. There are quite a few choice singles, pairs and strips, used to different points of the world of the 5-cent in the three shades and in the two types. Numerous combinations and rates are to be seen used to such points as Arabia, Syria, China, Japan, Spain, etc.

More definite details will be furnished next week, and in the meantime, if you are interested in outstanding covers, I am pleased to announce that right at present, I have a more important stock than has been my pleasure to own for many months.

If you are thinking of purchasing for investment, or if you have anything of importance to sell, in the way of United States issues, either in a rare single item, or a collection, correspondence is solicited.

9.	3c 1861	Rush, Pa.	"	J. W. Glaze
10.	3c 1861	As ₽8	"	D. H. Stafford

The above group of odd letters are quite out of the ordinary in certain cases. That No. 1 is fairly well known, yet it is a dandy cancel to find. I have never seen it on a cover; but believe it to be used on Long Island, the RR probably being Rail Road.

No. 2 is from the small town which had some very interesting cancellations. No. 3 is one of the lettered stars wherein the letters appear backward, and the cancel appears the same way! meaning collectors are backward in finding one. Never saw but a couple of these. No. 4 is a neatly struck cancellation and very uncommon, as I see a good many Rutland covers of this period.

No. 5 is likewise uncommon, and I do not know whether it comes on the 3c or not. No. 6 is the only one in this group I have printed in color. A short time ago I found a Boston PAID which comes in this same frame hit in blue. I have never seen but one other Boston PAID in blue, that being on a 1c 1861. Scarce item.

No. 7 is a rather crude handmade FREE. These small town handmade words are uncommon. No. 8 and No. 10 are the well known "Battlefield" cancellations. They are probably in same class with the blue ring "BANK'S DIVISION" postmark, and are very interesting cancellations.

No. 9 is a very unusual thing, for the letters are in colorless effect, with the entire background in black. There are few town names known in this type.

Last night I listened to a program on the radio telling about the frigate Constitution. It was mighty interesting. It described the building of the ship in 1797, and that when launched it was the finest battleship afloat.

All of which leads up to an entertaining old letter that I have which was mailed from "United States Frigate Constitution, Bay of Gibraltar 19 Decr 1821" by the chaplain. A note "Rec'd & forwarded by Malaga 12th Jan 1822, your obt St G G Barrell" is on the reverse of the folded letter, while the face of the cover has a little red ring pmk. of "BOSTON MAR 15 MS." the word SHIP in red, and the red mss numerals "22."

I was elated in finding this cover, and am beginning to take an interest in the old historical letters that I run across—this no doubt being occasioned by the work of that Stampless Cover unit of the American Philatelic Society.

This long letter of five closely written pages has much of interest. This frigate had much to do with the stopping of giving presents and money to the Dey of Algiers, so the radio told me, and while the Dey had a fine radio voice, the American Officer, Bainbridge, didn't seem to care for him at all. The expression "Millions for defence; but not one cent for tribute" was handed to the Dey in no uncertain terms.

In this letter, the writer says, . . . "Our Squadron has been lying in the bay 20 days or more, having returned from a long and toilsome cruise of 45 days. From Mahon, we cruised off Toulon, Nice, and most of the places in the south of France. We touched at Genoa and cruised off Leghorn, passed among the Islands, Corsica, Sardinia, Elba, &c., in one of the most tremendous gales I ever saw. We next made the land of the western part of Sicily, and took our departure for Tripoli on the African coast. When laying off the town we had fine weather, and for the first time I saw many waterspouts in the middle of the day. They exceeded in grandeur anything which Cooke has said of them in his voyages, or that can be conceived by the person who has not seen them."

He says of Gibraltar, "I revisited those parts of the rock which I had seen before and explored the beautiful new caves, discovered since our arrival in this sea, by George Martin, a soldier of the garrison. Here are all the orders of nature's architecture in great perfection and astonishing beauty."

He had an inkstand made of the polished piece of "petrification" which he broke off with his own hands. Said it took a beautiful polish. It is probably not considered good form to take a stroll thru the "Rock" and break off stalactites today, I didn't get any of them the last time I was there. There were no signs reading "Keep Out"; but you felt just as though those signs were right before you at most every step you took.

He speaks of this spot as being the world's greatest thoroughfare of news, if not of commerce. "Vessels continually pass from all nations, and generally put into this bay to hear the news, whether they have business, or not. Many vessels have arrived from Boston; one, bringing a bushel of letters for the squadron, and not a solitary one for me: we are on our eighth month out, and not a single letter have I gotten from the U. S."

The Stampless Cover collectors do not seem to find many letters of that period either, and any letters dating back into Revolutionary times must be very scarce. I have seen a few but they are all in Museums. I'd like to get a few from some of those old forts!

"Mahon, 27th Decr. Soon after writing the preceding, I heard the word passed for all hands to weigh anchor. The ship got under way and sailed out of Gibraltar Bay with a strong westerly wind. In fifty-six hours we were in this port, a distance of more than five hundred miles from Gibraltar. So sudden and great a transition seems like a dream. We had the wind fair and very strong all the passage. The ship rolled the water upon her quarter deck repeatedly. I again paid my devotions to my mistress, the ocean. Her demands upon me are exorbitant, whenever we leave port with even a tolerable breeze. Instead of growing more reasonable, she becomes extravagant, for I am deadly sick, when the stomach is in a state of salubrity. I shall never make a sailor."

Some way these old letters fascinate me. While the poor seasick chaplain was so terribly seasick, he still tells with good spirit of their fast run of something over 500 miles in a little over 50 hours. While the elapsed time does not compare favorably with the present day ships propelled by steam, it is just a short time back to when they were probably establishing speed records in the old sailing ships of the navy. Possibly that run did establish a record for the time. And a record is a record, no matter if made today, or a hundred years ago.

Appleton Philatelic Society's First Anniversary

As seen by W. H. GILLEY.

Arriving in Appleton, Wisconsin, on his snowy Saturday afternoon, November 23rd, nine stamp collectors from Chicago were astounded to see the exhibition on display in the Lounge of the Conway Hotel. After preliminary introductions, which quickly acquainted us with the members of this big-little stamp club, we groused around the exhibits and enjoyed ourselves to a great extent, first, through the wonderful display of about 1,000 covers showing every known and many unknown registry cancellations in many issues, commemorations of things and events the country over, ranging from the dedication of Chicago's new Civic Opera temple to the late and lamented baseball fracas, first-day covers of all recent issues, and the more important air mail flights during the past two years. All of these covers are the property of the club's genial secretary, H. M. Brehm. Next we viewed a very fine collection of mint United States, in blocks and singles, in shades and varieties, some of which are seldom seen, which we were told were the property of M. F. Hatch, the club's President. Then we came to a clever display of full sheets of United States and Canal Zone, including some sheets of 400 subjects, the best of which was a sheet of 100 of the famous No. 595—2c U. S. perf. 11, which Scott now catalogues at $6.00 a stamp; these sheets, we understand, belong to Professor J. Ross Frampton, of the faculty of Appleton's famous Lawrence College. Then we viewed an almost complete collection of the air mail stamps of the world, property of W. O. Thiede. A very fine display of U. S. revenues was said to belong to C. A. Loescher. The remainder of the exhibition consisted of some rare foreign stamps, too numerous to mention in detail, displayed by the other members of the society. The only display by an outsider was one of Presidents' widows' Franks on cover, mighty interesting, owned by J. S. Brownell, postmaster of Woodstock, Vermont. Not the least interesting attraction at the exhibition was a small branch post office, created just for the day and in charge of one of the regular post office clerks; here commemorative stamps as far back as the White Plains issue were sold at face value. The banquet, which started at seven o'clock in the Crystal Room of the hotel, with H. M. Brehm acting as Toastmaster, was worthy of a much larger organization. The banquet room was beautifully decorated in a color-scheme of red, white and blue lights, and to the strains of sweet music, furnished by a ladies' orchestra, we participated in one of this hotel's famous dinners. At the conclusion of the meal we listened to brief talks of philatelic interest; among the speakers were August Hippchen, President of the Postage Stamp Club of Chicago, and L. A. Burmeister, Jr., of Milwaukee, President of I. P. A. The evening was concluded with an impromptu dance. We understand that the society had reservations for 80 or more for the banquet, but due to inclement weather exactly fifty "stampnuts," wives and sweethearts sat down at the festive board, and over 1,000 visitors viewed the exhibition, for which there was no charge for admission, throughout the day. Taken altogether, it is really remarkable what the twelve members, who comprise the Appleton Philatelic Society, accomplished on this, their first anniversary, and it might well serve as an object lesson for the creating of more stamp clubs in the smaller cities throughout the country.

(Note.—We shall not spare the blushes of our correspondent by omitting to record that he was the first speaker from out of town at the big banquet. Incidentally, Col. Frank O. Sebring, Chicago, was the orator who brought the great reunion to a rousing close.—ED.)

DANISH WEST INDIES 14c

By MICHAEL MILLER.

When the new "Cat." comes out, usually about the end of October, the first thing you do, if you have made a study of any particular country, is to see what Scott has done to your opinion of values. Naturally "in the course of human events" I turned to Danish West Indies. Since the absolute acquisition of these islands by U. S., these stamps have been most intriguing, and having such a clean record in all emission should be second love to the rabid U. S. collectors.

Well, on with my story as the other will be further discussed at another time. It was but a moment to run thru the four little square stamps and then I began to read about the bi-colored being accustomed now to the long belated inclusion of the inverted frames. Getting down to about the end of the list of the early issues, my eye noticed a gap filled just before the 50c stamp price, which heretofore had been vacant, and looking closer I saw that the 14c lilac and green inverted frame had been priced used.

I looked at the figures, $85.00—I looked again and studied a while, knowing what I did. I finished the page and turned it over slowly, looking at the rest of the country, but although I looked I did not see anything because my mind was still on the 14c invert. I turned back and looked at the price again. I saw it was in italics and perhaps there was something in that. No. 26a was priced $350 in italics, so there must be some explanation. I go on to the next country, Danzig, but that does not help. I go back to Dalmatia and Dahomey, and they are meagre, so I take myself back to the beginning of the book and there I see something. Alexandria and Baltimore priced in italics, but in amounts of $8,500 and $12,500, $1,000 and $10,000, figures reminiscent of the recent Wall Street debacle. The next page brings me to the regular issues and I see the sub-varieties show figures in italics of $500, $700 and $1,250. I became more at ease and realized that the first pricing in italics was a sort of a feeler.

Now I have no fault to find with the cataloguers; they do their best as they keep constantly writing you to advise them about changes in prices and for suggestions and goodness knows and, man-alive, look at the thousands of stamps they have to price, but those italics were a challenge to me and here goes.

Scott says that inverted frame used is worth about twice that of the normal frame variety, but they have not clearly recognized the scarcity of the invert, and that can be proved by comparison with the other stamps. It would be manifestly unfair to take the other stamps of same series as a basis because of the variety of different printings, so I will confine myself to stamps which have one printing. Now the 14c frame plate of a hundred subjects has two inverted clichés in positions 18 and 77. By contrast we take the following stamps of which the inverted frame is found once in a sheet, No. 22a with a value of $15.00 against $1.00, and No. 28b with a value of $25.00 against 75c. Take the inverse order: the following stamps where there is one normal frame against 99 inverted and we have No. 16a with a value of $15.00 against 35c, No. 17a with a value of $25.00 against 50c, No. 24c with a value of $30.00 against 50c.

And so we have No. 12a with a value of $85.00 against No. 12 with a value of $45.00. Caveat emptor?—Yes, I want to be the buyer.

Edited by SEVARD.

Old Pat Rooney many years ago would wisecrack that he never was in a strike, but that he threw only union made bricks. Texas seems to have followed Pat's advice for we now have the Mature Citrus Fruit Tax Paid stamps, and we believe all philatelists should come to the aid of their party by demanding only mature lemons which carry the Texas stamp. These labels come in two sizes, the 1½c and 2½c, depending upon the maturity of the fruit. A really rotten lemon should catalog 55¼ cents, and a dripping Liederkranz variety, 98c cash. Anyway, the state tax paids now have some more tax paids besides gasoline, cigarettes, and gritty chew tobacco.

The three Red Cross Roll Call Join varieties have again appeared. The Universal type is the one with a 21mm town and plain letters. The first International type has the 20mm townmark with date at the bottom, but with a single cross in the auxiliary mark. The other variety is also an International, but with two crosses and a large JOIN slanting to the right. Mr. Leverett Belknap is the checklist expert on these, and a few extra to trade will not make him quit his good work.

IN FORMER CHECK LISTS, DIE O HAS BEEN LISTED. IN EXPLANATION, THIS MERELY MEANS THAT NO DIE NUMBER OR DIE LETTER OR STATION NAME APPEARS IN THE TOWNMARK. EXCEPT FOR THE LARGER CITIES, ALMOST EVERY CANCEL IS DIE ZERO. AND ZERO MEANS NOTHING.

Of all the marginals found on stamps, the commonest are the bottom tabs. We suppose the rotary press with its unperforated wide marginal tabs, right and left, are missing because they have no mucilage on them. We detest the word gum because in France, whenever one wants gum, he gets mucilage. But it does seem most probable that in everyday use, the bottom tab will remain, whereas the other tabs will be torn off. Of the bottom tabs, there are two varieties, the one with an evenly cut bottom margin, and the other, with a wavy, uneven cut margin. This latter variety is from the bottom of the 400 subject sheet, whereas the former is from the center of the 400 subject sheet. If the unevenly cut bottom margin shows a guide line, it forms a third class called the bottom guide tab. Often this cut falls short, and yields a top guide line tab instead. Of course, none of these bottom tabs have plate numbers except for the experimental plates, and then, you've got something worth muchas pesetas. If you collect plate lines, and marginals, know ye hereby that the rotary bottom tabs are common.

Of the 2c 1916 circular die envelopes, we have mentioned that the white paper variety is worth .00046 entire and .00004 in cut square condition. This wide range ought to convince anyone to collect envelopes entire. The sizes of the die A head lie mostly with size 13, and therein with the window style, and therewith, showing the 1925 watermark horizontal. This might be said to be the normal point for these envelopes. The next to this normal is the size 9 envelope showing the 1925 watermark diagonal. This should be worth .00070 each. If the envelope die had been cut square, it would have dropped to the .00004 mark. If these figures were in thousands instead of thousandths, it would cut a gavotte.

Many noticed that on fourth class mail matter in envelopes, a machine die is used with a townmark lacking date and hour. This is called the slug townmark. Slugs are placed in the dies instead of months, days and hours. In the International machines, the townmark carries a year date, so that slugs in these machines, at least show a year date. The Universal machines lack the year date. As many of us have calendar collections, we denounce slug dates as being of no use to anyone. One can't record anything without a recording system.

Which goes for registry cancels as well. Where are those beautiful double circle registry cancels which in magenta, attract notice, show origin, time, and specify the extra registry fee? A thing of beauty is a joy forever, but a smudge is the bar sinister destroying the fires of our enthusiasm. If 10,000 towns get out fancy registry cancels and we collectors are supposed to pay a quarter each, something happens. We discard our collection, the same as we did for the Harding precancels. We repeat our statement of six years ago, that the Harding stamp is the best ex-stamp we ever had. The registry cancel will be the best ex-cancel we ever used. If you have our code, invest in stamp DXBP, for sharp increase over pending pressure in the next few months. If you lose money, we claim the right to blame the printer for getting the code mixed. Why aren't the Chicago registry cancels of 1916 worth a barrel of money? Or the New Yorks of 1924? Or the old Bostons from the '90's? Like the farmer who was tackled by a book salesman to buy books on agriculture. He knew too much to farm.

AUST. COMMONWEALTH NOTES

The Western Australia commemorative stamp duly made its appearance on the 28th ult. The make-up of the sheet, paper, perforation, etc., are as described last month, and as then stated the stamps have been printed from twelve plates, numbered in the top left-hand corner of each sheet. We do not agree with the official designation of the colour, i.e., deep vermilion, our own disposition being to term it a rose-lake. There is no doubt the stamp would have looked better had it been printed in two colours, preferably with the centre in black. As a matter of fact at first glance it might be imagined that the centre is printed in a slightly deeper coloured ink than the frame. This is due to the fact that the body of the swan has been heavily shaded all over, whereas the frame has been very lightly engraved. We think that the stamp would have been improved had there been one or two heavier lines of shading round the outside.

An interesting comparison may be made of the swan which appears on these stamps and those on former issues of Western Australia. In the present instance the bird has been treated heraldically, whereas both Messrs. Perkins Bacon and De La Rue endeavoured to show the swan swimming in a natural attitude. The arrangement of the plumage on the body and wings closely resembles that on the De La Rue surface-printed issues. The poise of the neck and head is also nearer to the De La Rue type than to that of Perkins Bacon, but the head is now looking almost directly downwards. Personally we think that the swan pictured on the Perkins Bacon plates is the most natural looking. By the way, the flowers shown in the side panels are conventionalised renderings of the well-known "kangaroo paw," a flower which we believe to be peculiar to the Western State.

A very fine and striking variety on the new Western Australia commemorative stamp has been brought to our notice by Mr. A. A. Rosenblum. This consists of a very marked re-entry on the fourth stamp of the seventh row of plate 2, i.e., on No. 64 of the sheet. The most distinct evidences of the re-entry are to be found on the—

"T" of "Australia."
"W" of "Western."
Neck and wing of the Swan.

The marks on the "T" of "Australia" are very prominent, and are readily visible to the naked eye. The variety forms one of the most striking examples of re-entries that we have had the good fortune to examine.

Another re-entry occurs on No. 74 of plate 6. It is similar to but not quite as marked as plate 2, No. 64. It shows:

Slight traces in top of W.
Slight duplication of Swan's neck.
It is readily distinguished from the other by the slight duplication in the R.

Messrs. Blomeley and Rosenblum send examples of the 6d stamp on the new multiple watermark paper, which we announced last month as ready for issue. The plate is the same as formerly, and bears the usual John Ash imprint. As we have not yet been able to examine entire sheets we shall defer further comment until next month.

Our publishers have shown us some specimens of the current £1 value which they obtained recently from the General Post Office in Sydney, and which are in a much deeper shade than formerly, their colour being now slate instead of gray. The stamps, of course, are on single watermark paper, and have the T. S. Harrison imprint; they have, therefore, been printed some time ago. When Mr. Ash comes to print any stamps of this value he will no doubt make an entirely new plate. The present plate must be very worn, judging from the white lines above and below the value.

The new 3d, which is on sale in Sydney as well as in Melbourne, is a vast improvement on the former issues of this denomination in the Georgian type. The details now stand out sharp and clear, and the general "finish" leaves nothing to be desired.—Aust. Stamp Journal.

TRANS-PRAIRIE AIR MAIL

Ottawa, Canada—A daily air mail service between the cities in the prairie provinces of Canada—Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta—will be inaugurated by the Post Office Department early in December of this year. This trans-prairie air mail service will, it is believed, ultimately become an important link in the sea-to-sea air mail route for which the Canadian Postmaster General is striving.

Old settlers in Western Canada are commenting on the change that has taken place within their lifetime. There are some still living who recall when the prairies were the pasture ground for herds of buffaloes, when the principal means of communication or contact between Winnipeg and the Rocky Mountains were the prairie schooner or the Red River cart drawn by horses or oxen. Today schools and churches are within easy walking distance of almost every farm home. Telephones and the telegraph are practically everywhere, a network of railways threads the prairies. The inconveniences of the past have been supplanted by the conveniences that modern inventions and advantages have evolved. The prairie provinces now produce a large percentage of the world's supply of wheat, oats, barley, rye and other farm crops and are important in dairying and live stock production.

New York dealer, bought the Stanley Gibbons business and was chairman for 32 years until 1922, when he came to New York. During this time two of his sons entered the business, but after the World War left the firm for other lines of work in London, which they preferred. Mr. Phillips' son was Ernest O. Phillips, and his son Reginald, who has just matriculated with honors has entered the Stanley Gibbons firm of which his grandfather was manager for so many years.

DOMINICAN REPUBLIC

The Bultos Postales stamps, dated 1926, in three denominations, 25c carmine, 50c orange, and 1 peso green, referred to in your issue of October 21, 1929, page 633 (on authority of Die Postmarke), are fiscal, and not postage stamps. They are used to collect an internal revenue tax on parcels arriving by post, imposed in lieu of consular fees which are paid on importations by freight.

NEW ZEALAND CHARITY

New Zealand is about to issue a 2d combined postage and charity stamp. One penny going to each of the two purposes indicated. Wilcox, Smith & Co., who sends us this information, states that it will not be possible to produce this year the particularly fine design that was most desired. The central figure this year will show a New Zealand nurse in uniform with a Maori border on either side. Both the designing and printing are being done in New Zealand, and it was expected that the stamps would be on sale the last of November. This will be the first charity stamp ever issued for New Zealand.

Foreign New Issues

PERCY C. SMITH, Editor,
Lexington, Mass.

(Information in regard to new issues and varieties will be welcome. If reply be necessary, enclose self-addressed stamped envelope.)

New issues noted below are from Mr. R. Roberts of London, England:

Argentine. — Commemorative issue inscribed "1492 1929" issued on October 12th last to commemorate the 437th anniversary of the discovery of America, this particular day being held as a general holiday in Spanish America. The values are 2 centavos, chocolate (Torch illuminating New World); 5 centavos, red (Spain and Argentina); and 12 centavos, blue (America proferring laurels to Columbus). The stamps are lithographed on paper watermarked with Multiple Sun-bursts and perf. 13½ and 12½. At the bottom of each stamp is the date "12 de Octubre."

Brazil.—Two new air mail stamps of oblong format have been placed on sale, one of 300r in rose, picturing the celebrated air ship of Santos Dumont in 1901 and the 500r purple, with the biplane of Santos Dumont celebrating the flight of the 12th of November 1906. Also two postage due stamps in the design of D4, in 200r deep blue and 1000r deep green, perf. 13, watermarked "EU BRASIL".

Morocco Agencies. — The 1p new block type watermarked stamp of Great Britain has been surcharged for use as 10 centimos in the same manner as before.

Jugoslavia.—An issue of three values to commemorate the Croatian Millenary has appeared in these values: 50+50p gray-olive, perf. 12½; 1D+50p rose, perf. 11½ and 3D+1D blue, perf. 12½.

Whitfield King & Co. of Ipswich, England, send us the following new items:

Austria. — A very attractive set of stamps with a variety of subjects has been received in these values: 10gr ochre (Gussing), 15gr chocolate (Hochosterwitz), 16gr olive-gray (Durnstein), 18gr green (Traunsee), 24gr brown-red (Salzburg), 30gr grey-violet (Seewiesen), 40gr blue (Innsbruck), 60gr olive (Hohenems), 1sc brown (National bibliothek), and 2sc grey-green (Wien).

Russia.—The 7k red in the new series is on sale. The type is the design picturing the profile view of three workmen.

Uruguay.—The 2c green, special delivery stamp of the small size has been reported as issued on white paper, without watermark, perf. 11.

Nejd.—According to information received by Stamp Collecting a forerunner of a new issue has been received. The design is similar to that of the 1926-27 series, but the name "Hejaz & Nejd" and the word "Gruch" has been added in English: 1½ gruch blue.

Nicaragua.—In addition to the 25c "Official" air stamp noted in a recent issue, Stamp Collecting states that the 50c has appeared with the same overprint. From information furnished by Bulletin Mensuel we learn that both these stamps were issued on September 20th last in a printing of 25,000 copies of each value. Another new issue of this country in a new air post provisional in the form of the obsolete 2.50 pesos, surcharged "Servicio Postal Aereo De Q 003" in five lines in black is reported by Francis J. Field, Ltd., who advise that the number issued was extremely limited as only a small number of the original 2.50p stamp was found to be on hand after the overprint had been arranged for.

Paraguay.—The designs of the new definitive air post stamps are stated by the Philatelic Magazine to show the Paraguayan Arms and Lion (95c), Cathedral ($1.90), and an aeroplane in flight over the Globe ($6.80). The subjects of the four other values have not been disclosed. The provisional 95c on 7c air post provisional overprinted in three lines is reported to be exhausted.

Soruth.—A new issue was to be taken into use by this Indian Feudatory State on October 1st last according to an official decree which specifies the eight denominations as follows: 3 and 6 pies, 1, 2, 3, 4, 8 annas and 1 rupee.

Bauld, instead of below as in the Whitehead, Morris engraving.

There are some slight changes also in the border ornamentation, and "Newfoundland" at the bottom, is further away from the ornamentation at the lower left and right corners.

This denomination also comes, as does the 4c, with rough, and clean cut perforations.

10c War Memorial, St. John's

When the 10c Whitehead, Morris printing exhausted about the middle of September, the Dickinson production had not yet been received. However, these came to hand on Friday, Oct. 4th, and issue was made the following morning, Oct. 5th.

The color, violet, is a bit lighter, the perforation is comb 13½x13½ (the Whitehead, Morris printing comes with both comb 14, and single line 13½x13 perforation), and the paper is soft.

There are minor differences in the numerals in the upper corners, the "1" in particular having larger serifs at the top and bottom. "TEN CENTS" at the top is also more prominent than previously, as is also the "t" of "St. John's", in the vignette inscription. In the Whitehead, Morris printing there is a period after "St. John's", which is missing in the Dickinson engraving. The flames from the brazier, at the right, do not extend upward so far as in the Whitehead, Morris printing, neither do the two flames cross each other near the top, but are kept separated.

6c Newfoundland Hotel

The 6c Whitehead, Morris exhausted at the beginning of October, following which the small remainder stock of the 6c pictorial (100,000 of which were used for the August 23, 1929, provisional), served until it, too, was sold out. The 6c on order with Dickinson & Co. had not yet reached St. John's on October 24th, but was expected by the next boat from England.

8c Heart's Content

When the 8c Whitehead, Morris printing is sold out, the Department has a large stock of the 8c of the pictorial series of 1923, which will probably first be disposed of before order is placed with Dickinson. Of the 8c pictorial a total of 268,800 were sent out to St. John's, and in addition 6,507 were sold to stamp dealers through the office of the High Commissioner for Newfoundland in London. On June 30, 1927, 146,897 were on hand at the G. P. O., St. John's.

9c and 12c Publicity Series

These denominations having been included in the Publicity series, in error, will not be printed by Dickinson & Co.

15c and 20c Publicity Series

The 15c of the pictorial series of 1923 (down to 3,300 copies at the end of October, 1929) is expected to exhaust before the end of the year, and as the 15c and 20c Publicity series are lowering, these will be the next denominations to be ordered from Dickinson & Co.

14c, 28c and 30c Publicity Series

Contrary to reports in the philatelic press, the 30c is still on sale at the G. P. O., St. John's, as well as the 14c and 28c of this series. Unless a complete new series is decided upon for issue during 1930 (which from present indications seems not at all unlikely), these three denominations will be ordered from Dickinson & Co. as present stock lowers.

Remainders

On October 24, 1929, the only remainders on hand at the G. P. O., St. John's, were the 60c Cabot, the 36c Caribou, and the 8c and 15c of the 1923 pictorial series. The 24c Cabot sold out during October.

Summary

1929—Publicity series, re-engraved and recess printed by Messrs. John Dickinson & Co., Ltd., London. Unwatermarked. Perforated comb 13½x13½, or 14 (1c).

1c green, Map of Nfld. and Labrador, Sept. 26
2c red, s.s. Caribou, Aug. 10
3c red-brown, Their Majesties, Aug. 10
4c deep claret, Prince of Wales, Aug. 26
5c greenish-gray, Express Crossing Nfld., Sept. 14
10c violet, War Memorial., St. John's, Oct. 5

The John C. Williams Sale

RECENT BREAK IN THE STOCK MARKET HAS NO EFFECT ON AUCTION PRICES

By PHILIP H. WARD, JR.

On December 2, 3 and 4, there was sold at the American Art Association in New York City, the substantial general collection of the late John C. Williams of Morristown, N. J.

The collection was catalogued by the well-known and well posted New York stamp auctioneer, Walter S. Scott.

This sale is the first of real importance that we have had since the break in the stock market and will answer the question as to whether stock declines have affected stamp prices. It will be seen that fine United States, Air Mails, and certain outstanding foreign items, have made record prices, and that unusual items are still so scarce that there is a ready market for anything of importance. Viewing the sale as a whole, it stands out that choice United States mint blocks and singles, especially errors, are of prime importance and go higher each time a sale is held. United States covers and other choice pieces are much in demand, if in fine condition. Condition seems to be of more importance than ever, for just as soon as a stamp is described as "damaged", its price falls materially. Secondly, there is a demand for air mail varieties, especially the rare pieces. Thirdly, the general foreign issues are not in demand, and British Colonies, with the exception of the rarities, are selling at more reasonable figures than ever before. In this sale, French Colonies and South America exceeded British Colonies in popularity.

The outstanding piece in the United States section was the 24c inverted center air mail, which changed hands at $2,300.00—a record price. Further record prices included the 1893 4c blue Columbian error selling at $740.00, and the two 1909 4c and 8c on blue paper at $710.00 and $475.00 respectively, the latter price being paid for a copy described as "a trifle off-center." The 1901 Pan-American invert 1c cut in at top sold at $200.00, while the 4c, which is catalogued at $350.00, sold at $850.00. It will be recalled that in reviewing the recent catalogue that mention was made that this stamp was greatly under-priced, and that the writer at that time would gladly pay $500.00 for good copies. This stamp is fast approaching the $1,500.00 class, and is one of the real rarities of the twentieth century.

Going back to the earlier stamps, the 5c Baltimore cut from the cover and replaced, sold at $400.00, while a 10c St. Louis tied to the cover with pen cancellation reached $150.00. Copies of the 5c New York sold at from $7.50 to $40.00, depending upon condition. The "R. H. M.", which was cut into on three sides, with close margins on the fourth side, in addition to thin spots, sold at $75.00.

In the general issues, a pair of the 1847 5c used with a 10c on face of cover reached $90.00. An unused copy of the 5c with full gum in immaculate condition sold at $54.00. The 5c and 10c proofs on laid paper found a new owner at $29.00.

Among the 1851 issues, the outstanding piece was a vertical pair of the 1c from Plate III showing a crack in the right stamp. This went to a well-known Boston collection at $170.00. A 1c Type I-a on piece of cover, fine, except the lower left, where part of the scroll was cut off, brought $82.50. Copies of the 5c were only average, being cut into as a rule, and these went at from $10.00 to $21.00. The 24c imperf. with nice margins reached $175.00, while the 30c, cut into at the lower right, sold at $320.00. In the case of the 90c, this stamp certainly was not in the color nor on the paper, nor was it the impression of the variety that we consider as the 90c imperf. As a result, many collectors and dealers that were hunting for this stamp refrained from bidding. It finally sold at $500.00.

There was little of importance in the 1857 to 1861 issues, except the 3c scarlet without gum which reached $120.00.

Fine mint copies of the 1869 issue brought good prices, the 90c with a trifle more margin at top and left selling at $112.50. Cardboard proofs of the inverted centers sold from $25.00 to $30.00 each, the set of four totaling $106.00. A set on India paper of the normal proofs, including two copies of the 90c and listing $17.50, reached $16.00.

The imperforates of 1890 in blocks sold at over catalog, the 90c going at $235.00, the 30c at $132.50, the 15c at $85.00, and so on down.

The complete set of the 1895 in mint blocks of four imperforate, although sold as individual pieces, reached a total of $1,099.00. The $1 and $2 Omaha, the $2 being slightly off-center, sold at $24.00. The 4c Shermack, although described as having full gum, was found to be without gum, and unfortunately cut into. This reached $270.00, a most reasonable figure for a rare stamp.

The 1902 1c coil No. 318 in pair off-center sold at $60.00, while a pair of the 5c No. 317 cataloguing $70.00 changed

MATCH AND MEDICINE

A new series of approval books of these popular revenues is now ready for distribution. These books were made principally from an unusually nice collection purchased during the spring and contain greater variety than I have been able to offer for several years.

These government issued revenues in private designs of many colors, shapes and sizes are attracting more collectors each year. They are certainly underpriced by Scott, as no changes have been made in years, while all other United States issues have soared in prices.

DOUBLE PRINTS

The 3c offset print, type IV, is fairly common showing a shifted or blurred double impression. It is, however, quite rare showing a really distinct double impression which has no trace of a blur to it.

We recently acquired a small quantity of this stamp showing one of the most remarkable double impressions we have ever seen, the first impression being in a much paler and totally different shade to the second, as well as being well separated from it. The plate number block shows that these two impressions were printed from different plates as there are two different plate numbers showing very clearly. The centering of these stamps is most unusually good for the offset printing.

We can offer a fine single copy of this remarkable variety at $5.00, and a fine mint block of four at $22.50. A few copies, centering practically perfect, can be supplied at 10% extra.

Plate block of six showing two separate plate numbers (possibly unique), $50.00.

In addition to the above, we can offer a very fine single of the 3c type III double print at $5.00; and a fine block at $25.00. The 2c in an exceptionally clear double print at $12.50.

AN APOLOGY—

I do hate to offer alibis, but the unavoidable fact is that this Auction Sale No. 3 of Airmail Covers and Stamps is proving more than a spare time job to get catalogued and written up.

I had fully expected to have the catalog in the mail before this, but it has been a physical impossibility. As I write this, the printer has a good part of it in type, and I'm hoping.

Just one consolation — it still gives you time to get your name on the mailing list, where it certainly should be if the subject interests you at all.

hands at $92.00. A pair of the 1908 10c coil sold at $75.00.

All of the blue papers brought well over catalogue, the 3c selling at $21.00, the 4c at $710.00, the 5c at $145.00, the 6c at $11.00, the 8c at $475.00, the 10c at $15.00, the 13c at $59.00, and a pair of the 15c at $18.00.

A block of the 10c Panama-Pacific Perf. 10 reached $41.00, while a copy of the 1914 1c Perf. 10 x 12 precancelled Dayton, Ohio, sold at $32.00. A sheet of the rare 5c error imperforate in mint condition sold at $2,900.00. Had it been broken, it would, no doubt, have brought much more. A block of the 2c imperf. horizontally No. 499-a sold at $180.00, while a block of the 3c No. 501-e part-perf. error listing $100.00 reached $125.00. A block of the 1c Surface Print, double print, cataloguing $40.00, sold at $57.50, while a sheet of the 3c double, listing $150.00, changed hands at $180.00.

There was little of importance in the collection in the way of Departments, Carriers and Envelopes. A $5.00 State off-center reached $195.00, while a fine $20.00 sold for $87.50.

The outstanding local was a wonderful Wells, Fargo and Company frank in red, on U. S. envelope 10c green, No. 2322, postmarked St. Joseph and bearing the Pony Express $1.00 red adhesive, tied with the Pony Express San Francisco postmark in blue. This wonderful piece sold at $360.00.

Among the Revenues, the early revolutionary varieties, containing the word "America" in connection with the English values, sold at prices ranging from $18.00 to $41.00. A $200.00 first issue imperforate with close margins at lower right brought $60.00, a 6c Proprietary, perforations cut in design at right, brought $50.00, and a $500.00 Second Issue cancelled lightly with pen stroke, in addition to machine cutting which penetrated the paper, sold at $575.00. The $1.00 with filled-in punched cancellation inverted center reached $110.00. The Proprietary 50c green and black, No. 3977, with slight crease sold at $53.00, the $1.00, No. 3978, with a few extra perforations $170.00, and a magnificent $5.00, No. 3979, at $230.00.

Late issues brought good prices with exception of the commoner Wine and Future Delivery varieties, the $50.00 violet selling at $82.00, the $500.00 1914 listing $60.00 at $82.00, and the $1,000.00 1914 listing $50.00 at $102.50. Both of these stamps have been bringing much more than catalogue at auction for some time.

Among the Confederates were some very choice Postmaster Provisionals on cover. A Baton Rouge on cover bringing $85.00, a pair of the 5c Nashville nicely tied $190.00, a 2c New Orleans or drop letter, a magnificent piece listing $30.00, $107.00, and a similar copy used on a 3c 1860 cover, $85.00. A pair of the 5c brown New Orleans on piece of cover listing $30.00 sold at $100.00, while another pair, not so fine, brought $35.00. A large margin copy tied to the cover sold at $35.00. A complete reconstructed plate of ten of the Petersburg were present on and off cover in pairs and singles. The singles ranged in price from $29.00 to $67.00, and the pairs from $50.00 to $90.00, depending upon condition.

HOLIDAY GIFTS OF INCREASING VALUE

In a year most Christmas presents could not be sold for ¼ of the purchase price. From a sentimental standpoint that is of no importance to the great majority. But there are some people who like to give things of enduring worth. The world war proved that in the civilization of today almost nothing but fine stamps held their value and could be moved. In central Europe government bonds were an almost total loss, gold and silver could not be moved from the country; the same with fine furniture, paintings and other objects of art. But with an envelope or two of fine old stamps many a supposed bankrupt slipped out after the armistice and changed his possessions into real coin of the realm in New York, London, Paris or Rome. Just suppose that in an emergency you had a handful like this in your pants pocket:

No. 18.	5c Providence. An o. g. block of 6 with sheet margins on three sides. Perfection	$ 75.00
	Ditto. A vertical o. g. pair. Margin below	22.50
No. 30b.	1c Type 1a on fine fresh cover	225.00
No. 33.	Strip of 7 on cover. Good looking	45.00
No. 33.	An o. g. block of 4. Touched in spots	17.50
No. 36.	12c '51. A beautiful pair. Positions Nos. 18, 19 R-1. Each struck lightly red grid	50.00
Nos. 40-41.	An o. g., centered block of 6; of which three are Type I, three Type II, Pl. 12	275.00
Nos. 41-42b.	A block of 6, from two strips of 3 rejoined. Used. Sheet margin at left. Top row the rare Type II from Plate IV; 2d row are Type IIIa. Lightly cancelled; very fine	200.00
No. 122.	90c '69. Best looking copy we have seen. Lightly cancelled in red; perfectly centered; has an inconsequential trace of thinning. A knock-out	75.00
No. 141.	15c grille. An o. g. block of four. We do not notice this listed in the Arthur Hind collection. Grille is clear; block well centered. Back shows gum creases, not apparent on face. Find another	150.00
No. 143.	30c grille. Full o. g., well centered	75.00
No. 144.	90c grille. A fine, big stamp. Centered	112.50
No. 165a.	30c Continental. Fine o. g. pair	60.00
No. 166.	90c Continental. Very fine o. g. block of 6	135.00

Precancelled Stamps

A. F. GAMBER, Editor,
Valley City, N. D.

This business of locally typeset precancelled envelopes is very much on the increase. Richard Beck of New York sends me a few of surpassing interest and design, which are shared with you so far as mere words can do so: a 1c wrapper from Tacoma, overprint very much like the contractors' type, but bars heavier, farther apart, and the middle one continuous across Ben's face. Ditto from Cœur d'Alene, Idaho, used by the same Tacoma firm that used the above. Two lines of medium size, rounded, slightly serifed caps 2½mm high, between bars 46½mm long, 1mm thick, and 16½mm apart. Beverly, Mass. First, a type very similar to the government type, bars same width, distance between them the same, but middle one continuous. Second and handsomest, two lines of heavy serifed block caps 3¾mm high between heavy bars 2mm thick, 33½mm long and 16½mm apart. Very, very striking and unusual in design. Third, three bars 1¼mm thick, 54mm long, and 8mm apart. Between the first two and to left of the impression, "Sec. 435½" in small caps and lower case; between second and third lines, also to left, "P. L. & R." in serifed caps 3mm high. All three on size 8 white. Salina, Kansas, another very unusual one: the usual three lines found on the government type, but thinner and farther apart, middle line unbroken. To the left of the impression, Salina, Kansas, in two lines of serifed caps and lower case 3 and 2mm high, respectively. The advertising on the envelope is even more original than the overprint on the stamp. It is an egg shaped design enclosing that part of Kansas of which Salina is the center, showing all the villages and towns tributary to it. Below, "If You Live Inside This Egg, Come Feather Your Nest in Salina." Tie that if you can! Size 8, white.

The old reliable, Dr. Emery, contributes four nice ones, two of them really remarkable: Holton, Kansas, in two lines of heavy serifed caps 4¼mm high, no lines or bars, very handsome. Also an almost exact reproduction of the government type, except that the "Section" clause is at top of the overprint, instead of at bottom. Both size 8, white. Boston, Mass., size 13, white, imitation of the government type, here the "Section" clause is right above the impression. Ann Arbor, size 5, white: Ann Arbor, Mich., in two lines of small serifed caps and lower case between lines ½mm thick, 29½mm long, and 14mm apart. Michigan University grads no doubt got these, judging from the return card.

Which goes to confirm our previous remarks regarding the striking characteristics of all typesets. Walt Russell seconds them, and adds that precancelled stamps in typeset types are most interesting in blocks of varying sizes, as they enable collectors to form some idea of the ever recurring shifts that almost always occur on this type of precancels. Envelopes precancelled from typeset type would not show this, as only one set up of type is made and the envelopes overprinted one at a time. Interest in typeset precancels is steadily increasing. One well-known eastern collector is starting a collection of precancels only from typeset types without bars or lines. His collection is certain to grow very slowly, because this sort of type is very seldom used nowadays, the collector has to hark back to the old perf. 10's and 12's for his material. Typesets between bars or lines are not so uncommon these days, and all are very striking.

New Rockford, N. Dak., similar to South Hanson, 1½c compound. By the way, I thought all the Hansons were up here in the northwest. York, Nebr., U-12, 1c compound. Flint, Mich., U-82, 1½c compound. A new emergency handstamp for Flint, Ramsey, Ill., U-82, 1½c compound. Wilson, N. C., U-82, 4c and 5c compound, and 20c down. Covina, Calif., two types, U-12 and large U-53, both on 1c compound. Falconer, N. Y., 2mm caps between double lines ½mm apart, printed. At first glance this looks like a typeset, but two other towns have recently come out in it, Akron and West New York, N. J., it appears to be a brand new venture on the part of the Department. The Akron and Falconer seen only on the 1c compound, the West New York on the ½c.

Washington Letter

By PHILIP H. WARD, JR.,

(U. S. oddities and varieties will be noted in this department. If reply be necessary, enclose self-addressed stamped envelope.)

New Air Mail Stamp

There has been a delay in the issuing of the new 5-cent Air Mail stamp, for after everything was practically approved, the Postmaster General felt that he was not entirely satisfied with the design showing the Sherman Hill beacon. As a result, the Bureau has been asked to submit further designs of different character, and at this writing, the new designs have not been approved, hence, the finished stamp is not expected before the first week of January. It is even thought that the early production will be of the flat plate type, although this undoubtedly will be followed by the rotaries. A good supply of the bi-colored air mail stamps is now being produced, and it is hoped that these will be sufficient to take care of the requirements until the new stamp is available.

New Postage Due Stamps

As previously mentioned in this column, the Department is considering the issuing of a new series of postage stamps some time during the first of the year. This will include not only the general issues, but an air mail series that will possibly run to $10.00 in denomination. They have now decided that at the same time, quite likely, a new series of postage due stamps will be issued, including high denominations, as there has been a great demand from the larger post offices where it is becoming necessary to use the 50-cent stamp in complete sheets. The Postmaster General has not as yet called for designs, but these will possibly be considered before Spring.

"Stock Transfer" Revenues

Mr. G. N. Usticke reports several new Perf. 10 revenues overprinted "Stock Transfer." One or two we have listed before, but as he mentions the two types of overprint, we are repeating the old varieties with those newly discovered.

5c Air Mail Notes—Just a month ago we remarked that additional combinations in Group III on our chart could reasonably be expected to make an appearance soon. The mail this week substantiates our statement and specimens from the 6th printing (which forms a part of Group III) have been reported from several sources. From our West Coast correspondent, W. W. Hopkinson, we have a long list of combinations he has succeeded in locating, part of which, together with reports from Mrs. J. W. Lundy, Robert M. Storms and H. M. Southgate, enables us to chronicle 77 additional combinations for this group. Here they are:

Center 19666, borders 19697-698; center 19668, borders 19632-696-698-700; center 19674, borders 19628-696-698-700; center 19676, borders 19629-632-633-672-673 and 699 to 703, inc.; center 19677, borders 19614-631-673-696-697 and 700 to 703, inc.; center 19688, borders 19614-631-632-673-696 and 698 to 703, inc.; center 19689, borders 19632-633-673-696-697 and 699 to 703, inc.; center 19690, borders 19633-672-673 and 700 to 703, inc.; center 19691, borders 19632-672-700-702-703; center 19692, borders 19632-633-672-673 and 700 to 703, inc.; center 19693, borders 19632-672-673.

It will be observed that specimens from five center and six border plates are reported for the first time. And for the following notes on the subject we are indebted to Mr. Southgate, who writes: "The 6th Bureau printing of these bi-colors are now coming out and we will doubtless have all combinations of borders 19632-633, 672-673, 696 to 703, inclusive, with centers 19666-668, 674 to 677, inclusive, and 688 to 693, inclusive—equally common. The printings of centers 19668-676-677 and 688 with border numbers below 19632 will consequently not be duplicated in this 6th order, and as these four center plates were used only a comparatively short time towards the end of the 5th printing they should be sought for on the borders between 19606 and 19631, inclusive."

This Spring printing then, gives us 144 combinations and undoubtedly all will be reported in time. Our Washington correspondent states in a later letter that "border plates 19640 to 19643 will not be found as these four plates never went to press", so make a proper notation on your chart and forget them. We are, however, quite anxious to have some reader report the long missing center plates, 19636 to 19639, inc. Several times we have mentioned these four plates, but with correspondents from coast to coast, we have yet to find them. We know that they went to press, but that is about all we do know. Someone, somewhere, is going to run across these numbers sometime! And speaking of rare and hard to get combinations, Mr. Hopkinson informs me that both he and Mr. Hornbeck have at last secured a copy of 598-571 which we mentioned some time ago. But he doesn't state where he got them, nor why only two were found! Perhaps . . . ?

We have also one new combination to enter in Group II; center 19597, border 19701. This gives us exactly 35 border plates to be found in combination with this much used center. Reported first from Pennsylvania (Mrs. Lundy) and twice from California.

And now we come to a subject we have somewhat neglected, due, mainly, to press of other topics. We refer to the Kansas and Nebraska overprints. Here are major varieties, and as such should interest everyone. Being an exclusive product of the Bureau they naturally fall within our scope and several letters have been received with notes from time to time. Our list of the plates appearing with the state surcharges has recently been strengthened by a report from Mr. Southgate, and, as far as I know, is complete. Here they are:

Kansas

Nebraska

numbers also, included in the above. All of the above specimens are in the possession of our Washington correspondent who states: "It would seem probable that the 2c Nebraska would have other numbers and there is almost certainly a fourth 3 cent Kansas number—doubtless 18127. If other numbers are known I would be glad to learn of it." What is the earliest date of use of each denomination that anyone has? Mr. Southgate reports the 1c, 6c and 8c with the Kansas surcharge on April 15, 1929, and all other Kansas, April 16, 1929. The Nebraska surcharge is not as early for he further reports "all but the 1½c, 5c and 10c on April 17, 1929. The 10c, April 18th, and the 1½c and 5c on the 19th." Like everything else current, these stamps do not attract the attention past issues receive, but, nevertheless, they are important and should be secured while yet obtainable. These first plates are the forerunners of what may develop into a wide practice, and we are particularly anxious to chronicle all that have so far been located. Column readers who are interested in these stamps and who would like to know more about them may communicate directly with Mr. Southgate, whose address is 5800 Connecticut Ave., Chevy Chase, Maryland. If you have any duplicate numbers in blocks of four you would like to trade, include such in your letters. The foregoing offer, while exceptional, is open to all readers, who are advised to take advantage of it.

Lists of plate numbers and letters on various subjects are acknowledged from Robert M. Storms, Thomas H. Hawk (2), Mrs. J. W. Lundy (2), James R. Marshall, Walter W. Hopkinson, Benjamin Cadbury, L. O. Dutcher (specimens), William Ward, Charles W. Tuttle, George H. Whitelaw, George Brett, Charles Y. Clayton, George R. McNeil (2), Karl Wilcox and Sam Ribak. These included air mail combinations, Panama-Pacific plate specimens, Kansas-Nebraska lists, Edison oddities, Canal Zone plates, etc. Many thanks.

LANSDOWNE CLUB EXHIBITION

By PHILIP H. WARD, JR.

On November 29 and 30, 1929, the annual exhibition of the Lansdowne Stamp Club was held at the Lansdowne Bank and Trust Company in Lansdowne, a suburb beyond Philadelphia. The exhibition, which was well attended, was the fourth annual exhibit, and one who has attended the others, will readily agree that they are growing larger and better year by year. The local committee consisting of Lt. Com. R. W. Swearingen, Chairman, ably assisted by Messrs. Brazer, Emery, Hays, Hires and Meacham, deserve much credit for successfully staging one of the nicest small exhibitions that have taken place for some time.

Awards were made by the Board of Judges, consisting of Mr. Charles J. Phillips, Mr. Eugene Klein and Mr. Philip H. Ward, Jr.

The grand prize went to Mr. J. R. Huston for his specialized collection of Chile. The collection is well written up, shows study and thought and contains a number of choice and unusual pieces. Winners of first prizes in the several sections were—Mr. Clarence W. Brazer, for his general United States from 1847 to 1857; his surcharged U. S. and rarities, which included such outstanding pieces as—the 1869 15c and 24c inverted center, Mr. William G. Hires for his British Colonies, Dr. John B. Davis for Canada and Newfoundland, and Lt. Com. Swearingen for his Latvia and Ukrainia. This collection is supposed to be one of the finest now in existence and contains many rarities of these two countries.

Mrs. Mary G. Cook also won a first prize with a collection of Egypt, mounted in an unusually attractive manner.

Among the non-members, first award went to Mr. Hans Lagerlof for choice, selected lot of rarities. Dr. Gittelson received second award for high value and rare twentieth century British Colonies. The first prize to the juniors went to Frank Wagenknight.

Mr. E. E. Meacham was awarded a special first prize by the judges for his unusual mounting and the collection was as well written up and mounted as any that has been exhibited in recent years. Mr. Meacham has an artistic gift and is able to make sketches upon his pages of unusual attractiveness.

Among others who received awards was a first prize to Mr. G. M. Emery for his special entry of plate varieties of the 3c Bank Note issue. Mr. Emery also showed three frames of all denominations from 1869 to 1879, including a number with unique cancellations. I offhand noted a beautiful 1869 10c with the French anchor postmark, the same stamp with a Steamship cancellation, and some beautiful 1870 24c with red and foreign mail cancellations.

Mr. Herbert C. Hays showed a very interesting collection of early U. S. not for competition.

There were upward of forty entries, which were all neatly mounted under glass in a large light room, so that they could be inspected carefully.

STRAY ITEMS—

WE have been shown by Floyd D. Schockley an Ohio River Canal cover bearing date of Oct. 18, one day prior to the use of this stamp on first day covers.

CAN any reader give us the present address of W. C. Henry, formerly of Reno, Nev. Mail is returned "Left, no address given."

WHILE Mr. Dickason has mentioned in his department the new publication The Airpost Journal, we feel that the WEEKLY should give it a still further complimentary word. It is a very pretentious magazine, handsomely printed and illustrated. It is possible that you may secure a sample copy of the magazine at 108 State St., New Haven, Conn. You will be fortunate in having your request honored.

AUSTIN & BRETT

Some months ago we noticed that the firm of Austin and Brett was using considerable space in the British stamp papers, and we then came to the conclusion that if the firm could get results locally it certainly could overseas. We therefore solicited the firm's patronage with the results that several large advertisements have already appeared in the WEEKLY, and more are in the offing. This firm specializes in all stamps of the twentieth century, carry a large stock and are a really go-ahead pair. Their motto is "large sales, small profits." We feel that our readers can deal with them with every confidence.

BAY COLONY STAMP PROMISED

F. A. Tilton, Third Assistant Postmaster General, has written the Massachusetts Tercentenary Commission requesting suggestions for a design for a stamp commemorating the founding of the Massachusetts Bay Colony. Mr. Tilton is authority for the statement that the matter has been given favorable consideration. In his letter he suggests that in the interest of economy the stamp shall be of the size of the present 2c stamp, and that the design be adapted to that size. The stamp will be of the 2c denomination and printed in a single color. The matter of a special stamp has been pressed consistently and urgently by the Massachusetts Senators and Representatives since Nov. 8, 1928.

THE WAY TO BUENOS AIRES

During December there will be installed on the top of the new edifice of the National City Bank of New York a powerful reflector to denote to aviators the route to Buenos Aires. It will be the first apparatus of this nature to be installed in Buenos Aires, and it will undoubtedly prove to be of great service to commercial aviation, which is developing locally to an extraordinary extent. This reflector will be of 350 million candle power with a diameter of 90 centimeters, and the apparatus will be automatic. Its blue and white rays (the national colors) will be visible at a distance of 150 kilometers.

NEW SAAR CHARITY STAMPS

ESSEN, Nov. 26.

The Postal Administration of the Saargebiet which, as is well known, is under the guardianship of the League of Nations, has just commenced to mail a circular letter to collectors and dealers announcing that the Government Committee of the said territory will again issue a set of fine copper-engraved charity stamps. The circular, which is dated Saarbruecken, Nov. 16, 1929, makes no mention of the designs of the new stamps, nor does it furnish details in regard to their colors.

Below is a table from which may be seen the values that are intended to be issued, their selling prices, and the numbers to be printed:

Value.	Selling Price.	Issue
40 centimes	55 centimes	200,000
50 "	70 "	200,000
1fr	1.50fr	100,000
1.50fr	2.25fr	70,000
2fr	3fr	70,000
3fr	5fr	60,000
10fr	18fr	40,000

The price per set complete is 31.00fr, the present rate of exchange being about 25fr equal one U. S. dollar.

The sale at the post offices will probably commence towards the end of December; one is, however, willing to book already now preliminary orders, these orders to be accompanied by a remittance covering the selling value of the stamps plus postage and registry fee.

In the event of the quantities ordered exceeding those that will be printed, the stock available will be apportioned among the patrons according to the size of their orders. Arrangements will be made that a sufficient number of sets will be available for sale at the windows.

TRAGEDY OF "LA SEMEUSE"

Stamp Collecting tells us that according to a Central News message from Paris, the woman who as a girl was the model for the famous design "The Sower," which was formerly on French coins and still appears on postage stamps, has died in a miserable old age at Le Creusot. The artist Roty saw the girl barefooted in the fields, and induced her to pose for him for 16s. The one-time model recently attempted to secure an allowance from the State, but no one believed her story.

DEATH OF L. L. GREEN

L. L. Green, who for years has been one of the bulwarks in Boston philately, has just passed on. His interest in stamp collecting as a society member, collector, and a dealer has ever been a prominent factor in his life, and in our next issue we shall print from the pen of C. A. Howes, a fitting eulogy. He was a philatelist of the old school and a man whom to know was to respect.

Five minute talks were given as follows:—Ralph Glaze, pictorial Jamaica; Everett Thompson,

Editorial

THE Associated Press says in a despatch released recently that the Roger Williams Family Association and other groups interested in genealogical and historical subjects pertaining to New England are favoring the issue of a special stamp to commemorate the three hundredth anniversary of the founding of Rhode Island, in 1936. The suggestion is made that stamps or coins would fill the bill, although it may be that both are aimed at; and it is not to be said that time is not taken by its well-known forelock.

THERE is a possibility that an effort will be made to have the post office department recognize the 150th anniversary of the death of Brigadier General Pulaski; and the United States Pulaski Sesquicentennial Commission, for whose expenses an appropriation has been voted by Congress, has the stamp question under consideration. A correspondent says that he thinks that the International Petroleum Exposition at Tulsa, Oklahoma, will be eligible for special stamp honors, in view of the fact that the President of the U. S. has been authorized to issue invitations to the Exposition, by Congress.

A READER says that he has reason to believe that Iceland will celebrate the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the Parliament in the island by a special stamp issue, among other forms of observance. Prof. P. E. Rivera, Washington, writes that there is a likelihood that Spain will commemorate the third international congress of history and geography to be held in Seville, in May, 1930, by stamp recognition, thereby keeping in step with the movement of postally acclaiming the triumphs of peaceful progress. Delegates will represent the U. S. at the gathering.

JUST before the close of the preceding session, Congress appropriated the sum of $25,000 to effect cession of certain islands of the Samoan group to the United States, and we suppose that now Tutuila and Manua will have company in the Postal Guide and give the collector of covers from remote and obscure countries another round of philatelic rations.

MR. LUTHER ELY SMITH, St. Louis, sends a menu of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroads "Priscilla Alden Dining Car," which lists under "Postal Service in Colonial Days," nine items, the first of which is: "1673—First land conveyance of Letters between New York and Boston. Time, three weeks," and the last: "1790—Regular Mails between Boston and New York. Time, five days. Sent three times a week." The cracker on the whip is: "And such was the meaning of 'post haste' before the days" of this railroad; and none will say that it is not an admirable last line.

SOME time in October, 1929, a reader sent in the report that South Dakota was to be singled out to have its stamps overprinted as in the cases of Nebraska and Kansas. Assuming that possibly because of an epidemic of post office robberies in South Dakota, the authorities at Washington had decided to adopt this means of printed protection, we sought confirmation of the news, without result. The subject was dropped and it would not be referred to now, if it were not that a newspaper clipping, over a month old, had been seen, which says that "stamps" would be used to advertise the resources of South Dakota on all mail going out of the state. A series of five groups of stamps will attract attention to thirty different resources of the state, if the plans of the state chamber of commerce are effected. It is interesting to see how stories are sometimes distorted and how they may have the color of truth but yet be all wrong.

AMONG the recommendations made by the Postmaster General in his annual report were some of interest to stamp collectors. One of them is to extend the privilege, canceling by letterpress in quantity lots, to postal cards so that they may be on a par with stamped envelopes, in this regard. Another recommendation is a charge to be rated by stamp or otherwise for directory service for insufficiently or improperly addressed mail.

MR. A. F. AGNEW, St. Louis, writes that a bill was introduced into the House of Representatives by Congressman Dyer of St. Louis, to bestow "free and independent" government on the Philippines. We agree with Mr. Agnew that there would be changes in the stamp portraiture of the current Philippines if the bill should succeed in attaining its objective. While we are in the Philippines, we must report, albeit with reluctance, that Jose Topacio, formerly Director of Posts, has been charged with serious delinquencies in office and has been removed from the service.

WE were promised an authoritative interpretation of the customs regulations as affecting stamps by an officer of the treasury department who is in a position to appreciate the problems of the collector. The news comes that he has been ordered away on departmental work and inasmuch as there are forty-seven customs collection districts of the United States, which include one in Alaska, one in Hawaii, and one in Porto Rico, it is evident that there is no time for sleep on the job. Too, during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1929, the foreign goods imported into the United States were valued at the snug little sum of $4,291,857,565. We hope that the promised statement is just delayed and not defunct. Our understanding is that stamps are not dutiable per se but come as do other commodities under a valuation enactment that provides a tax levy on goods based on an excess over a limited invoice value.

FROM Adam Adman, we have received an account of the prices realized on some of the U. S., in E. Luder-Edelmann & Co.'s auction sale in Zurich on November 11th. The 30c of 1869, inverted center, $990; 12c, 1851, used $13-$14-$13; 1857-60, 90c unused, $24; $2 Omaha, $14 and $2 State, used, $13.50.

THE ways of the publicity agent are laws unto themselves. He can stimulate a fine frenzy, a fierce indignation, an embracing amiability or a rare compassion, with the wind; and he throws all his fits with an eye on the purse of his employer. Here is how a Dallas newspaper was told by a publicity man how mean stamp collectors are; and thereupon, the paper flung forth the headline: "Stamp Collectors Hound M'Laglen." We read: "The bane of Victor McLag-en's life is stamp collecting. Recently, a story to the effect that McLaglen's fan mail comes from all parts of the world went the rounds of the press and ever since, McLaglen has been besieged by stamp collectors in person, by telephone and by mail." Then a list of countries is given where the film hero has correspondents, and we must say that the compilation is very elementary and would not excite the veriest tyro, but we suppose that the "various out of the way places in the world" caught the fancy of the stamp collectors who just can't leave him alone!

Official Items

The first issue of The Airpost Journal amply fulfills all advance expectations. It sets out very definitely to be a magazine for the serious collector of Air Mail stamps and covers, and devotes a great deal of attention to early flights and covers. It is well gotten up from the physical point of view, and its staff of contributing editors could leave little to be desired. I congratulate its sponsors on the first issue, and suggest that every reader will enjoy a sample copy, which may be procured from the publisher at 108 State St., New Haven, Conn.

As winter weather sets in, at least over my particular portion of the United States, activities in the aviation world naturally slacken up somewhat, and this slackening is reflected in the absence of much in the way of definite news of future first flights. I am going to take advantage of the opportunity thus afforded, and use a little material from time to time dealing with covers and flights long since out of the novelty stage. So many of our present day multitude of air mail collectors have taken up the hobby so recently that even the earlier CAM's are a strange territory to them. This fast growth is fine, but we will all do well to center our attention on some of the things we missed before we started collecting, while the new events are not coming along quite so frequently.

At a recent meeting of one of the largest of the local Air Mail Societies, an organization boasting of over 70 active members, some interesting facts were brought out by some questions put by the President. He simply asked those who had in their collection CAM routes 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, etc., complete to hold up their hands. Out of that crowd of active collectors, over 50 of whom were present at the meeting, only a scattering 3 or 4 hands went up as each route was called—and they were mostly the same hands. Recently published figures on the total amount of mail carried on the first trips of these earlier routes can leave no doubt at all as to what is going to happen to prices of the covers if and when the recruits of the past 2 years start filling in their blanks. And my firm opinion, and strong exhortation, is that these collectors, who unquestionably form a numerical majority of the whole group right now, are going to be doing that very thing before very long.

I want to repeat that the initials of Mr. Woodward, of Chappaqua, N. Y., are K. N., and not L. N., as printed through an unfortunate error. If you have had a letter returned by the Chappaqua P. M., try again, and be sure and enclose return postage. Mr. Woodward's offer of help had to do with future service from Venezuela.

Johnny's Diary

July 10.—Willy and me went to some down town offices today and got a lot of Columbians they've been saving for us. It's great to get on the good side of these office fellers. One of them had brought down some stamps he got on his brother's letters while he was travelling and we got some new ones and some nice traders. We divided the Columbians and Willy took his down and traded them to a dealer for a set of Tonga. When he showed them to Mr. Waters after supper he grinned and said a Tongoose was no earthly good, and the feller that bought 'em was the biggest goose in the outfit. I traded my Columbians to him for 2 Fiji and some France I didn't have. I got 22 new ones today and Willy only got 14 'cause he got stuck on the pretty colors of those Tonga. Mr. Waters told Willy he would he runnin' to "see Becks" next and he and another man who was with him grinned again but I couldn't see anything funny in it. I guess Becks is a dealer that gouges kid collectors.

July 11.—Willy and me went out in the country today to see Mrs. Jennings. It's 3 miles out, but it's jolly out there and we ate lots of fruit. We fought out a bumblebee nest too and ate the honey. You take a branch and beat on the hole till they come out and then try to kill them before they get to you. We almost did it, and their stings don't hurt much. I didn't think it was much use, but we asked Mrs. Jennings for stamps and darn if she didn't get out some letters her husband had wrote her before they were married, and after she had cried over them a little she let us take the stamps off careful. The only good ones were some 1853 envelopes but we got 2 with straight ends and a dozen of the common ones and a strip of 3 of the first 1 cent stamps. Tonight we traded them to Mr. Waters for another 5c 1847. I let Willy have that 'cause he got stung the most. And on the way home we saw some of the boys and traded off those envelope stamps.

July 12.—Last night I drempt that the King of France came in my room and asked if I was the boy that was collecting and when I said yes he went into his pockets and pulled out a big slough of unused France and some others and gave them to me. I was so tickled thinkin' how mad Willy would be that I hurt all over inside. While I was lookin' at 'em I came across one big one with a picture of a feller with a sword. I knew there wasn't any such stamp and said so to the King. Then the feller on the stamp sung out, They ain't, ain't they, and hopped out of the stamp and swelled up. Then he piled up on the bed and began jabbin' me in the stummik with the sword till I thought I'd die. The King was mad, too, and he came around and went to kicking me, and I was most dead when I woke up and found Mom and Pop and the doctor there. Mom says I shan't go to Mrs. Jennings any more till I learn that green apples is good for pies and not for kids. I've been too tired all day to chase stamps, but I fixed up my traders in a blank book so they look good. Willy came over tonight and we fixed up the scheme on that trycicle.

National Versammlung.—In 1919 the German Republic issued stamps with these two words inscribed on them. They mean "National Assembly", and with reference to the law making body in session at Weimar, these stamps are referred to as the Weimar issue.

Noah in the Dark

By EVERETT KLAAS.

Long ago in the ages dark
  Old Man Noah built an ark.
He filled it full of pairs of things,
  Snakes and beasts and birds with wings.
If he had lived in this day and age
  When stamp collecting is the rage,
He'd left his zoo to dews and damps,
  And filled his ark with postage stamps.

Old Man Noah with joy never thrilled
  With each blank space in his album filled,
But had to be with his ark content,
  Full of strange beasts like a circus tent.
If he had lived in the times we do
  He'd never have bothered with a zoo,
But spent the days of inundation
  Mounting stamps as his recreation.

Emblems Watermark

One of the watermarks found in connection with various stamps of Great Britain issued during the period 1856-67. The watermark consists of two roses, a shamrock and a thistle, thus being emblematic of the three sister kingdoms of England, Ireland and Scotland. It is sometimes known as the "four flowers" watermark.

Junior Dictionary

Moscopolis Issue.—An emission of stamps of doubtful character, which are alleged to have done postal duty at Moscopolis in Epirus. The lower values, to 50 lep., are steel engravings, and some of them were passed through the post office on account of the complaisance of the postmaster. These were printed in sheets of 25, and came on the market cancelled to order en bloc; one large aniline postmark covering four stamps. The higher values, to 25dr, never did even the dubious work of the lepta values, and are nothing more than doubtfully-ornamental "labels." Later this issue appeared with a Greek surcharge also faked.

Mount Athos.—A mountain in Turkey-in-Europe rising to a height of 6,332 feet and noted for its monastery. In 1882 the stamps used in the town of the same name and surrounding district, were overprinted with a triangular control mark in blue. In 1909-10 the Russian Levant stamps used in the consular office here were specially overprinted "Mont-Athos."

Mount Currie Express. — A local post operating in Griqualand about 1873-4 in connection with which special stamps were issued.

National Bank Note Co.—A well-known firm of printers and engravers of New York, who produced all the stamps of the United States from 1861 to 1873.

Dominican Republic

Santo Domingo, now more generally known as the Dominican Republic, was formerly the Spanish portion of the island of Hayti. It is the oldest settlement of European origin in the American continent, having been founded in 1494. Postage stamps for the use of this republic were first issued in 1865.

The Manufacture of Stamps

By BERTRAM W. H. POOLE.

No. 1—Line Engraving

The three chief processes employed in the manufacture of postage stamps are line-engraving, surface printing or typography, and lithography. Other processes occasionally employed are variations of these three, which I have placed in their order of importance.

Line-engraving merits first place for several reasons. It was the process employed in the production of most postage stamps issued during the twenty-five years immediately following their invention, it is a process productive of more artistic results than any other.

The procedure adopted is as follows:—A drawing of the proposed design is prepared, generally on an enlarged scale, and when this has been approved by the responsible authorities, a copy of it, but with all the details reversed, is made by a skilled engraver on a flat slab of especially prepared steel. This engraving is the exact size the stamp will be when printed and it is technically known as the "die" or "matrix." The slab of steel forming the die is "softened" so that the engraver can work it the more easily, but when his work is complete the die is hardened and is then in such state that innumerable impressions, all absolutely alike, can be taken from it. On the die not only is the design reversed but the parts that will show in color on the finished stamps are cut into the steel while the uncolored parts are in relief. When the die has been hardened an impression (or several impressions if required) is transferred to a small roller of "softened" steel under a heavy pressure. On the roll the design is again reversed as compared with that on the die, the lines which had previously been in recess now being in relief and vice-versa, while the design is now like it will be on the finished stamps. This "transfer roll" has in turn to be hardened and from this the plate or plates used for printing are made. Impressions from the roller are made as many times as are necessary on the "plate" until it contains the desired number of stamps, each impression, of course, being exactly like all the others. This process again reverses the design and the impressions on the plate are exactly similar to the die, the parts that will show in color in the printed stamps being cut into the steel. Any desired marginal inscriptions, plate numbers etc., are now added, the superfluous ridges of steel between the impressions due to the heavy pressure employed, are toned down, and after the hardening process, the plate is ready for the printer.

In printing, considerable force is necessary to properly fill the hollows with ink and all that adheres to the surface of the plate is carefully wiped off. Then the paper, which has been previously dampened, is applied in such a manner that it is forced into all the small lines and hollows and so takes up the ink with which they are filled. On many stamps produced by line-engraving the ridges of color can not only be seen quite distinctly but they are prominent enough to be felt.

It will be readily understood that when the above process is properly carried out each stamp on a sheet is an exact facsimile of all the others. It requires special machinery and skilled workmanship so that it can only be employed by a limited number of firms. In some countries when stamps were first needed and the necessary machinery, etc., for high class work was not available, the authorities had to make shift with such plates as local talent could furnish. In many of these cases it was not possible or convenient to engrave a die but the design had to be engraved direct on to the plate. In these instances, too, the plates were of copper as being an easier medium to work on. The most experienced engraver could hardly reproduce the same design twice exactly alike and as the engravers responsible for these locally engraved stamps were rarely too well skilled it follows that each design on the plate differs more or less materially from the others and owing to this fact specialists can now "reconstruct" these plates. Owing to the difficulties in the way of obtaining even tolerably close copies of the design these plates usually contained but a small number of impressions. Stamps produced by this means include such well known favorites as the 'Sydney Views" of New South Wales, 'Post Paid" Mauritius, early Tasmania, 1866-67 Bolivia, and St. Louis, Baltimore, and Providence Postmasters' stamps of the United States. Naturally, being made of such a soft material as copper, these plates soon showed signs of wear, with the result that in many cases "retouching" and "re-engraving" were resorted to. In retouching, those parts of the design which were worn away were restored, while in re-engraving practically the whole of the design was recut, often in such a manner as to be almost unrecognisable from the original.

In one instance stamps produced by line-engraving were printed direct from the original dies. This happened in the case of the famous "Post Office" Mauritius stamps when the single designs engraved for the 1d and 2d labels were at once the dies and the plates.

HAITIAN "T. M." OVERPRINTS, 1923

By HARRY E. HUBER.

In 1923 large quantities of the 5c, 10c and 15c of the Agriculture and Commerce series of April, 1920, were handstamped "T. M." within a horizontal rectangle (with rounded corners), 23 x 20mm, in blue (5c and 10c) or red (15c), for use as Timbre Mobile, or documentary stamps. The note after No. 314 in Scott's catalogue is somewhat misleading, as the 3c and 25c of this series were not overprinted. This overprint was also applied in blue to No. 180, 50c claret, Nord Alexis, 1904 series, handstamped in black "Gl.O.Z.—7 Fev. 1914." These overprinted stamps were used only while a definite series was being prepared by the American Bank Note Co.

The definite stamps are horizontal rectangular, 29 x 22mm, with the National Arms on a central circular medallion, at the left of which is "Timbre—G.O.05", and at the right, "Mobile—G.O.05". Across the top of the design is "Republique d'Haiti", and at the foot, a space for "Date" and "Signature". Under each stamp in small colored caps is "American Bank Note Co." I have seen the 5c green, 10c carmine, and 20c blue in this design.

No. 7--BN of the Peach Orchard Series of Handy Reference Leaflets will not appear in any advertisement. Neither will No. 6a, wherein are a few caustic remarks about those confirmed — well, call them optimists — who can tell National and Continental 30c and 90c apart with both hands tied and their eyes shut. They may be shocked!

No. 6a and No. 7 will be supplied only to subscribers to the complete series of Bank Note leaflets. If enough dollar subscriptions are received to yield a substantial surplus above the cost of preparing and mailing the leaflets that surplus will be used to publish a "U. S. Bank Note Issue" book—illustrated, of course,—wherein much additional information, argument, sizzling comment and contempt for grand-stand-know-it-alls is likely to appear.

If you don't know anything about "Bank Notes", and don't want to, shoot in your subscription anyhow, and if the book keeps you awake long after friend wife has given up trying to find out why you bid "three no trump" when the opposition held the ace of clubs and eleven more, and gone to sleep, just remember there is more than one kind of "Specialist" in the world—and let her snore.

I don't know what I'll charge for the book. I've already spent over $500 in perfectly good cash just to get some of the data you won't find in print anywhere, and get it right, and when I tried to sell the story the first offer wasn't enough to pay for $41 worth of illustrations, so I'm going to keep on talking about it until the subscriptions total 41. After that I don't care what happens.

Here's a lovely collection containing a pair of 6c Agriculture perfectly tied, 7c Treasury, 30c Justice, Treasury and Post Office, 90c Interior, and a fine lot of Executive, State, Navy, etc. Many items probably unique, or nearly so. First check for $2,000 takes them all.

"WALCOTT" COVERS

I take great pleasure in announcing that I have acquired the wonderful early United States cover collection of Mr. George Walcott. Mr. Walcott has collected covers for many years and possessed one of the few fine United States cover collections in existence. This is going to be broken up and communications are solicited from interested parties.

In the 1847 issue, there are upward of two hundred covers, including magnificent singles, pairs and strips. Many of these are used from small towns, including unusual postmarks, such as the Trenton star, the Birmingham zig-zag, some used from Canada, as well as Steamboats and other transit postmarks.

Among the 1851 issue, all denominations are represented, including the 1851 5c block of five on cover—the finest used block of this stamp in existence. There is a block of six and numerous singles from unusual places. There are several outstanding 12c items, including singles, pairs and strips, with many used abroad.

In the 1857 series, the 5c, 24c and 30c are among the most important. All shades of the 5c, including magnificent strips, are available. There are upward of twenty-five of the two higher denominations, showing different usages and markings.

Announcement regarding the later covers will be made next week.

These covers are being priced individually and will be submitted to responsible collectors.

If you have anything to offer in the way of early United States issues, in magnificent condition, highest market prices are paid for important items and properties. Mint singles, blocks and covers, especially desired.

STAMPS AND RELIGION

The miniature picture gallery of postage stamps presents a wide range of subjects associated with the religions of the world. A remarkable monograph has been written by two French authors on the Christian Inspiration in stamp designs ("L'Inspiration Chrétienne et la Philatélie," by V. Gisquiere and S. Strowski, Amiens, 6 francs) which shows something of the extent to which Christian emblems and Scriptural themes have been utilised by stamp designers. Crosses in many of their varied forms figure on stamps. One which is a quatrefoil in the watermark of some British stamp paper gave offence to Moslems when used for the pretty camel stamps of Sudan in 1898, but aroused no protest from the Malays of Johore, where it was in use from 1896 to 1912.

The Star of Bethlehem made an unexpected entry as an overprint on Turkish stamps issued during the war, a six-pointed star being used in mistake for the five-pointed star that accompanies the crescent emblem of the Turks. It was replaced by a five-pointed star in 1916.

The infant Jesus is represented in the vision of St. Anthony on stamps of Portugal and with the Virgin Mary on stamps of Hungary, Bavaria, Liechtenstein, and the Saar. Among many religious subjects used on Italian stamps that on the issue of 1923 to celebrate the tercentenary of the congregation "De Propaganda Fide" is the most striking, showing Christ after the Resurrection enjoining His disciples: "Go ye into all the world and preach the Gospel to every creature."

Holy Year and the St. Francis d'Assisi celebrations have afforded Italy recent opportunities of issuing stamps of religious interest, and the present year will add a set to commemorate the fourteenth centenary of Monte Cassino, in connection with which celebrations have begun and will continue for some months. A portrait of the Pope has been presented on the "catacombs" series of Spanish stamps this year.

There is a long list of saints pictured on stamps, but the St. Anthony series of Portugal is the most curious of the varied incidents in his life depicted, and for the curious invocation, commencing "O blessed tongue," which is printed on the gummed side of the stamps. The shipwreck of St. Paul is the theme of some of the 10s stamps of Malta, and a religious service the celebration of Mass on the Mount of Crosses, is depicted on the 1 peso stamp of Mexico's 1910 issue.

To these varied subjects may be added many scenes from Bible lands on the British issues for Palestine and the French issues for Syria and Grand Lebanon.

Easter Island, that remote outpost of the South-East Pacific, has its mystery for the stamp collector, small in comparison with the mystery of its mighty monuments and images. A member of the expedition in the non-magnetic yacht "Carnegie" in 1916, Captain Bradley Jones, appears to have obtained three stamps of the 1915 Chilean issue, overprinted "Rapa-Nui" (Great Rapa), the native name of the island. He and other members of the expedition posted letters with these stamps to await the arrival of the trading schooner from Chile, but the letters were never delivered. Four or five unused copies of the stamps retained by Captain Jones have been the subject of a good deal of enquiry in the United States, but no reliable information has been forthcoming.

At the time of the visit of the "Carnegie" the population was roughly 250, all Kanakas save two, the Governor (a Chilean) and a Portuguese, the sole survivor of a shipwreck who had gone native. So the need for postage stamps on Easter Island could not have been a pressing one.—Stamp Lover.

unless you are dissatisfied with the usual run of approvals you have been getting, and would like to look at something different. Our net approval books do not contain any great rarities nor any junk, just good stamps priced net, at better than 50% disc. If you are a general collector, with less than twenty thousand stamps, and will buy at least two dollars' worth at a time, send for a selection, we know that you will be more than pleased. First class references are of course required. [30

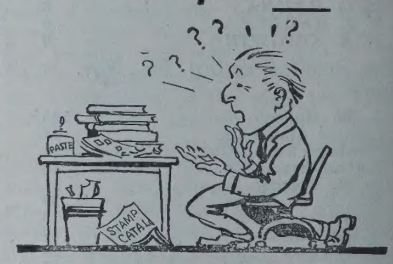
Where do I put this one?



Did you ever have difficulty in locating the country to which a certain stamp belongs because you couldn't read the foreign language on the stamp or because it was so confusingly like several other countries that you didn't stumble onto the right one, or because the occupational surcharge placed it in another country and you didn't just recall which? Sure you have! Every collector who has sorted a bunch of stamps has wasted five minutes here, thirty minutes there, and has become exasperated and put it away to ask a friend where it went, or to wait until he stumbled across it at some future date.

The Easy Index of Stamps will give you immediate reference from whatever appears on the face of the stamp to the country to which it belongs. If your time is worth anything at all, this index will save you its price in time hundreds of times over.

Foreign New Issues

PERCY C. SMITH, Editor,
Lexington, Mass.

(Information in regard to new issues and varieties will be welcome. If reply be necessary, enclose self-addressed stamped envelope.)

Abyssinia. — According to information received by the Economist Bulletin we learn that by special order of the king and to more or less commemorate the first air mail flight in this country, fifteen hundred complete sets of the 1928 issue, Types A22 and A23, were handstamped in red or violet with an aeroplane surrounded by native inscription, the translation of which is "August 16th, 1929, Air Mail of the Ethiopian government." ⅛m orange and light blue (violet), ¼m indigo and red-orange (violet), ½m gray-green and black (red), 1m dark carmine and black (violet), 2m dark blue and black (red), 4m yellow and olive (violet), 8m violet and olive (red), 1T orange-brown and violet (violet), 2T green and bistre (red), 3T chocolate and green (red).

Algeria. — L'Echo de la Timbrologie announces that the current 75 centimes stamp has been changed from carmine to blue.

Andorra.—Mr. M. Galvez of Madrid sends illustrations of the new set of stamps of this country. There are five different designs, four of them picturing historical buildings, while the fifth shows a group of men with the words "Concell General" above. The values are 2c, 5c, 10c, 15c, 20c, 25c, 30c, 40c, 50c, 1P, 4P and 10P. Also a 20c special delivery stamp with an eagle in flight for the central figure with "Correo Urgente" in two lines below.

Angola.—The new charity postage stamp is described and illustrated in Illustriertes Briefmarken Zeitung on authority of Consul George of Lisbon. It is a somewhat crude production with a figure of a Sister of Mercy as its central motif, lithographed, with the inscription "Governo General De Angola" in white Roman capitals upon a solid ground at the top and "50C. Assistencia" at the foot. Issued at Sao Paulo de Loando on July 1, 1929, it represented apparently a supplementary tax on correspondence, and did not itself pay postage. The color is dark blue.

Belgium. — Stamp Collecting states that the values, colors and subjects of the anti-tuberculosis charity stamps to be sold by Belgian post offices between December 1, 1929, and January 15, 1930, are 5+5c brown (Cascade of Coo), 25+15c gray-blue (Bayard's Leap, Dinant), 35+10c green (Menin Gate, Ypres), 60+15c claret (Promenade d'Orleans, Spa), 1.75fr+25c blue (Roadstead of Antwerp), 5+5fr mauve (Quai Verte, Bruges).

Paraguay. — Whitfield King & Co. advise that the 50c orange, design A47, has been overprinted "C" in black.

Senegal.—L'Echo de la Timbrologie learns that a special issue of air post stamps is expected in this colony, which is the termini of the transatlantic air line. There will be three types uniformly inscribed "Poste Avion Senegal" and representative of aeroplanes flying over West African landscapes: one for the denominations 1, 2 and 3.50fr, the second for those of the 5, 6.50 and 7fr values, while the third will be for the 10, 15 and 20frs.

Surinam. — Federation Internationale de la Presse Philatelique reports that the annual issue of Green Cross stamps will be made on December 1, 1929, and will remain in circulation for the period of five months. The design reproduces a picture of the "Good Samaritan" by the Dutch painter, Andre Van de Vossen, of Overeen, the stamps being printed by rotogravure process in the atelier of J. Enschede & Sons, Haarlem, in the following denominations: 1½+1½c green, 2+2c red, 5+3c blue, and 6+4c black.

Turkey.—The Economist Bulletin is informed by a correspondent that one stamp in the 1929 provisional series has appeared with inverted surcharge. It is the 20pa on 1gr, bright rose, and only one sheet of one hundred stamps exists.

Whitfield King & Co. have submitted for chronicle 2k gray and 3k puce, design similar to D5, but with Latin inscription, and 6k deep violet, type A66, but with the same inscription as the other two values.

Uruguay.—Bulletin Mensuel records the numbers of the triangular parcel post stamps issued last August: 10c, 50,000; 15c, 50,000; 20c, 5,000; 25c, 50,000; 50c, 25,000; 75c, 20,000 and 1p, 15,000.

NEBRASKA PRECANCELLED

By DESLEY L. TAYLOR, Carleton, Neb.

I received some information about the five and ten cent overprinted Nebr. stamps precancelled Hastings, Nebraska, that might be of interest to you.

Of prime concern is a letter from A. L. Bickel at the Hastings post office in which he states:

"The Postmaster referred to me your communication regarding the Nebr. overprints which were precancelled at Hastings, and I will try to answer the questions therein.

"A large lot of the Nebr. stamps were precancelled immediately after being received here, and before the order from the Third Assistant had been received by this office.

"We precancelled three, four, five, six, seven, eight, nine, and ten centers. I don't know just how many of each were precancelled; probably from 20,000 to 40,000 of each variety."

A. F. Gamber had the following to say:

"The Hastings office usually precancels everything in stock. There was a time not so long ago, but now past, I believe, when considerable favoritism was practiced there in precancelling. But this isn't the only office that has precancelled the state controls. Several of the Kansas and Nebraska offices have done so. I saw a note the other day of a Missouri office having overprinted a two cent Kansas. I know the departmental rule forbids such overprinting, but what is an office to do that has none other to precancel? If postmasters obeyed every rule made for their benefit (?) they'd be as busy as you and I would be if we obeyed every law passed."

Joseph J. Gloeb, publisher of The Precancel Bee, Omaha, writes:

"The ruling of the Post Office department not to precancel the stamps didn't seem to hold with a lot of small town postmasters as I have seen many other cities using the surcharged stamps in precancelled form, in Kansas, as well as Nebraska. They will no doubt be more valuable than those without surcharge and precancelled, and they will be listed in forthcoming precancel catalogs."

I have not yet received a reply from a letter to Third Assistant Postmaster General Tilton, but as soon as I hear from him, I will let you know his opinion.

I know a fellow who can't tell which is the top side to an Afghan stamp. He buys two of each and mounts one each way. One is bound to be right.

OH, BOY! A JAZZ STAMP

My idea for a 1929 commemorative would be one large enough to show Geo. Rogers Clark sailing down the Ohio River Canal with Major Gen. Sullivan before him holding an Edison Jubilee Light to guide him, and Anthony Wayne bringing up the rear as a body guard.

I was inclined to laugh indulgently over the names of the Newfoundland towns depicted on the Guy issue, Cupide and Mosquito. But these U. S. A. towns of yours take the ivory pancake. A map of Pennsylvania yields "Frogtown" and "Duck Run." West Va. has Left Hand and Odd Barn. Washington gave Cactus and Horse Heaven. And Texas smiles upon us with Ozone and Turpentine!

A very proud and haughty old gentleman once started a stamp collection. One day he received a letter from a dealer as follows, "You can form a better collection with the help of our weekly approval." He replied, "I can form a darn good collection without anyone's approval!"

The half center, once boomed as a stamp that would always be scarce precancelled, is coming out in great numbers now. Many business firms prefer it on circulars, because the presence of two stamps thereon makes the recipient think he's drawn something of value, whereas the presence of the humble 1c brands it on its face as a mere circular, which is dumped pronto. The Department recently issued a request that firms use the 1c rather than two ½c, and then proceeded to fill requisitions from four cities, Philadelphia, Boston, Chicago, and New York, for Bureau Prints in ½c value. This no doubt accounts for the great numbers of ½c we see precancelled now.

And while on the subject of the ½c, mark it down as absolutely the homeliest stamp this country, issuer of the world's homeliest stamps, ever issued, bar none.

Considerable good white paper and good black ink is being wasted in debating the relative merits of Bureau Print catalog listings by states versus by cities. It reminds us of the old debate, shall we mount an inverted precancel so as to show the stamp inverted or the precancellation inverted? And both of them approach in merit that still older question for debate, which is older, the hen or the egg? Mount them as you please, you are the one to be suited. And arrange your Bureaus by states or by cities, as you please, they're yours. Mine are arranged by states and always will be, no matter if the catalog is always arranged by cities, because I started them that way and don't want to change.

What is on your precancelitic mind tonight? Let us have it, it would sound good here and will help out. The editor is moving to another part of town and is too busy to set down a great deal of this matter at present.

Mexico City-Laredo line, abandoned last March when the Brownsville route was opened.George H. Kieley relays word from P. M. Gerald Bliss, Cristobal, that several hundred covers, with remittances, are in his office waiting for first flights to Trinidad, Venezuela, the Guianas, etc. Mr. Bliss says that these covers are still held, in absence of instructions pending possible future first flights. He will return them on a request, accompanied by return postage. He does ask, however, that collectors do not bother his office any more than is absolutely necessary with letters of inquiry, and I hope you'll cooperate with Mr. Bliss, who is undoubtedly one of the most obliging Postmasters on the job anywhere.

You might be interested in a list of stops on FAM's 9 and 5, as given in a recent Dept. of Commerce Bulletin: Buenos Aires and Mendoza, Argentina; Santiago, Antofagasta, and Arica, Chile; Mollendo, Lima, Talara, and Paita, Peru; Guayaquil, Ecuador; Tumaco and Buenaventura, Colombia; Colon and David, Panama; Punta Arenas, Costa Rica; Managua, Nicaragua; Belize, Br. Honduras; Havana, Cuba; Miami, Fla. You'll notice that Cristobal, C. Z., and Tela, Honduras, are missing from the list. Cristobal mail is doubtless handled by the Panama stop, but I have no explanation for the omission of Tela, unless it is only a southbound stop.

I made mention last week of Uruguay mail carried on the Buenos Aires extension of FAM 9, and I have now received covers sent by the same flight addressed to Paraguay. These have the Asuncion backstamp of Oct. 20, six days after that of Buenos Aires.Beginning Jan. 1st, the Miami-San Juan part of FAM 6 will go on a daily instead of tri-weekly schedule. Miami-Nassau service reopens the same date. Service on the Miami-Havana line goes to seven trips a day, though this is primarily for passengers, and may or may not affect the mail schedule.

I have recently received covers from Tegucigalpa, Honduras, backstamped Tela, Oct. 7, the same date as the postmark at Tegucigalpa, and received at Cristobal the 17th. A round cachet in magenta reads: "Servicio Postal Aereo-Tegucigalpa-Tela-Miami-Primer Vuelo-D. G. C.-Oct. 7, 1929." These covers bear the overprinted Honduras air mail provisional stamps, about which there has been some discussion recently. I should appreciate any more detailed information about these covers.

See last week's Stop Press for announcement of a new Canadian service opening Dec. 20th.Word of the inauguration of experimental service Montreal-Quebec-Moncton-St. Johns, Dec. 9th, arrived too late for publication. If you are on the Canadian P. O.'s mailing list (P. O. Dept., Ottawa), you got the news in time to get in your covers.

Airport Dedications, Etc.

I believe that this is a particularly opportune time, what with Armistice Day, Wright Anniversary, and route anniversary cachets coming thick and fast, to express my own opinion on a few more things. As I see the present tendency with the average collector, airport dedication covers, certain major shows and meets, and a select few of the other unofficially sponsored cachets are still going strong. There is an unmistakable tendency, however, to more and more pass up these very unnecessary—to say the least—26th anniversaries, and similar covers. Some events are legitimate objects of commemoration and some are not, and common sense should draw the line. The cure lies with collectors themselves, as behind practically every such cachet, sponsored by contractor or Chamber of Commerce, are one or several local collectors, whose normally better judgment is for the moment obscured by their enthusiasm for the local event. As I stated when undertaking the compilation of this column, I shall publish news of all events wherever possible, and let the reader choose what he wishes to collect, but I can't help expressing my own personal thoughts on the subject. A little birth control which will prevent some of these cachets from ever appearing will prevent a lot of future weeding out—of that I feel certain. One thing to congratulate ourselves on, anyway—I've seen no Thanksgiving Day cachets!

Chas. G. Reiss tells me that the Schenectady, N. Y., airport was dedicated June 1, 2, and 3, 1928. June 1 covers, of course, bear the CAM 20 inaugural cachet; none was used the other 2 days. Does anyone have covers of either the 2nd or 3rd?Looks like someone was kidding us on that so-called Auburn, Me., dedication Nov. 8th. C. of C. says no airport, or prospect of one, and covers were evidently mailed out to get rid of them.

Duluth, Minn., dedicates next July 4, 5 and 6, and C. of C. say they already have 3,500 covers in for the cachet.Paso Robles, Calif., plans did not work out, and there will be no dedication there. However, C. W. Horn, of Atascadero, nearby, tells me that covers sent in will be held for the Atascadero dedication, which will take place soon after the 1st of the year.Miami, Fla., says no cachet for Air Races or Dirigible Airport dedication Jan. 13-15.Hendersonville, N. C., C. of C. will sponsor a cachet soon for a dedication which is doubtless that of the Asheville-Hendersonville airport.

National Glider Conference at Detroit used cachets from Dearborn on Nov. 23, Detroit the 24th, in a variety of colors. My notes on the Selma, Ala., dedication, which took place on Armistice Day, made it appear that the cachet was merely in commemoration of Armistice Day, whereas the occasion very definitely was the dedication of a new airport, planned for the summer, but postponed till Nov. 11th, and sponsored by the Legion.R. I. Weiss reports covers mailed on the occasion of Gov. Byrd's Air Tour of Virginia. These came from Port Richmond, bear the red cachet used for the Oct., 1928, dedication, with the words, "Annual Inspection Governor Byrd Tour, Nov. 21, 1929" written under it.

Charles Urnick, Jr., mailed covers for the World Engineering Congress in Tokio, Oct. 29-Nov. 22, and received them dated Nov. 7th, but with no special cachet. Anyone else try this?Huntington, W. Va., cachet evidently arrived, as covers are at hand, dated Nov. 26.—Nice cachet, anyway.Pontiac, Mich., celebrated its new post office with a cachet Nov. 25, and on Nov. 27 dedicated a new hangar, this also being the 1st anniversary of air mail service on CAM 27 locally—special cachet here, also.First Anniversary CAM 30 produced a duodekagonical (?) cachet from each city on the route, colors varying.

Antonito, Colo., mailed 1,500 letters by the special flight to Alamosa, Nov. 11th, on the occasion of the Alamosa dedication. Antonito did not dedicate, having already done so Nov. 12, 1928, using no cachet at the time. Edward Friedman very kindly sends me a cover bearing both the Antonito and Alamosa cachets, which he says is one of 4 so cacheted.S. K. Steinfeld says that about 1,300 covers were mailed from the Menafee dedication at New Orleans on Nov. 2, and about 700 on the 3rd.Butler, Mo., C. of C. mailed about 500 letters from their dedication Sept. 10.

STRAY NOTES ON EGYPT

By G. SEYMOUR THOMPSON.

It may be news to some people that the illustration of the overprint of the Sudan first issue in Stanley Gibbons' Catalogue is not true to any type and more nearly resembles a type of forgery than the genuine. The matter is to receive attention, I am informed, in their 1931 catalogue, when it is hoped that the six normal types can be illustrated. Such an illustration might be more helpful than pictures of pretty but comparatively valueless stamps.

It is doubtful whether the obelisk illustrated in the second type of Egypt is intended to be "Cleopatra's needle," as some authors describe it. The particular obelisk, now a feature of London life, lay for many years prone upon the sands at Alexandria. Pompey's column is also at Alexandria, but there is an obelisk now in situ at Heliopolis (late On), one in Paris, one in New York, and, of course, several in Upper Egypt. As the "Needle" only come to London in 1878, and the stamps were produced in 1867, it is possible. The two columns symbolize Egypt under the Ptolemies and the Pharaohs respectively.

Whilst on the subject of minutiæ, can anyone decipher the registration number of the motor-cyclist on the new Egyptian Express stamp? I make it Y203 followed by the Arabic equivalent.

Students of the 1867 Egyptian issue will notice the variety of expressions upon the face of the Sphinx. Sometimes the eyes are merely sightless, sometimes they have pupils, and in one version there is a sideways leer, the enigmatical smile of the Sphinx, a prototype of the Mona Lisa. The amorphous sphinx of the 1872 issue gave place to an artistic and far too polite a version in 1879, an "April Fool" joke perhaps (see catalogue, p. 306), which should be compared with the photographic type of 1914. The Pyramids, bereft of their outer casing of alabaster, are now merely a succession of steps, large tapering to small, and no philatelic version is sufficiently "close-up" to demonstrate this. The Turkish type 78 shows a view familiar to tourists who take the train from Ghezireh to Mena House at fairly high Nile.

To be comfortable in Egypt one must speak five languages, English, French, Greek, Italian, and Arabic. King Fuad, although completely identified with the interests of his country, is Turkish, not Egyptian, and his own language is Turkish: Arabic he had to learn like George I learnt English, but thoroughly. Telephone numbers can be asked for and wrong numbers obtained in any of the five languages, and all have swear-words; the postman, usually a pukka Egyptian (possibly a Berberi, a native of Upper Egypt), can decipher addresses in every one of these languages, and the skill and accuracy with which he does so and delivers letters in streets without names and to houses without numbers (usually they are known by the names of their builders or first owners) is little short of marvellous. Five languages have been used on the stamps up to the present. Greek not yet.

Few outside Egyptian specialists are aware that the envelopes have a watermark "Postes Egyptiennes" in a cursive English hand. On the 2 cent with head of Isis (see S.G. 30 for type), the watermark and wording of the stamp are in English, the former being "Egyptian Postage" in the same hand, a well formed educated type, and one wonders to whom it may have belonged.

the United States inverted center, the outstanding piece was a Newfoundland Hawker described as "a superb copy", but was later found to contain a slight pen hole, due to the postmaster's initials on the back. This reached $800.00. The second rarity was a Colombian Republic 1909 2c carmine, No. 481, listing $350.00, which sold for $475.00. The Honduras air mails all brought good prices, most of them going well over catalogue. The 20c brown, No. 406, reached $57.00, and the 1 peso green $150.00. The Sweden, 20 ore on 2 ore, cataloguing at $150.00, sold at $230.00. Judging from the United States and air mail auction prices, the present new catalogue prices are certainly no reflection of value.

Among the foreign, outstanding items of importance were: British Bechuanaland Protectorate 1888 10 shilling, $70.00, British Columbia 1861 5c rose with crease, $230.00, Canada 1857 6c violet on thick, soft wove paper, unused, no gum, $50.00, 1912 die proofs 1c to 50c complete, $110.00, China 1912 Nankin issue, $2.00, $76.00 and the $5.00, $200.00. A very choice Colombian Republic 1862 20c on original cover brought $82.50. A Cyprus 1922 £1 fraction off-center, $41.00, East Africa 1903 50 rupees, $58.00, 1912 50 rupees, $26.50, Egypt, Port Fuad, the three low values $20.00, and the 50 piastres, $86.00. French Colonies, in many cases, brought very good prices, the Hoi Hao 1901 15c, No. 6, listing $125.00, sold at $195.00. A Lagos 1884 5 shilling, $52.50, and a 10 shilling, described as "one that had lost some of its freshness", $67.50. A Natal 1902 £5 sold at $100.00, and a £10 of the same issue at $700.00. An item among the great rarities of the twentieth century, namely, Nigeria 1904 £25 reached $2,150.00. A Bushire Coronation issue 6c, $525.00, while the 3t reached $160.00. The Philippine special printing of 1903 1c to $5.00 complete sold at $155.00. St. Christopher 1887 1 penny on 2½ pence with the small surcharge was sold to a London dealer, subject to the Royal Philatelic Society guarantee, at $800.00. The St. Vincent 4 pence on 1 shilling, $127.00, while a Samoa G. R. I. 1 shilling reached $300.00. A copy of Straits Settlements 1904 $100.00, No. 120b, listing $400.00 sold at $420.00. A Tobago 1879 £1, $150.00, while among the Togo British overprints a 30pf, No. 169, $260.00, the 40pf, $230.00, and the 50pf, $400.00. A Zanzibar 1908 30 rupees, $54.00, 40 rupees, $84.00, while a Zululand £5 sold at $112.50.

The remark was made that many of the foreign stamps went at such reasonable prices, due to the fact that a collection of this proportion was sold in such a short time.

There was difficulty in viewing the stamps in the first place, as they could only be seen at certain times and then by artificial light. In spite of the fact that colored attendants were passing up and down the aisles constantly watching those viewing the stamps, several important lots were stolen, something that does not happen as a rule, when they are sold by a stamp dealer.

DOUBLE PRINTS

The 3c offset print, type IV, is fairly common showing a shifted or blurred double impression. It is, however, quite rare showing a really distinct double impression which has no trace of a blur to it.

We recently acquired a small quantity of this stamp showing one of the most remarkable double impressions we have ever seen, the first impression being in a much paler and totally different shade to the second, as well as being well separated from it. The plate number block shows that these two impressions were printed from different plates as there are two different plate numbers showing very clearly. The centering of these stamps is most unusually good for the offset printing.

We can offer a fine single copy of this remarkable variety at $5.00, and a fine mint block of four at $22.50. A few copies, centering practically perfect, can be supplied at 10% extra.

Plate block of six showing two separate plate numbers (possibly unique), $50.00.

In addition to the above, we can offer a very fine single of the 3c type III double print at $5.00; and a fine block at $25.00. The 2c in an exceptionally clear double print at $12.50.

Saying It With Stamps

DEMAND FOR COMMEMORATIVES DAUNTS THE DEPARTMENT

Seventy-two Subjects Suggested For Special Stamp Consideration.—The Record For The Period From January 1, 1928 to December 9, 1929 Is As Long As A Comet's Tail

Postmaster General Brown has before him for consideration no less than seventy-two requests for the issuance of commemorative stamps by the Postoffice Department. Such requests were received from January 1, 1928 to December 1, 1929. None of the 72 has been approved, however. Nine commemorative stamps have been issued by the Department since May 26, 1928, each one representing some outstanding event in connection with the development and history of the nation.

The first commemorative stamps were issued on January 2, 1893. They were known as the Columbian Series in honor of the four hundredth anniversary of the Discovery of America. This exhibition, which was held at Chicago, was postponed a year because of the inability to complete the exhibits in 1892. Since the first issue of commemorative stamps the Department has placed in circulation but 26 such stamps in addition to three memorial stamps.

"The established policy of the Department which is based upon administrative limitations," Postmaster General Brown pointed out today, "has been to restrict special stamps to commemorate anniversaries of important historical or industrial events of national interest."

The requests for Commemorative stamps received from January 1, 1928, to December 9, 1929, follow:

Dedication of General Knox Memorial, Thomaston, Maine, July, 1930; 150th Anniversary of the surrender of Cornwallis, October 19, 1931; to commemorate American rule in Porto Rico; Signing of Kellogg Peace Pact; 2000th Anniversary of the birth of Virgil; 150th Anniversary of the Battle of King's Mountain; In honor of Commodore John Barry; Lighting of first city by electricity; In honor of Dr. Alexander Graham Bell; 200th Anniversary of the birth of Major General Baron von Steuben; Opening of the Ambassador Bridge, Detroit, Michigan; 365th Anniversary of the founding of St. Augustine in 1930; In honor of Douglass Houghton, first State Geologist of Michigan; Acquisition of Southwest Territory; In honor of Christopher Columbus; 200th Anniversary of the founding of the City of Baltimore; 150th Anniversary of historical events around Morristown, N. J.; 125th Anniversary of the winter camp of Lewis and Clark Expedition in the territory of the Mandan Indian Tribe; In honor of the round-the-world trip of the Graf Zeppelin; Ephrata Cloister; In honor of Dr. William T. Morton; In honor of General Nathanael Greene; Third Olympic Winter Games of 1932; 100th Anniversary of building of first tunnel; In memory of Edgar Allan Poe; 11th Anniversary of Armistice Day; 200th Anniversary of the founding of the town of Bedford, Mass.; For Wisconsin State Legion Convention, August, 1929; 150th Anniversary of the victory of John Paul Jones over the British frigate "Serapis"; Antarctic explorations of Commander Byrd; Sesquicentennial of the capture of Major Andre; Hiding of the Liberty Bell during the Revolution; 150th Anni-

CONTRACT AIR MAIL COVERS

Every time a new contract air mail route is established in the United States the U. S. Government provides a special first flight cachet for each of the cities on the new route. The collecting of first flight covers bearing these official cachets is one of the most popular branches of present-day philately.

The Post Office Department has aided materially in popularizing these first flight covers by the attractiveness and variety of the designs of the cachets. The official recognition of the Department gives the covers a status which assures a future demand for them.

Some nice sets of Contract first flight covers are offered below. If you do not have any Contract covers at present, but would like to see what they look like, order one of the sets which contains covers from the various routes. After looking over the set, if the covers do not attract, just send them back and your money will be returned.

Special Set of 20 different Contract first flight covers, one each from twenty different contract air mail routes, for only $6.75. This is just the thing to show the various types of cachets which the Government has supplied. It includes some of the interesting circular cachets which were used in the early days for cancelling the stamps as well as designating the first flight cover.

Special set of 30 different Contract first flight covers, one each from all of the routes which have been established up to the present time, for only $16.75. This includes one of the covers carried by Colonel Lindbergh on his first trip as an air mail pilot on Contract Air Mail Route No. 2. It includes, also, covers from each of the two routes (C. A. M. 6 and C. A. M. 7) which were operated by Henry Ford. The Ford routes were the first two established.

DENIES LABRADOR SALE TALK

LONDON.—Sir Richard Squires, Premier of Newfoundland, emphatically denies press reports that negotiations are in progress for the sale of Labrador Territory to the Canadian government. He has frequently been approached by British, American and other interests for various concessions, but there is no prospect of any part of Labrador being ceded to any country, he declares.—Wall Street News.

Written for MEKEEL'S WEEKLY

HAITIAN AIRS, 1929

By HARRY E. HUBER.

The 50c de g air mail stamp, ordered in July last, from the American Bank Note Co., was received at Port au Prince towards the end of October, and while the intention was to place it on sale on Nov. 1st, along with the 10c de g Frontiers Treaty commemorative, that being a holiday, the Post Office was open for only a short time, and it was decided to defer issue until Monday, Nov. 4th—announcement to this effect was made in an "avis" of October 28th.

AVIS

L'Administration Generale des Postes, d'ordre du Departement du Commerce, porte a la connaisance du public qu'elle metra en vente a ses guichets, a partir du lundi 4 Novembre prochain, les nouveaux types de timbres suivants:
G. O. 10 cts. commemoratif du Traite dominicano-haitien du 20 janvier 1929, a l'effige de S. E. Mr. Louis Borno, President de la Republique.
G. O. 50 cts. a vignette d'aeroport pour service d'avion.
"Port au Prince, le 28 Octobre, 1929."

The stamp is horizontal rectangular, 45 x 22½mm, the same as the 35c de g Cafe, issued February 6, 1928, and was engraved and recess printed in violet by the American Bank Note Co. of New York, in sheets of 100 (10 x 10), unwatermarked, and perforated single line 12. Under each stamp of the sheet "American Bank Note Co." appears in small colored caps.

A tri-motored monoplane, in flight to the left, over a landing field is the outstanding feature of the design. In the background are mountains, and in the left foreground, coconut palms. At the top, in bold lettering against the sky, is "Republique d'Haiti—Avion." In the lower corners are the numerals of value "50", with "Postes—Centimes de Gourde", in two lines between. The lettering and numerals are in color.

The statement in the philatelic press that the landing field is that at Cap Haitien is not correct, as to the knowledge of the collaborators of the rough pencil sketch made locally, and sent to the American Bank Note Co. in May last, it represents no airport in existence. There are mountains back of Cap Haitien, but there any resemblance ceases, as the landing field at Cap Haitien is a saline.

First day (Nov. 4) covers with the 50c de g air stamp attached were delivered in Pittsburgh on Nov. 8th, whereas letters mailed from Port au Prince the same day, and forwarded by steamer, arrived only on Nov. 19th.

The die proof of the G.1 air stamp received from the printers was in maroon, but as the International Postal Union has recommended that stamps representing foreign air rates be printed in blue, the Haitian postal authorities requested that the G.1 be printed in this color. The stamps were received about November 21st, and were issued on Saturday, Nov. 30th, first day covers being delivered in Pittsburgh, on December 6th.

The G.1 differs from the 50c de g design only in the denomination at the foot of the stamp—the numerals and "Postes—Une Gourde" are in colorless instead of in color, as on the 50c.

November, 1929.—Definite air stamps. Monoplane over a landing field. Engraved and recess printed by American Bank Note Co. of New York, unwatermarked, and perforated single line 12.

OFF-SIDE—

HERE is an ad that has been appearing in different newspapers in the west: "Old Postage Stamps Wanted. —— will be in —— in a few days to purchase old stamps, envelopes and stamp collections. Anyone having items in this line, please address —— giving your name and address so that Mr. —— may get in touch with you on arrival." The idea of using the newspaper's address (as is done in each town) is a good one, as thereby a sort of guarantee of the soundness of the advertiser and his business is suggested.

MR. H. R. JANSEN wrote us to say that Peridromophily in his opinion was the lowest quotation in the collecting market; this formidable term is supposed to dignify transfer collecting. Mr. Jansen says that he would rather collect telegram blanks, of which there are some charming varieties. "We all ran the gamut to tobacco tags, birds' eggs, etc., when boys, but nix on the transfers."

A MOVEMENT has been started to induce the authorities to issue a special stamp to commemorate the completion of the Sydney, New South Wales, harbor bridge. Meanwhile, Western Australia is filling in the void with a new centenary stamp.

THE newly organized Lochner Philatelic Society, A. F. Ullrich, corresponding secretary, at River Forest, Illinois, intends to hold a stamp exhibit in the latter part of December.

"NO complaints admitted for centering", is how a foreign dealer attends to the disposition of the highly expectant buyer.

THE story by the Associated Press, with the London date line, telling how King George, "leading stamp collector of England", had loaned a volume of his collection for display before the Royal Philatelic Society, London, appeared in hundreds of papers. Many a non-philatelic reader was impressed by the allusion to the 200 volumes in the King's collection.

Filatelic Oddities

Edited by SEVARD.

We have noted with interest Mr. Nickles' Washington Stamp News printing statistics about the number of stamps issued for the 20th Century Commemoratives. The statistics are well worth having, if but for the interest to be conjured by them. We sincerely doubt that any mathematical formular will yield a price basis, using the tables printed. In Newton's equations of motion there is a factor "i" which is called the factor of ignorance, so that we reach accuracy only when we learn an empirical value for "i", based on actual experience. To get this experience, one must be an active seller, rather than an active buyer. Why not buy some stamps now?

Some few years ago, continentals were gravely concerned over America's evident paucity of a banana supply, as we all sang, "Yes, We Have No Bananas". Mr. W. C. Simpson, 627 Celeste Street, New Orleans, sent us the new Standard Fruit and Steamship Co. meter which bears an advertising slogan, "Eat Bananas, Always Good Always Available". A bunch of bananas is shown, which, if taken by and large, looks like a skeleton's hand. This in red means we should eat only red bananas, or beware of the skeleton's claws.

After we have gotten a reasonable supply of these meters, we shall dilate more fully on them, as to manufacture, types, and forms. We brought attention to these some years ago when the Neopost advertised that its machine would save one the time and cost of imprinting a corner card on business envelopes. The first Neopost we have is from London, dated 11 x 26, and startles us stamp collectors by using the slogan "Neopost your mail. Don't use Stamps", all enclosed in a boxlike contraption looking slightly like a casket. This is numbered N 1. This resembles the first day cover from London for a meter, then called a franker. It was used by the "Philatelic Magazine" of London. The slogan used Mar. 1, 1923 was "Don't use stamps get a Franker". This was manufactured by the Universal Postal Frankers, Ltd., 346 Strand, London, W. C. 2. These both are machine number one. Of course, you all know that our first meters, whereas accurately known as for design, are lost to the world, as no known copy exists, in spite of keen search for them. The first Pitney-Bowes impression for mail purposes is in the New York Office of the meter company. In the recent stock market slump, the value of this first time cover stayed the same.

Among the envelope issues, we recently found we had gathered enough of the die A white paper, size 13, window style envelopes with the 1925 diagonal watermark. This is scarcer than the 1925 horizontal watermark. Thus far we have listed only three envelopes as being common. The die A white paper, size 13, window with 1925 horizontal watermark at .00046, the same with 1925 diagonal watermark at .00060, and the size 9 with 1925 diagonal watermark at .00070. The cut square for any of these still remains at .00004.

And up bobs that Hawaii surprint again. Hawaii surcharges belong to Hawaii, Canal Zone surcharges to Canal Zone, Cuba surcharges to Cuba, and Brooklyn precancels to Brooklyn, not New York City. Who brought that up anyway?

Typographical Errors On The Precancelled 1898 Proprietary Issue

By FRANKLIN S. SMITH.

While the collecting of the precancelled postage stamps has been the rage for the last few years, the precancellations of the Proprietary Issue of 1898 have not had the attention they deserve. Especially the printed cancellations which were typeset and among which many major and minor typographical errors exist. Where electrotypes were used no important mistakes are found in the date lines, which had to be periodically changed, but in setting the form for a pane or a large block of stamps many curious mistakes were made by the typesetter.

The printer for Dr. Kilmer & Co. seems to have little regard for dates, for on the 1¼c are found 1-31-'90, 3-10-'90, 1-9-91', and on the 2½c 1-26-'90, 1-31-'90, 1-9-91', 2-9-91', and 3-28-91' inverted. And, by the way, the same fonts of type were used on the Government issue as on the postage stamps which got Dr. Kilmer into trouble. Type II is found on the ¼c 7-19-'98, 5/8c 7-15-'98, and 1c 7-19-'98; Type III on the 5/8c 7-15-'98.

The printer for McKesson & Robbins did himself proud when he gave us OCTCBER-1898 on the ¼, 5/8, 1¼ and 2½c, AUCUST-1898 on the 1¼ and JUNE 2 1999 on the 2½c. The capital C is neither a broken O nor an imperfect G, but a clean cut C out of the C box, sorted as O and G and picked out and set without inspection.

Pepsin Syrup Co. dated a 1¼ Apr 1 9101; the Wells Richardson Co. has Mar. 38, 1901 on the 5/8, Sopt. 10, 1900 and Mur. 8, 1901 on the 2½c; T. B. Dun Co. getting away with Jan. 3, '98 on the ½c.

Aside from the doubles, inverts, missing periods and commas, occurrence of commas in the place of periods, and the reverse, there are many other interesting varieties. The printer for Dr. D. Jayne & Sons ran short of numerals 1 and 9 in printing the 1901 cancellations, so there are many datings with figures from several fonts. W. F. Severa also has innumerable varieties from the same cause. J. Wyeth & Sons used a handstamp on the 3/8 and 5/8 dated JUN. 28, 1898, and there are four printed types of Jun, 29, 1898 on the ⅛, ¼, 3/8, 5/8, 1, and 2c.

To obviate the making of new electros the Alcock Mfg. Co. cut the numeral 1 of 12 and half the last cipher of 1900 from the 12-12-1900 to make 1 -12-190(and H. E. Bucklen & Co. cut off the last cipher and half of the O of CO to get Jan, 190 on the 5/8, 1¼, and 2½c. The Antikamnia Co. cancellations have four varieties of the numeral 1, three positions of the hyphens and two varieties of the O, circular and oval. I have the only copy known, of the inverted 4-3-1900 on 5/8c, and have yet to learn of the existence of its mate on the 1¼c. Ripans Chemical Co. derived its name from the initials of the ingredients used in their remedy for indigestion; Rhubarb, Ipecac, Peppermint, Aloes, Nux Vomica and Soda. There are also many cancellations with only the date, lacking the initials of the firm using them, as well as a number of odd designs neither dated nor initialled. That of the Imperial Soap Co. has two rosettes of twelve rays each on the ⅛, ¼ and 3/8 in black, and the 5/8 in red. The U. S. Coat of Arms is printed in black on the ⅛ and 5/8 and an odd cancellation is a row of small pyramids on the ¼ and 3c.

Reports of additional errors to the above will be welcomed, and information concerning the cancellations on this Proprietary issue will be cheerfully given by the writer.

JOTTINGS—

WE have received from Rev. E. A. Butler, St. George's, Newfoundland, a handsome illustrated price list of the stamps of Newfoundland. Stamps are priced both used and unused in fine and also average condition. The air mail issues advertising all entires, post cards, and envelopes are also listed. If it is Newfoundland, Rev. Butler can supply the goods. Collectors of Newfoundland will do well to send for this list.

WE recently made an inquiry concerning W. C. Henry, formerly of Reno, Nev. It was productive of a letter from Mr. Henry, who was in Mexico City at the time. He writes us that he is "hopping around this mundane sphere, and with no particular place to call my home, I have not been receiving my mail regularly. I expect to get East again the first of the year, and I will try to drop in on you."

A VERY handsome price list is at hand from Anton Huber, 48 Nordendstr., Munich, Germany. It is particularly strong in air mail stamps, Zeppelin covers and packets by countries. Both wholesale and retail prices are quoted. A copy will be sent to any address on request.

HARRY E. HUBER was elected Secretary of the Philatelic Club of Pittsburgh at the annual meeting December 2nd. Five members, headed by Dr. K. M. Day, the President, journeyed out to Akron, O., and attended the 10th anniversary doings of the Rubber City Stamp Club.

WE are indebted to Michael Miller for a clipping from a Baltimore, Md., paper announcing the death of Henry Adams, a philatelist of long standing and a member of the A. P. S. The clipping in question gives an extended account of Mr. Adams' activities. He was President of the Board of Managers of the Maryland Institute, held a federal position, and during the World War was engineer of the U. S. Fuel Administration for Maryland and Delaware. He was a member of many societies. Apparently in good health, Mr. Adams joined his family for dinner Dec. 9, and was stricken at the table. He was dead when a physician living nearby reached his home.

Do our readers want the next edition of the Bureau Print Catalog to be arranged by State-town or Town listing?

When Hoover Bros. took over the publication of this catalog the arrangement was changed from Town to State-town listing to conform to the General Precancel Catalog, as "the general collector would find it very confusing in having to use different methods of listing in referring to two parts of the Catalog" (Quoted from foreword 5th edition the Mitchell-Hoover Catalog of United States Bureau Precancels). The publishers further invited suggestions to show why the reverse, i.e., Town listing, will better serve the collecting public.

State-town listing, or State listing for short, consists of arranging the Catalog alphabetically by States and sub-listing the towns in the state. If a want list calls for an Adrian Coil you look for the Michigan stock of duplicates and find Adrian heading the list, if you have one to swap. With Town listing you turn at once to Adrian and do not have to think whether it is located in Michigan or any one of the other 14 states blessed with an Adrian.

Precancel collecting started with the United States as the field, but with the thousands of towns using locally printed precancels very shortly only the enthusiast with plenty of time and energy could cover the country, and specializing in states or groups of states, etc., became the scope of a great number of collectors. Later the Bureau Prints came into the picture and were welcomed by the local precancel collector in his collection.

The present arrangement of the General Precancel Catalog was a logical outcome of this changed method of collection, i.e., specializing by states, but the change from the Town listing to State listing was only effected after a considerable time spent in argument by those principally interested in state collections probably.

Thus, the great number of towns using local prints was primarily responsible for the change years ago in the general catalog. A similar condition does not maintain, however, with the Bureau Prints. The first Bureau Print Catalog listed 96 towns—complete to April 17, 1926. Nov. 1, 1929, we have 179 towns using Bureau Prints, and the rate of increase is reasonably constant at less than 20 towns per year.

There is consequently little likelihood that the number of towns will increase, before precancels drop out for some other method of cancellation, to such an extent that collectors will not cover the whole field. Specialization by States need not be looked for in Bureaus.

While the State arrangement is best probably for the local type collector, there has arisen a vast number of collectors who now recognize that the Bureau Prints being a product of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing are necessarily an inherent part of any United States collection that aims at completeness. These are the collectors who have no use for local prints, but have gone wholeheartedly after the Bureau Prints and caused in many cases the demand to exceed the supply. They are the ones who asked for their own catalog and to whom the listing by towns is of importance—in comparing check lists, exchanging, etc.

One may arrange his collection as he pleases, file his duplicates as he wishes, but if he gets a want list made out by States and his duplicates are filed by Towns it is a much greater task to check than if lists and stock were arranged in the same way.

Now the publishers I know wish to accommodate the many, and they have asked for votes to find out who's who. If my readers have any wishes in the matter send in to me your vote, pro or con, on State or Town listing, and we can see if the large number of collectors of Bureau Prints only exists as I have claimed and if they desire the Town in place of the State listing.

A TRIBUTE TO L. L. GREEN

By C. A. Howes, F. R. P. S.

The death of L. L. Green was announced last week, and many old-time philatelists will mourn his passing. He represented all that was highest and best in philately, and Boston especially will miss his genial personality.

Mr. Green's philatelic activities began when he was a school boy, and he never lost his interest in the attractive bits of paper. He had a general collection originally, and really always remained a general collector at heart, though as the years wore on there were naturally limitations to the keeping up of such a collection. Of course there were certain countries in which he had a special interest, and British Colonies were among these, Ceylon, St. Vincent, St. Helena, and British North America being perhaps his strongest groups, the outstanding gem of the latter being a fine mint copy of the "Connell" stamp of New Brunswick.

But his special hobbies became finally his United States and his specialized collection of Hawaiian numerals. The United States were a remarkably fine lot, including mint copies of the 12 cent and 30 cent premières gravures of 1861. A novelty he was quite proud of was an unused half sheet of the 15 cent 1869. This collection won a silver medal in the Boston Philatelic Society's series of exhibitions. But his Hawaiians ranked among the famous collections of the world, including a 13 cent Missionary and the various issues of the numerals in unsevered sheets, reconstructed sheets including a tête-bêche sheet of the 5 cent "Interisland" with a block of six and of four inverted, with respect to each other, and singles with various missing letter varieties.

Another hobby was a collection of original covers, largely of the older issues, including the higher values of the United States stamps and a fine lot of locals. A nice selection of Confederate States was included, and a strong showing of the old German States. Mr. Green is reported to have remarked, "Yes, I have a fairly good general collection, but if I were to go back and begin all over again, knowing what I do now, I should collect only stamps on the original covers."

As a young man he had the dealing "fever" to some extent, advertising in

DEATH OF CHAS. E. SEVERN

Charlie Severn has passed on!

The hand falters as it attempts to convey the sad news to the host of friends who will be astounded at what has taken place.

Mr. Severn's death occurred in Chicago, Saturday, Dec. 14, and as these lines are penned the Managing Editor is speeding westward to pay his tribute of love and respect to one who for 30 years has been a business associate of ability, culture and integrity.

DAYTON (O.) ELECTS OFFICERS

The annual meeting of the Dayton Philatelic Society was held Dec. 9, and attended by 28 of the membership total 36. It was decided to hold another exhibition next year, and a committee will be appointed in January. Our exhibition was crowded continually from the opening 1 P. M. until 10 P. M. There was a total expenditure of $100.48, which included dinners for 18 out-of-town guests. It is estimated that more than 3,000 people of Dayton and surroundings visited the exhibition, and all expressed surprise and interest at the beautiful exhibits. We have applications from eight collectors who were unaware there was a stamp club in Dayton, and numerous others expressed a desire to start collecting. New officers for 1930 are: Pres., Dudley B. Bishop; Vice-Pres., Carlton W. Smith; Sec., Walter C. Pfanner, Engineers Club; Treas., Tom Mitchell; Director, Carlton C. Putnam; Sales Mgr., Wm. J. Rueger.

D. B. BISHOP.

PHILADA. A. P. S. CHAPTER

The November meeting of the Philadelphia Chapter of the A. P. S. found 16 in attendance. Dr. Lindsay, Rev. C. C. Silvester and Messrs. Emmert and Klein entertained the members with exhibits. Mr. Emmert showed his Scandinavians about 99% complete in single copies nearly all mint.

CHESTER STAMP CLUB ANNUAL

The annual meeting of the Chester (Pa.) Stamp Club was held in the Y. M. C. A., Tuesday, Dec. 10. The following officers were elected for 1930: Dr. Walter E. Egbert, Pres.; Milton H. Bickley, Vice-Pres.; Walter A. Reinhardt, Sec.; Arthur H. Noyes, Treas.; William N. MacIntyre, Chairman Board of Directors. The Club will hold a public stamp auction in January. Any one not a member may get an auction list from Harry A. Lee, S. E. Cor. 24th and Edgmont Ave., Chester, Pa.

NFLD. 6c DICKINSON, 1929

On Sept. 1, 1929, only 421 of the 6c pictorial (100,000 of which were used for the Aug. 23, 1929 provisional) remained in the Wholesale Dept. of the G. P. O. St. John's. These, along with the 6c Whitehead, Morris printing of the Publicity series, exhausted at the beginning of October.

The 6c Dickinson reached St. John's on Nov. 8th and was issued the same day, the first sheet being sent to Harbour Grace, for which office a large order was then being filled.

The color is a bit brighter, the perforation comb 13½ x 13½ (instead of comb 14), and the paper is soft.

The scroll work in the upper corners differs slightly; the numeral "6" in the lower corners is more squat, and there is no period after St. John's in the vignette inscription.

15c Alcock & Brown's Plane — The 15c of the 1923 pictorial series (down to 1,000 copies on Nov. 15th) is expected to exhaust within a few weeks, and as the 15c Publicity is lowering, an order for a supply of this denomination was placed with Messrs. Dickinson & Co. early in November. The stamps are expected to be in hand for issue by the middle of January, 1930.

The New Contractors—The name of John Dickinson & Co., Ltd., has previously been associated with paper making, and this seems to be their first effort in the actual engraving and printing of postage stamps. Judging by the stamps which they have so far produced for Newfoundland, their work compares favorably with that of their predecessors, Whitehead, Morris, Ltd.

WINDOM, MINN., ORGANIZES

Windom, a city of about 2,500 and situated in the southern part of Minnesota, had its first real stamp meeting November 27, when about twenty-five enthusiastic philatelists met at the office of W. F. Sanger, and organized the Windom Philatelic Society, the first and only society of its kind to be organized in this part of the state.

Windom is known among stamp dealers as having more mint "blocks of four" collectors than any other town of its size. At least twenty-five collectors are very active in this direction, and several more are beginning.

The Society voted to meet the first and third Wednesday of each month. Officers are: A. A. Quevli, Pres.; Roy Billings, Vice-Pres.; and N. M. Nelson, Sec.

M. HERBERT & CO., 87 Nassau St., New York

the Youth's Companion, and again after his retirement from the Suffolk Savings Bank he associated himself with the Hub Stamp Co. of Boston in 1920. He was one of the Charter Members of the Boston Philatelic Society, being elected its Treasurer when organized in 1891, and serving continuously in that capacity until 1908, when he was honored with the Presidency of that prominent Society, in which he served two terms. He was also a member of the American Philatelic Society. He was quiet in manner and quiet in his collecting, but obtained no less pleasure from philately for that reason, and was one of the "solid men" of our pursuit.

Among those present at the funeral service, besides the writer, were Messrs. Batchelder, Hill, Barker, Nevins, Hutchins and Coburn. The impressive Masonic ritual service was a part of the service.

L. L. Green was one of the finest men I have ever known, highly respected and genuinely loved by his friends. What more can a man wish for?

PERILS OF THE P. O.

Customers at the post office get a real fright now and then, I am told. Without warning a gong sounds, windows are slammed shut and the would-be purchaser of stamps finds himself gazing into a pair of derringers, held by a clerk at the window. It seems this is part of the government's preparedness zeal.—Chicago Daily News.

ARCTIC AIR MAIL

Regular air mail service throughout the winter will now connect the arctic North, heretofore isolated, with Edmonton, Alberta, according to G. C. Wood, consul at Prince Rupert, British Columbia, the Department of Commerce just stated.

One of the posts and villages thus brought in touch with the outside world is Herschel Island, at the mouth of the McKenzie River. The Department's statement follows in full text:

The distance between Edmonton and the extreme northern posts, approximately 2,000 miles, will be covered by an alternate monthly service, while points between will have a weekly or monthly service, according to location and distance.

The rate between the maximum points will be approximately $1 per pound, with lower rates at points less distant.

The alternate monthly departure dates from Edmonton are reported as being Nov. 26, Jan. 21, and Mar. 25.

Editorial

THE question of commemorative issues is getting out of bounds, but we have confidence that the post office department will exercise proper restraint in the treatment of a subject that has entered the minds of many persons, a great number of whom are interested in it for reasons wholly unconnected with philately. It is true that the postmaster general did invite suggestions for stamp designs some time ago, but the understanding was that the proposals were to be examined with the idea of applying them to a possible new issue of stamps. However, it seems as though there has been a flood of requests for special stamps in the train of the invitation of the postmaster general. Correspondents have acquainted us of campaigns that have for their object the issue of commemorative stamps in behalf of persons and places, some of which are worthy in every respect. It is an impossibility for the department to recognize all of these pleas with favor, and the advisability of limiting the special issues is not to be controverted, under the circumstances. As a matter of news interest, the intentions of those pressing for stamp favor are recorded, but we cannot be placed in the position of judging the merits of the plans. The accounts that are given are submitted without prejudice, and readers are asked that they dispense with our cooperation in working for commemorative issues.

FOR instance, there was a request for a special stamp to be issued in 1929 to mark the centennial of the first run made by a steam locomotive in Honesdale, Pennsylvania, and a stamp memorial on the anniversary of the sinking of the Maine was given support. Over a year ago, there were thirty applications for commemorative action, some of which were brought into stamp being. We believe that it is not enough that resolutions for stamps pass congress; they must carry special appropriations and be made mandatory upon the post office department before stamp results are obtained.

WE thank Mr. S. Tanner Greene for a flight cover on the Quebec-Montreal flight, and other correspondents who have sent in various interesting envelopes, bearing different cachets and postmarks. While we do not name each of our friends we would have them know that the evidences of their kindness are not lightly esteemed.

MR. R. E. ALMANN writes that he has found a number of old covers with stamps on them antedating 1868, mostly 3c values, which had lain in a bureau drawer in an attic for years. He calls attention to the fact that each of the stamps is nibbled around the edges, evidently by mice, who made a repast on the gummed paper, which seems to have been flavored to their liking. Mr. Almann says that it is fortunate that he has found no valuable stamps in the lot! Mice have been known to gnaw at stamps, and sometimes make mincemeat of them, and various types of borers have been found to consider stamps their prey, but fortunately, instances of pest activity at the expense of stamps are not common in this country.

RECENTLY, the Chicago "Daily News" contained an article, "Yeh! There's Santa Claus: It's in Indiana," which told in a readable way of the town of Santa Claus whose existence has been known to collectors for some time, but of which the public has not been aware, generally speaking. Santa Claus does not get much mail except at Christmas time, when hopeful youngsters bombard him in the belief that he will not fail them, but even so, we suspect that the bulk of the mail comes from persons who want the postmark of the patron saint of the children on their letters. In fact, it is said that "some eight or ten thousand pieces come to him in packages with the request that he cancel and mail them from his office. People from as far away as New Zealand have learned of this little town and wishing their Christmas greetings to be even more Christmasy, send them to Santa Claus. Postmaster Martin cancels them all by hand." It is our belief that Mr. LeGrand Payne of Indianapolis was the philatelic discoverer of Santa Claus, as it seems a good many years ago that he sent us a cover with the holiday postmark.

THE following letter has been received from Mr. J. L. Summers: "My experience in sending to different countries for stamps has been one that may be characteristic of the general trend. The wisdom of your warning to secure information from the different sources of stamp supply has been confirmed in my case. First of all, it is necessary to conform to the regulations in the letter, else your money will be returned. I do not find that my suggestions as to centering are carried out in many cases and the stamps are not in the condition I want them to be. My correspondence is in English, and I suppose that may account for the inattention that I have noticed." Certain examples of treatment against which Mr. Summers complains are cited, but we do not specify them. It is evident that there are a number of things to be taken into consideration by the patron of foreign offices, who often finds that it is best to buy the stamps desired at home, after his fling.

MR. W. F. GOERNER, Edgewood, Rhode Island, has sent us a number of bills for postage sent by the postmaster of Newport, R. I., in the '50's to debtors on account of letters, newspapers, pamphlets, periodicals and "occasional papers." On a bill for a quarter in 1860, we find "stamps charged for" to the amount of $59, certainly a fine line of credit on a class of goods famed in song and story as the complement of spot cash. The most interesting bill in Mr. Goerner's sheaf is one dated, Newport, R. I., with the first entry: "To postage stamps of Letters from July 1 to Sept. 30, 1851." Across the end of the slip is the printed injunction: "Box-holders are respectfully requested to purchase and use stamps on their prepaid letters, instead of marking them to be charged." Mr. Goerner says that the fact that credit was given for stamps (under different postmasters) and that bills did not have to be paid promptly will be an eye-opener to us today. He adds that Newport in the '50's was no mean city.

THE following suggestion has been received from Mr. H. W. K. Hale, Montreal, Canada: "Regarding the design anomaly on the two-cent stamp of the Quebec Tercentenary issue mentioned by Major Morell, in his notes published in the issue of December 2nd, which consisted of an extra line at the right of the panel bearing 'IIIe Centenaire de Quebec', might it not be a shading line intentionally placed at the right and not repeated at the left? Note the shadings on '1608' and '1908'; also the line under the panel. Shadings were placed at right end and at bottom, and not at left or on top. The other designs follow this rule for shading." Another reader who qualifies as an engraver says that the line on this stamp is a part of the design by intention.

A LETTER from Mr. Herman Cope, Philadelphia, Pa., asks that we publish data on Quaker postmarks. He says that he has seen, heard that there are a number of them in addition to the one that he has: "Colerain, 1st Mo., 21, O." In this postmark the number for the month is used instead of January. The Quaker postmarks have been made the subject of some attention, we know, but we should like to have the latest compilation of them, and any provision for the use of the variation in postmark made by the postal authorities of the times would be of special interest. Mr. Cope's envelope bears the 3c of 1857-60.

BATTLE OF KING'S MOUNTAIN

There have been many commemorative stamps issued which recognize the efforts and successes of the patriots and the colonial generals in our Revolution. Thus far, the only section of the thirteen original colonies to be commemorated is the northern. The southern section has never had its great men thus honored.

The coming years, 1930 and 1931, are the Sesqui-Centennial Anniversaries of the many successes obtained by General Francis Marion, the "Swamp Fox", General Thomas Sumter, the "Carolina Game Cock", General Daniel Morgan, General Nathanael Greene, and many other able Revolutionary leaders, in South Carolina, North Carolina and Georgia.

Their campaigns culminated in decisive defeat of the British, at the battles of Cowpens, King's Mountain, and Utah Springs, and caused the final retreat and expulsion from the South-Eastern section.

I believe, and I am sure that there are many more persons in the south, as well as in all other sections of our country, who will agree with me that it is fitting and proper, and only right and just, that these historic facts be commemorated by a stamp of a series of stamps.—MAURICE GOLDSMITH, Selma, Ala.

(Note.—We understand that the 150th anniversary celebration of the Battle of King's Mountain, North Carolina, is to be held on the battle ground October 7, 1930; and that President Hoover has been invited to attend.)

DONALD E. DICKASON, Editor, Wooster, Ohio

(Coöperators will find their names listed each week. If a reply be necessary, enclose a self-addressed stamped envelope.)

Just a word of thanks for the kind congratulations which I have received in connection with the A. A. M. S. election. I did not seek the office for which my name was put up, but now that I have been elected to it, I shall hope to justify the trust placed in me.

Wonder how many of you have had the opportunity to see one of the cover collections formed by one of the old-timers in the hobby, who got them while they were in the making? I've had such a privilege lately, and I assure you it's a thrill. Leaving all financial consideration out of it, these mementos of the pioneer days are surely a sight to see. Not the least interesting feature of such a collection is the assortment of letters and messages thereon and in. "I'm going to buy one of these things if it really works", on the back of a card showing the intrepid flier and his bamboo, canvas, and wire contraption, and all sorts of similar messages are to be found. Most of us can't afford to get together such a collection now, but I'd suggest that every collector ought to have at least one of these early covers to show along with all the later ones.

I don't make any attempt to make this a "tip" column, but I'm expressing a strong personal opinion when I say "Buy Canada". Some 50,000 covers were sent in for the recent Arctic Circle flights. That means that a lot of folks have made a start on Canadian covers, and a fair proportion of them are going to take the inevitable back trail for the ones that came before. Recent government flights, with their attractive cachets and wide spread advance advertising by the Canadian P. O. Dept., have produced plenty of easy-to-get covers. But get back of the Prairie flights of a year ago, and you'll find a different story. Where we now have thousands and tens of thousands, a short time since we had only a few hundreds even on the better known trips. The semi-official stamps are coming into stronger demand in line with the air mail stamp boom in general.

I am informed by several persons that night flying will be inaugurated over CAM 30 soon after the first of the year. The contractors will provide a cachet—unofficial, of course—commemorating the service. Covers sent to postmasters will show by the postmark that they went on this service, but if you wish the cachet, look up the list of addresses given a few weeks ago in connection with the anniversary cachet Dec. 1st, and send night flight covers to these points. Covers arriving too late for the anniversary, by the way, are being held for the night flight.

On Nov. 30, Pan American-Grace Airways extended service from Buenos Aires to Montevideo, Uruguay, carrying mail both ways so far as I know, though I have seen no covers. No announcement on this came from Washington, so this extension was apparently by arrangement with the South American countries concerned only. It is very possible that the U. S. authorities may yet announce the official extension of FAM 9 for U. S. southbound mail. It all sounds a bit involved, and it is. A somewhat similar situation existed in May on FAM 9, where the Panagra was doing business inter-country, and carrying mail north to Canal Zone some days before FAM 9 was officially opened, and we had two first flight covers—both carried by the same company from the same cities, one lot simply foreign flown covers, the other and later lot being the FAM's. About the surest bet I know is that most of us who think we have a fairly decent FAM collection are due for a rude shock when the new catalogs give us all the dope.

The Postal Bulletin of Dec. 7 gives a "Revised schedule of FAM Route 9", which adds to the complications. Starting with Cristobal, we find, in addition to the points which I listed last week, the following: Puerto Pizarro, Piura, Pimentel, Camana, Arequipa, and Ilo, Peru; Copiapo, Ovalle, and Mendoza, Chile. No statement is made as to first flight date, or any similar information. They're just on the route now, and I'd like to see some first trippers either to or from!

The Manufacture of Stamps

By BERTRAM W. H. POOLE.

No. 2—Surface Printing

We now have to consider another process of engraving—a process by means of which more stamps have been produced than any other and the method which is now most generally used. This is known as surface printing or typography and it is just the reverse of line-engraving, for in engraving the dies, the lines of the design are made to appear in relief, or épargne as it is called. From this die or matrix as many impressions as are required to compose a plate are taken in gutta percha, lead, papier maché or other suitable material. These blocks or moulds have the design in recess and would be of no use for printing from.

They are, therefore, clamped together in a "forme" in the exact manner in which the stamps will show on the finished sheets and by means of a galvanic bath a thin film of copper or steel is deposited evenly over the surface of the whole forme. This film receives a backing of type metal and forms the printing plate, the method of printing being similar to that employed in printing newspapers, circulars, books, etc., from ordinary printer's type. The plates, of course, vary in size and arrangement. Sometimes there is only one entire "cast" for the plate or it may be there are two, four, or more which are clamped together (generally with a space between) to form the plate. When there is more than one cast the resulting divisions on the printed sheets of stamps are known as "panes."

It will be understood from the foregoing that in both the line-engraved and surface printing processes a die has to be engraved first of all. When, however, there are several values in a set all of similar design and only differing in the denotation of value, one original die or matrix serves for all. This die has the scrolls or tablets for the values blank. From this original as many replicas are made as there are to be values in the set and these "secondary" dies are then engraved with the necessary particulars and serve as the dies from which the plates are made. Or it may happen, as in the case of the 1891, 1893 and 1896 issues for Hayti, that from the original die with blank tablets a plate of the desired size is made and casts from this are taken for as many different denominations as are required. These plates are completed by the engraving of the different numerals of value.

Stamps produced by both typography and line-engraving are frequently printed in two colors. This means that separate dies and plates are necessary for each of the two colors and also two printings. In the case of bi-colored stamps printed by typography one plate often serves for the production of the main portion of the design for all the values in a set. This plate is known as a "head-plate." As many other plates—called "duty-plates"—have to be made as there are different denominations in the set.

In the case of certain British Colonial stamps the same head-plate serves for the stamps of several different colonies. These "general" plates are used in the printing establishment of Messrs. De La Rue & Co. and their use by the smaller colonies materially reduces the cost of printing their different supplies of postage stamps. All they have to provide are the duty-plates and in many cases the same duty-plates have been used (by Seychelles for instance) for the stamps showing the portraits of Queen Victoria, King Edward VII and King George V.

Davis, R. E. — The postmaster of Pleasant Shade, Virginia, in 1861, who issued special 5c stamps for local use pending the arrival of the regular labels for use throughout the Confederate States.

Davis's Penny Post.—A local post of Baltimore in connection with which special 1c stamps were issued in 1852.

En Creux.—An expression used in connection with stamps produced by line-engraving. The lines of the design are cut into the plate and thus are described literally as "in creases" or "in depressions."

Johnny's Diary

July 13.—We saw Jenny Dobbs this morning and got her crazy for that trycycle. We told her how cheap it was at 8 dollars, and she said she'd ask her mother to buy it for her. So we took it down there after supper and her mother said she'd buy a whole flock of tricicles (that word never does look right) rather than have that child pesterin' her to death as she had been all day, so we got our 8 dollars for it. Then we hustled around to the kid that wants a bicycle and talked to him. I asked him if he didn't think his Pa would buy him one if he paid half himself, and told him we'd give him 10 dollars for his collection. He was tickled to death and went in and asked his Pa, and his Pa said he would if Jack would pay half on a $25 wheel. That made us tired, because he came back and said his collection was a daisy and he wouldn't sell it less'n $12.50. The book was mighty well worth it anyhow, so we took it and told him the rest of the money Saturday, and you bet we hugged ourselves when we got away. He had 1,500 stamps nearly, and we'll get more'n 400 apeace for our collections, and any amount to sell and trade. They don't cost us hardly anything either, that's the beauty of it.

July 14.—We stayed out of the baseball game this morning and went to dividin' those stamps. Gee, we did get some daisies! He had a lot of good Depts. with full sets of Interior, War and P. O. with some of all the others. I saw a New South Wales big shilling watermarked 8. I asked Willy should we count watermarks in dividing and he said no, it would take too long, so I took that one and let him have a 3c Exec. I know Mr. Waters hasn't got that N. S. W. I've been sticking stamps in my book all evening and guess I'll dream about 'em again tonight.

July 15.—Willy and me got together after church and counted up again. I've got 1,181 kinds, and he's got 1,329, as near as we can tell. It's awful hard to count a collection and keep straight. You can count 7 times and come out different every time. Willy can't figure how I caught up so much and still got as good stamps as he did, too. I'll beat him or bust by the end of the month.

Attila Made None

By EVERETT KLAAS.

Attila the fierce came out of the east
And raided the world like a savage beast.
Attila was noted, as we learned in school,
For treating his captives inhumanely cruel.
He burned and tortured with fire and rod
Until he was known as the Scourge of God,
But Attila, though he was a scamp,
Never left his picture on a postage stamp.

Attila the fierce, whom all learned to dread,
Has now been long numbered among the dead,
And we can never know how he did look,
For he left no stamps for our much loved book.
He lost a good chance his face to depict,
To stick along side of the Bolshevik,
Whose faces adorn that Hungarian set
Which we boy collectors all try hard to get.

Danube Steam Navigation Company

A private post, authorised by the Austro-Hungarian government, for the conveyance of mail between certain cities in Serbia, Bulgaria and Roumania along the Danube and the Black Sea, and also from those cities into Austria and Hungary. The service was inaugurated in 1865, during the Russo-Turkish war, and was in operation as late as 1874. At least nine different steamers made regular trips in connection with this service, and a special series of four stamps was issued for the prepayment of the mail carried. The genuine stamps are quite scarce, those so frequently found in collections being nothing better than reprints.

Austrian Charity Issues

By EVERETT KLASS.

The first charity set by Austria shows Francis Joseph, the next one has some warlike scenes; soldiers, cannon, aeroplane; then come three with Karl and Zita in gray-green, magenta, blue; next a set to relieve the hardships some flood sufferers went through. Then a set of fine engravings shows musicians, some without hair: Haydn, Mozart, Beethoven, Schubert, Bruckner, Strauss and Wolf are there.

Views of famous cities follow: Bergenz, Salzburg, Eisenstadt, Klagenfurt, Innsbruck, Linz, Graz, Melk, Vienna; then after that, a set of strange futurist pictures—wonder what they can be? Then the Nibelungen issue, one of the finest sets we'll see. Last, a set for Michael Hainisch, who was their first president—when we're showing our collection we'll know what they represent.

Native Paper.—Paper of Oriental manufacture, used in the production of the early stamps of Japan and for some of the stamps of the Indian native states of Nepal and Kashmir. The Japanese paper is either wove or laid, and is of a peculiarly tough fibrous nature; while the Indian variety has the feel and appearance of parchment paper.

Nadruk.—The Dutch word for "reprint" and it is found impressed on the backs of most of the reprints of the 1852 issue for the Netherlands.

Name Tablet.—The space provided in "general" plates—such as the "Postage and Revenue" plates employed in printing so many of the British Colonial stamps—for the insertion of the name of the particular Colony requiring supplies from these plates.

Napoletana.—The Italian rendering of "Neapolitan" as shown upon the stamps for that province.

By HARRY E. HUBER.

During the third quarter of 1927, fresh printings of the 25c and 50c Nyasaland type, from plate 1, were dispatched to Belize, and in the second quarter of 1928, a second supply of the 2c red, in booklets of 100. The 25c script CA green was first issued Oct. 1, 1924; the 50c on script blue on Nov. 1, 1923, and the 2c red in sheet and booklet form, on December 10, 1926.

In the fourth quarter of 1928, along with another supply of the 50c, was sent out the 1c green, printed in the Nyasaland keyplate design for the first time. The large printing of the 1c DLR-1912, script CA, plate 3, sent out in 1921, and issued Nov. 26, 1921, lasted for more than seven years. The 1c Nyasaland type, script CA, was issued at Belize, Jan. 2, 1929.

The Crown Agents' Bulletin for the third quarter of 1929, announced that the 4c gray, in Nyasaland design, had been printed for the first time, and sent to the Colony with a fresh supply of the 50c. These were received at Belize on Sept. 2nd, and the 4c gray issued October 1, 1929. These stamps were typographically printed in sheets of 120 (2 panes of 60), with keyplate number 1 twice in the lower margin only, and perforated comb 14.

The 3c orange still continues in the DLR-1912, Postage & Revenue type, plate 2, Roman CA, issued April 16, 1917. The demand for this denomination is small, and it is doubtful if it will ever be requisitioned in the Nyasaland type.

Although the letter rate from British Honduras to Canada and the British West Indies was reduced to 2c (as of May 1, 1926), it remains at 4c (since June 1, 1921) to other parts of the British Empire, and the United States. The foreign letter rate is 5c.

Imperial Reply Coupons, 1926

Towards the end of 1926 Imperial Reply Coupons were placed on sale at Belize, the regulations relative to their sale being made on Nov. 3, 1926. The design portion of the coupon, blue over a yellow network, measures 102 x 70mm, and was printed by Waterlow & Sons, Limited, London, on G v R under Crown watermarked paper, the watermark being sideways with the top of the Crown to the left. The design is Britannia with shield and trident, standing on a rocky shore, facing the sea, on which there is a three masted sailing vessel. At the top in five lines is "Imperial Reply Coupon—(Valid only for exchange within the British Empire) — British Honduras — Selling Price—5 Cents." Circular openings are provided at the left and right for "date stamp of office of issue" and "office of exchange", respectively. At the foot, in six lines, is the information that "This coupon may be exchanged in any part—of the British Empire for a postage stamp—or stamps representing the postage on a single rate letter to a destination within—the Empire. It is valid for six months exclusive—of the month of issue."

Air Mail Service, FAM No. 5, 1929

British Honduras was the only British Colony visited by Col. Chas. A. Lindbergh on his Central American and West Indian Goodwill tour. On December 30, 1927, he arrived at Belize from Guatemala City, and departed on Jan. 1, 1928, for San Salvador. This was the first time that a land plane had ever visited Belize.

Temporary air mail service over FAM 5, between Miami, Fla., and Cristobal, Canal Zone, was formally inaugurated on Feb. 4, and return service on February 10, 1929, by Col. Lindbergh. Although overnight stops were made at Belize, both ways, mails were carried only between the terminal points of Miami and Cristobal.

Delivery of air mail at Belize was inaugurated with the flights from Miami and Cristobal, on May 21, 1929, the rates being 15c from the United States, and 25c from Cristobal.

The first air mail for the north (Habana and Miami) was dispatched from Belize on May 23rd (postmarked May 22nd) and the first for the south (Tela, Managua and Cristobal), on May 24th (postmarked May 23rd). The air charge from Belize is 25c in addition to the regular letter rates, i.e., 4c to the United States, 5c to Cuba, etc.

TWO SUBSTANTIAL LISTS

The Metropolitan Stamp Co., 1482 Broadway, New York City, has just issued a very pretentious price list of 52 pages. It offers a wonderful variety of special sets, beginning with Abyssinia and ending with Wurtemberg. The book is freely illustrated with many half tones, and interested parties may have a specimen copy upon request.

A request may also be made upon the Max F. Bier Co., 91 69th St., Brooklyn, N. Y., for a specimen of a handsome booklet just at hand. This book also offers postage stamps in sets, but is so much different that collectors will do well to procure a specimen. It seems singular that the same mail should bring these two substantial booklets from these two well-known firms, very much the same in form and arrangement, but totally different in the offerings presented.

"WALCOTT" COVERS

In my announcement last week, attention was called to the fact that I had acquired the early Walcott U. S. covers. I have now secured the later issues, which include a magnificent lot as a whole from 1847 to 1869 inclusive. May I state that I have acquired the entire Walcott collection of early United States issues and they are all priced individually, so that one may select the pieces which appeal to him most.

In addition to those mentioned last week, there are such outstanding items as 1851 12c in singles, pairs and strips, 1857 all denominations from 1c to 30c inclusive, including numerous 24c and 30c. Among the 1861, I particularly note two magnificent 90c to China, about twenty-five to thirty of each of the lower denominations, including some very unusual combinations. There is a nice lot of grill varieties, which are unusually scarce. Among the 1869 issue, all values from 1c to 30c are available, including several unusual combinations. Many of the covers are of outstanding attractiveness, which is most unusual in this series.

Right at the present time, my clients are offered one of the finest stocks of covers that I have had in my possession for many months. As they are greatly in demand, and as they are priced at reasonable figures, they are not likely to last long.

Always in the market to purchase anything of outstanding importance in the way of United States postal and revenue issues.

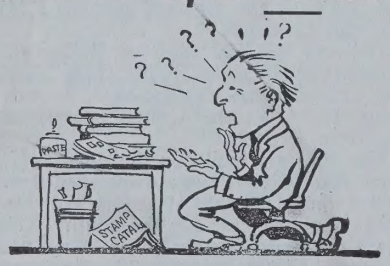
Where do I put this one?



Did you ever have difficulty in locating the country to which a certain stamp belongs because you couldn't read the foreign language on the stamp or because it was so confusingly like several other countries that you didn't stumble onto the right one, or because the occupational surcharge placed it in another country and you didn't just recall which? Sure you have! Every collector who has sorted a bunch of stamps has wasted five minutes here, thirty minutes there, and has become exasperated and put it away to ask a friend where it went, or to wait until he stumbled across it at some future date.

The Easy Index of Stamps will give you immediate reference from whatever appears on the face of the stamp to the country to which it belongs. If your time is worth anything at all, this index will save you its price in time hundreds of times over.

New 5c Air Mail Stamp

The Bureau has made up several designs for the inspection of the Postmaster General in connection with the issuing of new 5-cent Air Mail stamp. This includes stamps both horizontal and vertical in design, and include such subjects as an airplane in flight, the beacon light as shown on our present issue, the air mail insignia, such as appeared on the former 8c value, and others. It is expected that one of these designs will receive the approval of the Postmaster General before the middle of December.

1857-61 Issue

An early cover of outstanding interest has just been brought to our attention, namely, one mailed from New York in 1862, bearing a 1857 3c, which had previously been demonetized. The stamp was cancelled, and the postmaster stamped across the cover by means of a single line black handstamp—"Held For Postage." A pair and single copy of the 1c 1861 was then added to pay the postage, and these are tied to the cover with a New York, June 28, 1862, postmark. The cover is addressed to New Canaan, Conn.

Post Office Obstacles

The Information Service of the Post Office Department recently sent out a most interesting news item, calling attention to the fact that United States mail must move no matter what seeming insurmountable obstacles are faced. They state that:

"The Post Office Department has just issued advertisements inviting proposals to carry mail over the star route from Reno Junction to Downieville, California. In reporting to the Department recommending the elimination of the route between Sattley and Sierra City, an inspector called attention to the fact that west of Sattley the elevation in the Sierra Mountains increases two thousand feet within a distance of five miles, and that the snow is very deep during the winter season.

"'During last winter,' the inspector reports, 'it was necessary for the contractor to have at one time thirty head of horses to maintain the service on account of the snow and bad roads on this portion of the route'."

NOVA SCOTIA AND NEW BRUNSWICK ON ORIGINAL COVERS

By R. D. EVERARD.

New Brunswick and Nova Scotia stamps are deservedly enjoying increasing popularity amongst collectors, owing to their beauty of design, and also to the fact that they belong to the ever popular B. N. A. group.

To start with New Brunswick the 3d stamp is occasionally met with on covers, but is much harder to find than the 3d stamp of Nova Scotia. The 6d and 1/ values are extremely rare on cover, the 1/- of course being the rarer. Condition of course is paramount with these stamps, and as they generally were printed quite close together, stamps with wide margins on all sides are almost unknown, and if also their colour is bright and unimpaired they fetch high prices.

To continue on the "cents" issue (1860). I have often wondered why my friend Mr. Fred Jarrett omitted to price the cents issue of N. S. and N. B. in his splendid B. N. A. book, but perhaps he has done so in his new book. The 1c is desirable on cover, and is hard to locate. The 2c is, in my opinion, the scarcest stamp (on cover) of this issue. I have seen several on made up covers of a later date, but only one genuine cover in the last five years.

The 5c yellow and blue-green is fairly common on covers, but the 5c bronze green (the real shade which appears on the early printings of this stamp) is another proposition altogether. This stamp is undercatalogued and is a distinctly desirable item (on covers).

The 10c value is occasionally met with but is a nice item on cover. The 12½c, like the Canadian 12½c and N. S. 12½c values, is distinctly scarce on cover and much scarcer that the 12½c Canada. Covers with this value genuinely "tied on" are hard to find. They seem to be generally found with a pen cancellation. The 17c is also a very scarce stamp on cover, scarcer than the 12½c. Strips, blocks, and even pairs and combinations of values of these stamps are rarely found.

Nova Scotia "Pence" issues 1851-57. These issues are rather more plentiful than those of New Brunswick owing to the larger number printed, and which were used. Nevertheless these issues are distinctly desirable on original covers. The 3d value is fairly often found on covers, but the 6d and 1/- values are very hard to find. Here again, as in the case of N. B. stamps, condition and colouring plays a large part.

The "cents" issues (1860-63). The 1c is quite scarce on covers. The 2c is scarce, too, but is more often found than the 1c. The 5c value is the commonest of this issue and is, I consider, overcatalogued. It is quite often met with on covers. And now we come to the 8½c value, which I believe to be one of the rarest stamps on cover of all the emissions of this colony. It is quite as rare, if not rarer, than the shilling value. Four covers bearing this value, I believe, were in the "Coolidge" sale of B. N. A. in October-November, 1927. These are the only ones that I know of that have come on the market for a number of years. The writer has hunted this "bird" on cover for a long time, but still "lives in 'opes" of obtaining it. The 12½c value, too, is a very hard item to locate, though not so scarce as the 8½c. Both of these values are, I believe, under-catalogued in used condition, especially the 12½c, though the 8½c has been raised in the last few years, due, I believe, to the efforts of a famous New York dealer. And now with reference to bisected stamps of N. S. and N. B. Practically all values were used to make up rates for which no stamps of the value desired existed, or when there was a temporary shortage of the desired value. There are a number of these "splits" on the market which are bogus and which, while not deceiving an expert, might deceive those not so well informed. Only "splits" that are thoroughly tied on over the cut with the cancellation should be bought. Covers should also show the correct rate of postage. These splits should only be purchased from well-known experts in these items. In conclusion, watch out for apparently superb copies on cover having been removed from cover and repaired and replaced.—Canadian Philatelist.

ONE CENT AND ONE MINUTE

A one-cent postal will bring you my priced-list and one minute's time will convince you that it is something worth while.
E. T. PARKER, BETHLEHEM, PA. [tf

IN SHORT—

MR. HANS LAGERLOEF, New York, is one of the fifteen incorporators of the American Institute of Swedish Arts, Literature and Sciences at Minneapolis, Minn. The name implies the objects of the organization.

UNTIL January 1, 1930, Christmas and other seals and stickers may be used on the reverse side of envelopes in the domestic mail. Ordinarily, letters so labelled are unmailable, but each year during the holiday season, the regulations are suspended.

ROCKFORD, Illinois, is to be a stop on the air mail route between Chicago and the cities of St. Paul and Minneapolis, if the plans of the post office department are to be approved. In due time, its flying schedule will be announced.

ON July 4, 1930, a statue of Henry Clay will be dedicated at Caracas, Venezuela, the gift of the American Congress. President Hoover has been invited to attend the ceremonies. Commemorative stamp possibilities.

THE Reimers Monthly Stamp Bulletin, December-January, contains two interesting articles on Mexico and Hayti, respectively, by R. R. Thiele and A. O. Litt. They loan an added value to this attractive forty page list of the C. D. Reimers Company.

THE use of slugs in stamp vending machines at different post offices is resulting in much loss to the department. There is a penalty against the person who is found guilty of cheating the slot machines of a fine of not more than $5,000 and imprisonment for not more than five years.

THE ½c current type, precancelled in red, used by Appleton in sending out the program of the Appleton, Wis., Philatelic Society exhibit and banquet, certainly fill the eye. Here is "Smiles" from the song book:

"There are stamps that make us happy,
There are stamps that make us sad,
There are stamps that have a rotten straight-edge
That will make a stamp collector mad.
There are stamps that have a secret marking
That the eyes of 'nuts' alone can see;
But the stamps that have the poorest rating
Are the stamps that you give to me."

covers a few weeks ago. He says that it means simply "Railway", and that what I had was a Railway P. O. cancellation—which with the "Correo Aereo" backstamp, gives us an interesting combination!

A recent bulletin of the U. S. Dept. of Commerce lists a news item under date of Oct. 25 to the effect that the Compagnie Generale Aeropostale had obtained a temporary concession to operate mail and passenger service between Caracas, Venezuela, and Trinidad, and were planning to do so "at the earliest possible date". This may be no good now, but I mention it for those of you who like to try everything.

Unofficial Events and Covers

As for the Armistice Day cachets, a considerable of late decision cachets have recently been announced for Dec. 17, the Wright Anniversary. Notice on several of these arrived too late to be of use to our readers, who might have wished to send covers.Another bright eyed collector gets one the rest of us didn't see! Edward G. Rogers noticed that, by announcement in the Postal Bulletin, a classified station would be established Dec. 1st at the Naval Air Station at Pensacola, Fla. He sent in some covers just on the chance, and got them back postmarked in red, "Pensacola, Fla., Naval Air Br.", and signed by Rear Admiral Marshall, Commandant. Rather a nice little side line cover, all right.

Leland C. Metzgar reports a cachet used at Binghamton, N. Y., for an Air Circus, Aug. 3rd; and also an Air Meet at Lake Placid, Sept. 1 and 2, with written cachet.The promised Roswell, N. Mex., dedication came in on schedule Dec. 4 and 5. Two cachets, by the Lions Club and C. of C., in various color combinations.Our list of "edibles", swelled by the Alamosa potato last month, was increased by the Bartlett pear used as the design for the cachet of the Placerville, Calif., dedication, Dec. 1—all in magenta.Chattanooga, Tenn., 1st anniversary cachet was used Dec. 2, which was the actual anniversary of the first local service.Before I forget it, by the way, Charles Stern mentions an Alamosa cachet in blue, in addition to the other colors previously given.

The Stamp Collector's Magazine mentions a dedication and cachet at Moscow, Iowa, Nov. 10 and 11. I'd be interested in further information.George Zimmerman says that the first glider mail flight will take place soon, cachet by CAM 30, covers to Mr. Zimmerman, 1747 Wallen Ave., Chicago, Ill. CAM 30 also will have a special Christmas Day cachet, and covers for all cities on the route may be sent at once to J. M. Wulpi, Traffic Mgr., McCurdy Hotel, Evansville, Ind. Shouldn't recommend these as collection items in themselves, but the covers will make excellent Christmas cards!Cincinnati Airport Show Feb. 8th. Covers to Show, Room 312, Hotel Sinton.Chattanooga, Tenn., dedication in spring, says C. of C., and they'll provide the cachet.

C. W. Horn asks, in connection with last week's notice, that all covers for the Atascadero, Calif., dedication be sent as directed, and none to the P. M., who cannot be bothered.Detroit Lakes, Mich., and Elizabethtown, Tenn., both later next year, and notice in lots of time.New Castle, Ind., C. of C. will have a cachet for dedication next spring, but do not want covers yet.Figures on the Athol dedication: Sept. 13—520; 14—323; 15—355; all 15th flown to Boston by Army plane. A very few also mailed from Orange, the other half of this joint dedication, some with the Athol cachet, and a few without.

ONE MOMENT PLEASE!!

WHAT ARE YOU? An accumulator or a collector? It is easy to buy odd lots, poor copies, broken collections, etc., but these methods leave spotty pages and undesired duplicates.

It is easy to form a collection that you can be proud of, that contains nice copies and includes the scarcer and out-of-the-way items.

For years we have been building up a stock through careful and judicious buying, with an eye to collector's needs. We believe we can help you to form your collection correctly. We can handle want lists of any country, and everything is submitted on approval without obligation to purchase. Naturally, substantial references are required.

As to prices—most collectors are of the opinion that buying from want lists is more expensive than from price lists and approvals. Our stock is arranged to fill lists speedily and prices will average ½ catalogue. Special extra discounts to liberal buyers.

You owe it to yourself to see how much we can save you on your stamp purchases. It costs you just 2c to find out.

CANAL ZONE DESTRUCTION, 1929

By HARRY E. HUBER.

In accordance with circular No. 2 of June 20th, the sale of U. S. postage stamps, overprinted Canal Zone, in the 1c, 1½c, 2c, 5c, 12c and 50c denominations, was discontinued at the close of business on September 30, 1929.

On October 4th the following quantities of these stamps were burned:

1½c,	19,401	291.01½
5c,	57,253	2,862.65
12c,	41,446	4,973.52
50c,	16,467	8,233.50
	236,482	$17,604.86½
Booklets
4212—25c (24-1c)	101,088	$1,010.88
67—49c (24-2c)	1,608	32.16
Stamped Envelopes
1c,	857	$8.57
2c,	20	.40

Of the 5c flat plate, 50,000 were retained, with the idea of surcharging them for provisional postage due stamps, but this was subsequently deemed inadvisable, and the stamps will be destroyed at some future date.

There were retained also, 200,000 of the 1½c, which will be surcharged for use as postage due stamps, and issued at such time as the present supply of Canal Zone overprinted U. S. due stamps is exhausted. The stamps will be surcharged in four denominations: 50,000 each of the 1c, 2c, 5c and 10c. They will not, of course, be sold at the Philatelic Agency, Balboa Heights.

Provisional 25c on 2c Air Mail Stamps

A fifth printing of 100,000 of the 25c on 2c air mail stamp was made on October 29, 1929—making a total of 290,000. The first printing in January consisted of 50,000; followed by two printings of 20 000 each in February, and 100,000 in April, 1929.

There has been but one printing of the 15c on 1c air mail stamp—100,000 in March, 1929.

PERCY C. SMITH, Editor,
Lexington, Mass.

(Information in regard to new issues and varieties will be welcome. If reply be necessary enclose self-addressed stamped envelope.)

Algeria.—Economist Stamp Co. advise that the 75c, type A3, has been issued in blue.

Andorra.—Additional information regarding the new pictorial stamps is at hand from M. Galvez. A building in Old Andorra, the capital, is the subject of the vignette of the 2c olive and 30c brown; a tall stone tower, labelled "Casselles", that of the 5c deep carmine and 40c deep blue; the 10c green, 20c violet, and 50c orange depict the Council Chamber Julia de Loria. The Tower of Santa Columbo is pictured on the 15c blue-green and 25c rose, and a group of members of the General Council is portrayed in the design common to the 1p drab, 4p carmine-lake and 10p brown. The Express Delivery stamp of 20c denomination is in red, and all are recess-printed by the National Mint at Madrid, whose imprint they bear.

Brazil.—Mr. R. Roberts sends for chronicle the 300r turquoise blue, in the new air mail series. The picture on this value is the "Pax" of Augusto Severo in the flight of May 12, 1902.

France.—According to information received by Stamp Collecting a new Caisse d'Amortissement stamp of 1.50fr+3.50fr face value is about to be issued, recess-printed in lilac with a vignette of the celebrated Belfry of Rheims.

Hayti.—Mr. E. A. Colson submits for our inspection the 1 Gourde, bright blue, air mail stamp same type as the 50c value noted in our recent issue. The stamp was issued November 30th last.

India.—Stamp Collecting learns that the subject of the design of the Indian air post stamp is an aeroplane in flight over an Indian river with hills and palm trees in the background. The King's head, similar to that on the regular postage stamp, appears in the upper right-hand corner, and the inscriptions read "Air Mail" at the top and "India Postage" at the foot. The whole in large transverse rectangular oblong.

Mexico.—Copies of the 2c red, design A79 and 5c orange, type A82, watermarked CORREOS MEXICO, rouletted 14½, have been received from Economist Stamp Co.

Netherlands.—Economist Stamp Co. send a copy of the 22½c brown, surcharged with "21" in large red figures. This provisional was issued October 14th.

Salvador. — An issue of four commemorative stamps in connection with the inauguration of a new line of railway linking Salvador with Guatemala is announced by L'Echo de la Timbrologie. The design consists of portraits of the Presidents of the two republics, and the denominations are to be 1, 3, 5 and 10 centavos.

West Australia Centenary. — Illustrated above is the 1½p red, issued September 28th, and which we are advised was of a limited amount.

WHY?

By C. I. CROWELL.

I have a friend who asks me why stocks go up and then go down, and the best answer I know is, that in a Bull market stocks go up, and in a Bear market stocks go down, all explanations to the contrary. Demand and lack of demand create these conditions, and this principle applies to the market for stamps. Why do some stamps sell at full catalogue and others at less than a third?

Today the collector is faced with the problem of what to collect. The whole wide world is too large an order, so the day of specializing has arrived for the average collector. The same tendency is seen among professional men, and so again the business of accumulating stamps is feeling the influence of the modern trend of business expediency.

To be more specific. What country or group of countries adapt themselves best to furnishing the desired results to the specialist, and the answer is a geographical one, for the Yank sticks to his good old U. S. A., and the Britisher to his Colonials, etc.

However, one complication besets the specialist in U. S., and that is the financial limitation, coupled with condition crankiness carried to the nth degree. It's simply a case of not enough to go around, so if you must, pay thru the nose and more power to you.

Having faced this situation a host of collectors have decided the game is too steep and action too slow, and have abandoned the field to the millionaires, for what's the use of collecting seconds. The New York International Stamp Show brought that point home to thousands. Better one fine copy than a whole set of space fillers in mediocre condition.

There are many ways out of this unpleasant situation, for after all we don't eat postage stamps, and if our appetite for philatelic tid-bits is thwarted in one direction, we can find pleasure and profit in another, and this is precisely what thousands of modern collectors are learning to do.

The proposition simplifies itself to a matter of fancy, and who will say, "Nay", to the collector finding a kick in accumulating North Borneo, or Japan.

The deciding factor among collectors is financial. This type wants to feel that his stamps have a real as well as fancied value, and that this stability is based upon fact. This type would do well to investigate one important consideration. The safest country to specialize in is one whose inhabitants collect their own stamps, so protecting the market. Thus it becomes a game of elimination.

This process of elimination has led thousands outside the British possessions to specialize in British Colonials, for this group lends itself most satisfactorily to the efforts of the specialist. British Colonial stamps have world wide support, based upon home support, and the support of thousands in every part of the civilized world. Also the knowledge that the British government does not dump millions of surplus remainders upon the market, coupled with the fact that these stamps furnish a maximum in variety, historical interest, and artistic workmanship, have forced the stamps of Great Britain and her colonies to their present position of popularity.

All this has been said before in one form or another, but in spite of this general knowledge there is an army of collectors who are floundering, and it's difficult to sustain interest without a definite goal.

It is to these collectors, those without a definite purpose, that these remarks are directed, for no collector no matter how modest his philatelic possessions may be, wants junk on his album pages, and it's the fear of accumulating junk that causes him to flounder.

A little time spent in investigation will reveal the stability of a British Colonial collection, and when once the definite goal is determined the hobby will mean something real and worth while, a recreation beyond the pale of apology.

Our Press Review

By C. A. HOWES, Editor.

We have received numbers 2 and 5 (presumably February and May) of a little stamp publication from Budapest, Hungary, entitled Duna. As we are unfortunately not acquainted with the Hungarian language we cannot review the paper very satisfactorily, though the first number has a notice in English concerning a stamp exhibition held at Szeged, May 9-12 last. It was under the patronage of the Minister of Education and naturally specialized in collections of Hungarian stamps, though we understand the Union of Hungarian Stamp Societies exhibited the celebrated Fournier Collection of Forgeries, which they have acquired. There was to be a special postmark at the exhibition. There is also a continued article in German on the "Szegedin" surcharges on the Hungarian stamps. The paper also carries an "exchange register" for those desiring correspondents.

The subscription is 35 cents from Frank Stark-Salzer, Eötvös-utca 23/b, Budapest VI, Hungary.

We have another number of the Philateliste Belge at hand. Besides two reprinted articles, there is a strong article decrying the present habit of issuing special stamps, particularly for so-called "charity" purposes, as well as for commemoratives issued in restricted numbers. If the latter have a proper occasion and are issued in one or at most a few low values in very large quantities, so that the object of commemoration is brought properly to the attention of the masses, which is the real object, there seems to be no objection to this form. But the "semi-postals", as Scott calls them, issued for all sorts of indifferent objects, from which the government gets the lion's share of the proceeds with the "charity" trailing along behind, and which are largely pure "graft" for the government as they are mostly bought by collectors, and comparatively few for real postal use, are condemned in no uncertain terms. Those who collect these are said to be "throwing their money in the water" as far as being real stamp collectors or philatelists goes. We cannot help agreeing with most of the argument.

Numerous illustrations of counterfeit postmarks of German and French Colonial towns, as well as false surcharges of particular rarity on their stamps, are given to aid the collector in avoiding this pitfall. The recent surcharges on the "Orval" stamps with the demand from the Committee in charge of the rebuilding of five times the face value for the set, has raised a storm of protest throughout Belgium, and well it may, as it is simply plain robbery of collectors even though hidden, as they seem to think, by a worthy object in the background. The official charity stamps for 1929-30 are illustrated and are certainly gems of engraving. They show the Cascade of Cos, a promenade at Spa, and views of Ypres, Dinant, Antwerp and Bruges.

Subscription 24 Belgian francs per year from 31 Avenue de Haverskerke, Forest-Brussels, Belgium.

Heinrich Köhler's Philatelistisches Magazin, admittedly a house organ, illustrates some wonderful rarities in the October issue. A block of 6 of the Peru first issue 1 peseta rose, containing four of these and two of the error ½ peso in the same sheet, is shown from the Ferrari collection, and also another one even finer that the firm has acquired. Both are used. Another remarkable item illustrated is an entire cover with the rare 12Kr Land Post stamp of Baden—which also contains the original letter. This was to be auctioned. Various other fine items and combinations to make one's mouth water are illustrated in half tone as covers or parts of covers.

Published by Heinrich Köhler, Friedrichstrasse 1661, Berlin, W8, Germany, at 6 gold marks ($1.44.).

From Berne comes the Berner Briefmarken-Zeitung, or Journal Philatelique de Berne to give it its alternative title, as it is published in both German and French. It is in its 21st year and always is worth reading. The November number has an article on the different postmarks of the city post office of Bremen, of much interest to the collectors of those stamps which so often bear forged cancellations. An interesting account of recent voyages around Switzerland by the "Graf Zeppelin" on which mail was carried is given. There was a post office on board, selling Swiss and German stamps, with a double circle postmark having "Luftschiff" above, "Graf Zeppelin" below and date in center. The mail matter was tied in small packets furnished with a long streamer and dropped at different destinations in Switzerland. It seems that several packets were lost, and one is known to have dropped into the Rhine. The flights recorded occurred on Sept. 26-27-28, and Oct. 2-6. We understand that post cards only were allowed to be mailed at 35 pfennig or 35 centimes at first, and later at 50 pfennig or 75 centimes for Switzerland, and 1 franc outside Switzerland. A most excellent chronicle is a feature of the paper—and it is to be remembered that the Bureau of the Postal Union is not far away at Geneva. The subscription is 3 Swiss francs (60 cents) from Zumstein & Co., Berne, Switzerland.

MEMORIES OF PHILATELIC 'FRISCO

By FRED. J. MELVILLE.

In my juvenile days one of the raciest and best of the little stamp magazines came from San Francisco under the alliterative title of "Filatelic Facts and Fallacies." William Sellschopp, who ran it, is still in the land of the living, but went back to Germany a good few years ago. It must have been a wrench to leave a climate where folk could collect stamps for twelve months in the year.

Sellschopp was a philatelist-dealer of the old school and had an instinct for stamps. His paper was heralded as the only publication of its kind on the Pacific Coast, and he had some serious students there to back up his journalistic enterprise. John Luff was then in 'Frisco, having left his lone Californian vineyard, where the stamp germ first attacked him. He was an early contributor, but it was not long before he turned to the East to take charge of the American Agency of Stanley Gibbons, Ltd. Mr. Luff, said the journal, on his departure, "has all the qualities that make an individual popular, and possesses an enviable knowledge of philately." And he was the same old John Luff, his popularity undimmed and his knowledge wider and deeper than ever when I saw him in New York on my flying visit in October this year. Perhaps it is wrong of me to quote what was so well said of him 36 years ago.

Other early contributors were Mr. Wm. J. Gardner, long one of the most eminent collectors on the Coast, H. B. Phillips, who was even then, as now, a "fan" on Western franks, W. A. H. Connor, who I am glad to see is still active in the Oakland Philatelic Society; and Eugene Gesvret, the Frenchman who was curiously enough associated with the German Sellschopp in the business, and was, I fancy, the "and Co." of "Wm. Sellschopp & Co."

There were, then, as I believe there are now, two stamp societies in San Francisco, each quite active in holding meetings, and Sellschopp's rival dealers were not lacking in advertising support for "Filatelic Facts and Fallacies." W. F. Greany, E. F. Gambs and George Washburn were the chief among them. Gambs was an old hand who had published a "reliable directory" of 200 American and Canadian stamp dealers away back in 1877. Greany perhaps was as long in the trade, but it is noteworthy that a woman stands out as the most prominent of the early dealers in 'Frisco. Mrs. A. G. Craig ("Mother Craig") was to San Francisco what Miss Fernley was to London, and Madame Nicolas was to Paris.

Among the older S. F. dealers is one I have met at times in Paris, Monsieur Georges Carion, who has long been back in his native France, and who is one of the few Paris dealers who speaks English with facility.

Of the great collectors who came on a little later, I still find it difficult to realise that Henry J. Crocker has passed, and that I shall never experience the thrills he promised me of tandem driving on the golden sands of California. Mr. William Moser, too, has gone, and so has Mr. E. M. Taylor, but each has left a rich legacy of philatelic knowledge.

It must be approaching a quarter century since I saw my friend Edwin Seebohm, the Swede, off to San Francisco; he came through London on his westward trail from the Norselands. He is a man whom it is a joy to know. He is now quite an old-established dealer at the Golden Gate and holds stamp auctions there.

And just down the Coast at Los Angeles, there is Bertram Poole, the colleague of my early days, prospering in the stamp trade, and enjoying to the full the health giving properties of that wonderful climate.

For some years another good friend, the late Donald Piercy, laid a cover for me at the annual dinners of the San Francisco Stamp Society, of which I am proud to be an honorary member. But alas! the chair was never filled, and Donald Piercy, the most persuasive and charming of secretaries, is no more.

It would be worth a king's ransom to be able to "down tools" for a while and go off as a pilgrim to visit a land rich in memories as it is rich in the fruits of the earth.—Stamp Collectors' Fortnightly.

ON WITH THE MAIL

The United States mails must move no matter what seeming insurmountable obstacles are faced.

The Post Office Department has just issued advertisements inviting proposals to carry mail over the star route from Reno Junction to Downieville, California. In reporting to the Department recommending the elimination of the route between Sattley and Sierra City, an inspector called attention to the fact that west of Sattley the elevation in the Sierra Mountains increases two thousand feet within a distance of five miles, and that the snow is very deep during the winter season.

"During last winter," the inspector reports, "it was necessary for the contractor to have at one time thirty head of horses to maintain the service on account of the snow and bad roads on this portion of the route."

THE CURRENT TYPE 11c

I believe one of the most interesting stamps issued by our Government in recent years is the current 11c Perf. 11, 1922-26 issue. I have it in singles and blocks of fours, ranging from blue, turquoise blue, several shades of blue-green, chalky blue, green, yellow-green and about six shades of yellowish-green. A bright yellow-green seems to be the rare shade, and is a decided color from the yellowish-greens, which seem to be very common as we find them in almost every Post Office out here on the West Coast.

I am trying to obtain all the information possible regarding this stamp, and would like to know how many printings were made. What plates were used, so as to identify the earliest prints, and any other information that would be of value. There are many collectors who are specializing on this stamp, and I feel sure an article in your paper would be appreciated by many.—L. E. EASTMAN, 4415 Park Boulevard, Oakland, Cal.

OUR TWO GERMAN BOOKS

Seven of our publications including Goodwin's United States are out of stock, and the supply of two other books, "German States" and "Germany and Colonies" is nearly exhausted. These books were written by B. W. H. Poole, and are marvels of completeness and typographical beauty.

The book "German States" has 110 pages, while its companion has 74 pages. These two books can be obtained from our office at only 25c each—can you wonder at the paucity of book publishing propositions. Some of our readers will wake up when it is too late—better place your order today.

BRAZIL AIR MAIL ISSUE

By PERCY C. SMITH.

Two new air stamps of a set of eight values have been issued, and the other denominations will appear shortly. The 200 reis, rose, pictures the famous flight of Santos Dumont around Eiffel Tower in 1901, while the 500 reis, purple, shows the same pilot in his flight of 1910 in "14 Bis". The other values to appear will be 50r, 300r, 1,000r, 2,000r, 5,000 and 10,000r. Among the future designs for these stamps will be representations of "Pax", "Demoiselle", "14 Bis", "Biplano", and the hydroplane "Johu".

EARLIEST USED PENNY BLACK

Postmarked "Bath, My 2, 1840" and Fetches $250 at Auction

By DOUGLAS ARMSTRONG.

Fifty pounds was paid in a London auction room the other day for a stamp that in the ordinary way would have been worth about half as many shillings! The stamp was the one penny black of Great Britain, 1840, which, as all the world knows, was the first ever issued.

Its particular virtue lies, however, in the fact that failing the production of evidence to the contrary it is assumed to be the earliest example known to have been used on a letter, and therefore the first adhesive stamp to pass through the post in the whole world.

The facts are these: A Treasury minute of April 22, 1840, appointed May 6 for the official introduction of the new adhesive postage labels that were in future to be used in prepayment of letters. Three days later a circular instruction notified all postmasters and sub-postmasters of the impending issue, and almost immediately afterwards the despatch of supplies to provincial post offices was commenced.

At Bath the black penny stamps were received about April 30, and it would appear that notwithstanding the official injunction that none was to be sold to the public before the morning of May 6, a local post office official, or someone who had access to the stamps, did in fact remove the very first stamp from the corner of a sheet, carefully and with the aid of scissors, and affix or cause it to be affixed to a missive addressed to an unknown person living in Peckham, London.

Only a fragment of the letter remains, with the stamp still adhering to it, but it shows clearly the Bath postmark of May 2, 1840, the red "PAID" mark in the form of a tombstone dated two days after, partly over the stamp itself, indicating that it was not cancelled until it reached London.

Portions of the address also appear: "ler," the end of a name; "n" followed by "Road," and finally "Peckham" in full, all inscribed in the copper-plate caligraphy of the period. The letters "A-A" in the lower corners of the stamp itself prove its position as being the first of that particular sheet.

Other copies are known used prior to the authorised date, but none so early as May 2, so that there is every reason to regard this item as unique. It once formed part of the important specialised collection of line-engraved issues of Great Britain belonging to Mr. A. E. Dickson, of Preston, Lancashire, and was knocked down at the sale of November 11 to Mr. Charles Nissen, the well-known British stamp expert, for $250.

The variety is quite unorthodox by ordinary philatelic standards, but as to its historical interest there can be no two opinions.—Bazaar.

"BUROPRATTLES"

By E. S. THRESHER.

The fact reported last month that the precancel plate had been made for Butte, Montana, ordinaries when no buros had been ordered, has a counterpart in Buro history. It seems that several years ago we were told that Jamestown, New York, had ordered coils, as I remember it, the 1½c values, which order was later cancelled. The facts of the matter as I am told, are that the precancelling plates were made without any orders for precancelled stamps. The explanation probably lies in a mistake by the booking clerk at the Buro. Wonder if the Beverly Hills coils were in the same class?

If Jamestown would order coils, now, they might appear on an old type.

All of which leads me to remark that I cannot help speculating about the possibilities of old types appearing on the new issues, if they, the new buros, come within the next few months. A check of the cities which have used old type buros shows the following facts:

There are 14 cities that have used old type perf. 10 and compound ordinaries from which no new type ordinaries have appeared.

Six cities have used old type perf. 10 ordinaries, but no compound or new type.

Seventy cities have used the old type coil, with no new type yet.

Of course those numbers may be reduced even before this appears in print, and will be reduced materially in the near future, but there undoubtedly are some of them that will never appear with the new type.

Is the B-11 or the B-13 to be the standard? I thought that it was to be mostly B-11 until the New Orleans coil bobbed up. Maybe the roll for that had been made some time back.

There are sleepers in the list of buros, not only in blox and pairs, but in singles. Dr. Mitchell has most, if not all of them spotted, but has the true rarity of all of these scarce babies been realized yet? It took several years for the present value of the Libertys to develop. Is it not possible that one or two other items will rank right along with the famous Liberty?—and not all earlies, either.

Why the reluctance of some very enthusiastic buro collectors to go after blox and pairs? The answer I have had from some, was that they did not start soon enough. Granted, but will they ever be any commoner? Do collectors of straight U. S. blox give up because they didn't start soon enough? The block and coil pair end of it is the big fun for me. I boastfully say that I have two perf. 10 blox that Dr. Mitchell hasn't, yet the total of my perf. 10 blox is "not so good." There can be no complete collection of blox and pairs, as there are several items unknown except in single. Think of the late C. A. Carroll picking the only known block of the Oklahoma 1c out of an A. P. S. sales book for only 30c! Wouldn't it be a real thrill to pick a block out of the Lynn 1c perf. 10 out of a mission mixture? Not if you didn't have some other blox to put it with.

The good Dr. Mitchell seems to think that the Grand Rapids, "no period" coils are a poor inking result. I don't agree with him. I have the variety on the 1, 2 and 3c coils, and a strong glass shows no trace of a period.

The 2c I have had some time, two years at least. It was my "single" and I will have to admit that I did not spot the missing period until the existence of that variety was recently published. The 1c I picked off an envelope addressed to me, and received about two weeks ago. It is of the light or yellow-green (reissue) shade. My guess is that it is a plate break.

If it was an "error" it would come once in six stamps and be on all rolls of all denominations. If a plate break, it would come once in forty-eight, on all stamps printed after the break developed. But it would not be in every roll. It would come once in every twelve in the roll in which it was present, and only one roll in four would have it. Judging from its scarcity, I say plate break. Will someone in Grand Rapids who has access to whole coils investigate and let us know?

Does anyone have or know of a pair of any of the Buro precancelled playing card coils? They would be a pretty good item in pairs.

E. J. Newcomer sends in the following "dope" for "Buroprattles":

Seattle is using, in the new type, 1c and 2c ordinaries, and 1c and 1½c coils. Old type 1c coil seems to be much scarcer than Mitchell's prices would indicate.

Portland, Oregon, is using new types. I have the 8c and suppose others will be along soon.

Spokane is also using Bureaus, but I haven't seen any yet.

Honors To A Great Philatelist

A WONDERFUL TRIBUTE OF LOVE AND RESPECT TO OUR FORMER ASSOCIATE

THE MANAGING EDITOR.

Philately in all its branches has suffered a severe loss in the death of Charles E. Severn, editor of the WEEKLY. This particular number cannot properly describe the great flood of sympathy that has surged in upon the bereaved ones, especially his widow and young son, Charles, a fine boy of 13 years. Mr. Severn's name will live for years in the columns of this publication, and as well in the memory of thousands who have felt the influence of his personality.

As announced last week Mr. Severn passed away very suddenly on Saturday evening, Dec. 14. He was at his home with his family conversing with some friends, who happened in for a friendly call, when the end came suddenly and painlessly. To say that I was astonished by the telegram that announced the sad news is to express my feelings very feebly. I had no premonition that such a thing would happen, having been in frequent correspondence with my associate and knowing nothing of any indisposition. I left at once for Chicago, and Tuesday noon stood by the casket of a loved business companion of more than a quarter century.

I wish that all his friends could have seen him as I saw him. Although stilled in the embrace of death, there was upon his countenance the same genial friendly expression that won him the hearts of men wherever he went. On Sunday and Monday several hundred people called at the Severn home to extend words of sympathy to the widow.

The funeral services were held at 2 P. M., Tuesday, Dec. 17, from his late residence, 1132 Loyola Ave., and a great throng filled the spacious home to overflowing. A second service was held in the chapel at Rose Hill Cemetery, and again the building could not hold the friends who sought to attend. The Chicago Philatelic Society, of which Mr. Severn was a life director and past President, was numerously represented. A beautiful commitment service at the grave followed.

Rev. Charles Thomas Hull, rector of the St. Paul's Church by the Lake, used the Episcopal burial service at the home and cemetery, and followed with the committal. His commanding spiritual personality gave all these services the comforting influence that met the need of the hour. The pall bearers were Judge Joseph L. McCarthy, Edward Driver, Arthur Wallace, Louis Blumenthal, Christian P. Paschen, and William Severin.

The floral tributes were numerous and beautiful. They came from far and near. Among others were noted offerings from Mr. Severn's associates on the WEEKLY, Saul Newbury, The Chicago Philatelic Society, Christian P. Paschen, Judge J. L. McCarthy, The Collectors Club of New York City, Mr. and Mrs. P. M. Wolsieffer, A. H. Bloss, National Air Mail Society, Alfred E. Fritz, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ades Fowler, 49th Ward Chicago Republican Club, Hamilton Club, E. M. Rosenthal, German Stamp Collectors Club, Dr. Clarence Hennan, Evanston Lodge of Elks, Paul MacGuffin, Lincoln Home Philatelic Society, Mr. and Mrs. James Kirkland, Mr. and Mrs. Fred. J. DeWitt, Mr. and Mrs. Marvin A. Bralow, Howard News Stamp Club, and the Postage Stamp Club of Chicago.

The floral tribute from Saul Newbury was of unusual beauty. It consisted of a floral blanket of roses large enough to cover the casket. Its use in the committal service added much to the impressiveness. The Chicago Philatelic Society sent a floral piece consisting of the Society emblem, and it was a commanding feature. Among the 500 or more who attended the services of the afternoon were many whom we cannot mention, but there were noted Capt. B. B. Lipsner, Supt. Air Mail Service, Col. Frank O. Sebring, Capt. A. C. Townsend, Walter N. Emerson, Dr. C. W. Hennan, Max Golding, B. L. Voorhees, James O. Zalud, James Kirkland, Adolph F. Boehm, Edward M. Rosenthal, Richard M. Cabeen, Charles J. Rose, Thomas C. E. Hunter, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ades Fowler, Elmer Stuart, N. B. Paulsen, Ernest A. Jacobs, L. Josephson, A. Hippchen, Julius Loeffler, W. H. Gilley, Paul MacGuffin, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Schleichert, K. A. Wallquist, James S. Hardy, Ivor Johnson, A. Borisch. I am indebted to Mr. Fowler for assistance in the preparation of this article.

DOUBLE PRINTS

The 3c offset print, type IV, is fairly common showing a shifted or blurred double impression. It is, however, quite rare showing a really distinct double impression which has no trace of a blur to it.

We recently acquired a small quantity of this stamp showing one of the most remarkable double impressions we have ever seen, the first impression being in a much paler and totally different shade to the second, as well as being well separated from it. The plate number block shows that these two impressions were printed from different plates as there are two different plate numbers showing very clearly. The centering of these stamps is most unusually good for the offset printing.

We can offer a fine single copy of this remarkable variety at $5.00, and a fine mint block of four at $22.50. A few copies, centering practically perfect, can be supplied at 10% extra.

Plate block of six showing two separate plate numbers (possibly unique), $50.00.

In addition to the above, we can offer a very fine single of the 3c type III double print at $5.00; and a fine block at $25.00. The 2c in an exceptionally clear double print at $12.50.

MAJOR T. CHARLTON HENRY

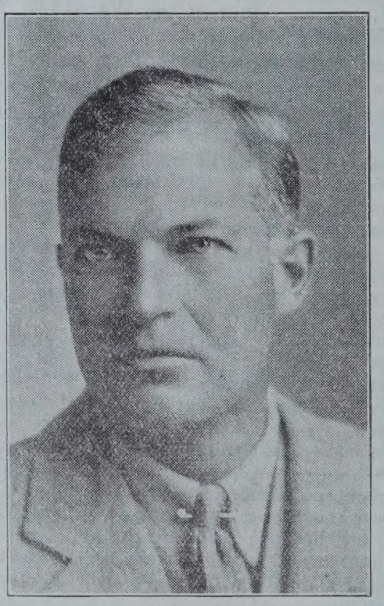
By PHILIP H. WARD, JR.

Philadelphia is most fortunate in having within its bounds a number of collectors of national philatelic importance, who possess some of the finest collections of their kind ever gotten together. One of the foremost is Mr. T. Charlton Henry, the possessor of the world's finest collection of British West Indian stamps.

Mr. Henry, who was born in Germantown, started his philatelic activities in his childhood days, and his interest has never waned. Graduating from Princeton in 1909, he studied law, and at the outbreak of the World War entered the American Army, where he received a commission as Major, serving with the 79th Division in France. He is a life member of both the Collectors Club of New York and of the Royal Philatelic Society of London. He received from the Royal Society, the Thomas Keay Tapling Medal for the season of 1927-28, for the best display and monograph during the year. He was one of the judges picked at large from the philatelists of the world for the International Philatelic Exhibition held in New York City in 1926.

In looking over Mr. Henry's several specialized collections, it is difficult to pick out what might be considered the best, in view of the fact that it has been his aim from the first to obtain, not only the rarest but the finest copies possible of all issues. This detail of choiceness applies to blocks, and covers, as well as single specimens, for he would prefer to have his collection in superb condition, rather than have any variety represented by one which might be termed a slightly inferior copy. Mr. Henry is a keen student of the stamps in which he is interested, and is better posted on the issues of the British West Indies than anyone else on this side of the water.

As Trinidad is possibly Mr. Henry's favorite country, we will discuss this collection first. It was upon the lithographed issues and the engraved emissions of Perkins and Bacon that he prepared his monograph for the Royal Society. Of the former issues, the collection contains a horizontal strip of three, with sheet margins on two sides, together with a single copy on the entire cover, of the 1856 third printing in dark blue. There are also numerous singles on the covers, including the earliest known use of the lithographed stamp. As a matter of interest, before this copy was discovered, the English catalog placed the variety at a later date. The engraved issues are worked out in shades, in accordance with their time of issue, the dates being obtained through the accumulation of covers. Mr. Henry has always sought early covers for this very purpose, even where the stamps showed little else than date of use. With the exception of the cover mentioned above, possibly the outstanding piece among the Trinidad, is a magnificent mint block of four of the 1863, 1 shilling bright violet, perforated 13, Scott's No. 47. Another outstanding item is an 1860 cover, showing a pair of the dark bluish-gray lithographs, fifth printing, used in combination with the imperforate engraved shilling indigo. The late issues from this point on are all represented by numerous singles and blocks, including the former in both used and unused condition. Even the rare provisional of 1882 with manuscript surcharge in black is represented by no less than four copies.



His Barbados would undoubtedly rank as one of the finest collections of this colony in the world, and it includes every catalogued variety with blocks and covers of most of the issues. An outstanding piece of importance is a wonderful copy of the 1861 one shilling, blue error, in mint condition. The 1 pence Provisional of 1878 is found in profusion in both singles and pairs.

all other issues, including one of twenty-four of the 1865 6 pence, brown-lilac, and a block of sixteen of the 1d on 2d blue of 1875. Outside of this block, a pair is the only other multiple known.

Jamaica is represented by large mint blocks of all of the "pineapple" issues, a pair of the 1919 1 shilling with inverted frame, in mint condition, while the Nevis shows most of the early issues in the blocks, and contains blocks of practically small reconstructed sheets. Quite a few complete sheets are also to be noted. Two pieces of prime importance are magnificent used copies of the 1 shilling on laid paper. It might be of interest to mention in passing that this stamp is not known in mint condition.

The St. Lucia collection includes blocks of twenty of the first issue, with everything from that date on in blocks, singles, and covers.

The St. Vincent collection is one of outstanding importance, including all of the Provisional Issues, which are most difficult to obtain, especially in immaculate condition. There is a block of the 1 shilling slate of 1863, Scott's No. 8a, a mint block of eighteen of Scott's No. 30, ½d on one-half of 6d, mint copies of the 4 pence on 1 shilling, including a copy on cover used on day of issue. Mint blocks and covers of the earlier stamps are well represented.

The Turks Islands collection occupies a volume, consisting of reconstructed sheets of all of the early surcharges, including the rare 2½ pence on 1 shilling. Of several of these, only one or two copies are known. Two superb mint copies of the 1 shilling lilac with full gum are to be found. In the case of the later issues, everything is present in singles, blocks of four and better.

Virgin Islands varieties are complete, including several blocks, showing type varieties, that have only recently been discovered.

Mr. Henry also collects the postage stamps of the United States, and while he does not consider this of outstanding importance, it is, nevertheless, an extremely fine lot of all of our issues, from 1847 to date. Of the early issues, he has singles of everything, and blocks of quite a few varieties. There is a very fine 1851 1c Type I, No. 7R1, on the entire cover, and a strip showing the Type III, No. 99R2. The special prints of 1875 and 1880 are complete with perforations on all four sides. One who has endeavored to get together a set of the hard paper in this condition will appreciate how difficult it is. The late errors are all present, including the 1901 inverts, most of the part-perforates of the twentieth century, and the 24c Air Mail inverted.

The Philatelic Congress of Great Britain, which recently met in Birmingham, selected Mr. Henry as one of two collectors for the year to join the Roll of Distinguished Philatelists. This procedure was instituted at the Congress of Newcastle-on-Tyne in 1920, at which time, a number of philatelists throughout the country were selected for the Roll of Honor, and since then, two have been added yearly by the affiliated philatelic societies of Great Britain.

Several of the collections just described were exhibited at the New York and other exhibitions, and in every case, received the Gold Medal.

WASHINGTON (D. C.) PHILATELIC SOCIETY

The Washington Philatelic Society, which was organized December 11, 1905, succeeding a former organization which had gone out of existence, held its annual meeting in the Library rooms of the Security Savings and Commercial Bank, 1518 K St., N. W., on Wednesday, December 11, 1929. There were 51 members present in spite of inclement weather.

The annual reports of all officers showed the Society to be in a most flourishing condition, with a membership of 100, and an average attendance of about 40.

The much beloved President, William A. Johnson, was unanimously re-elected. Mr. Johnson has served as President continuously since December 14, 1908, and that alone is sufficient evidence as to his popularity and efficiency. Other officers elected for 1930 were: 1st Vice-Pres., James F. Duhamel; 2nd Vice-Pres., Mayo Dudley; Secretary, Maurice S. Petty; Treasurer, Philip S. Warren; Librarian, Harry G. Webb; Auctioneer, John D. K. Smoot; Sales Manager, Fred R. Rice. Governing Board—in addition to first five officers: Lt. Col. Charles S. Hamilton, Major C. H. Bonesteel, Ernest Kletsch and Charles H. Vaughan.

The Society is fortunate in having on its Governing Board, in the persons of Col. Hamilton and Major Bonesteel, two nationally known philatelic experts, both of whom are devoted to the interests of this Society.

Informal auction sales are conducted at meetings on each Wednesday night, and the sales for the past year amounted to $1,012.50. A first day cover service (from Washington only) and a Philatelic Agency purchasing service is maintained for non-resident members at a small fee.

The members are looking forward to a visit to the Collectors Club of New York, to take place on January 22, 1930, and also to an evening when members of that Club will be our guests in Washington on February 14, 1930. Great times are expected on both occasions.

Meetings are held every Wednesday night, and philatelists visiting our Capital City are always sure to find a hearty welcome at 1518 K St.

TOASPERN'S FIFTEENTH SALE

By PHILIP H. WARD, JR.

On November 25 and 26, Mr. Herman Toaspern offered the philatelic public at auction an extremely interesting and attractive lot of early Western Franks, in addition to covers, used from California and points West. The sale was well attended and the prices which certain items brought indicate that there is a constant demand for outstanding pieces of this kind.

A Hunter & Company with large, fancy embossed design with 1851, 3c, nicely tied with Wells, Fargo, Type I, handstamp, reached $107.50. A Langton & Bros. showing two copies of the same stamp tied with Rocky Hill, Ky., manuscript postmark, and addressed to Nevada City, sold at $105.50. A Singer & Morrow, 10c green on buff, together with a 3c 1851, showing frank of the Feather River Express and red receiving postmark of Longmeadow, Mass., brought $76.50. An 1851 3c tied with Mokelumne Hill, Calif., postmark — Stellar Express, reached $90.00.

Adams & Company, 16 Wall Street, New York City, addressed to Sacramento City, $35.00. The same price was paid for a handstamped Adams & Company, Sacramento, in blue on small cover. A similar cover from San Francisco, and one from Maryville, $27.50 each. An Adams & Company Express, Stockton, handstamped in blue, $48.00. A handstamped Beekman's Express, Jacksonville, O. T., $70.00. A Berford & Company, San Jose, Calif., described as one of the finest and rarest pieces in the sale, on 3c buff, $117.00. A Copley & Company on 10c green envelope, postmarked "Maryville—Paid By Stamps", $67.50. A Wm. T. Gibbs' Express on 3c on white envelope cancelled "Spanish Flat, Cal.", $87.50. A wonderful lot of Greathouse & Slicer went at prices varying from $40.00 to $53.00. A Green's Express from Rocky Hill, Ky., $132.50. Hunter & Company handstamps from $32.50 to $70.00. A Todd's Express brought $47.50.

Covers from Western points brought various prices, depending as much upon the illustration on the cover as on the postmark. "A Mining Scene" with a pair of the 3c 1851 from Placerville, Cal., $59.00. A "Noisy Carrier" on cover showing Seal of the State of California, $44.75. A California propaganda envelope showing bearded miner standing by a wooden sluice with youth holding bag of gold, entitled, "What will you take for a share?", from Tehama, $27.00. An 1857 10c on cover from San Francisco showing illustration of "What Cheer House" on back, $14.75. An 1851 3c from Bottle Hill, Calif., $25.50. A Forest City, Calif., cover with oval double line PAID postmark, $9.75.

DISCOUNTS
We deem it necessary to state once again that we do not accept general advertising announcing larger than 50 per cent discounts. Our reason for this is that there is apt to be extravagance in statements that will react unfavorably on Philately. Indicate definitely and describe some of the stamps you can sell at better than 50% discount and you may use an appropriate display line.

Precancelled Stamps

A. F. GAMBER, Editor,
Valley City, N. D.

Our readers are beginning to come forward with notes and suggestions. Don't be bashful, no one person can make this department a success. If you have something worth telling about, or a query to propound, here is the time and the place to set it forth. If the editor can't answer it, certainly somewhere within the wide circle of this paper's readers there is someone who can.

Mr. R. L. Rich lends confirmation to our recent statement that the old issue stays by some office stocks, by sending a Crowley, La., old 50c in the U-51 handstamped type, inverted. Another choice item of his is Worcester, Mass., current 20c double up. Doubles from Worcester are decidedly out of the ordinary. By the way, Worcester is a popular town for some precancel collectors, its issues are widely sought and all are not easy to find. Some values of the present set in the old type that went out about 1922, are very elusive, for example the 1½, 8 and both positions of the 20c. And, conversely, several values of the old issue in the present type, are not so plentiful, namely, 6, 8, 9, 12, 13, 30, 50, $1. Another case where old stocks were buried under new ones.

Richard Beck and yours truly recently had an argument over a certain 1c precancelled envelope from Tacoma, he insisting that it is a local typeset, I that it is a government type. Dr. Mitchell acted as arbitrator, and awards the decision to Beck. The deciding factor is the 1921 watermark in the paper, the typeset production is so very nearly like that of the government type that to my poor eyes it did indeed seem that type. However, the Doctor says no government types were used on envelopes with 1921 watermark, so there you are. I have seen several close typeset approximations of the government type, but this takes the cake. Ninety-nine out of one hundred collectors would call it a government type without any hesitation.

Here is a puzzler: Wilfred Betts sends in a Clare, Mich., government type 1c envelope, saying, "I just found out that on two different Saturdays, i.e., November 2 and 9, the Rosebush, Mich., office accepted, postmarked, and mailed 250 of these Clare envelopes for a fellow who has no permit. This may be an every day occurrence, but if so, it's news to me." I think it's news to all of us.

Eben Thresher of Kansas City sends in an interesting bit of news: The Chicago & Alton Railway Company projected sending out a large number of circulars to K. C. residents. The Chicago office sent along 5,000 1c unprecancelled stamps perf. 11 x10½ for that purpose. Since they must be precancelled to go out under the Sec. 435½ ruling, these 5,000 were so treated with the current U-12, three-line city type. The rest of the circulars went out under 1c K. C. Bureaus. All of the 5,000 were perforated C & A. Now here is an item that is just certain to be good, perforated or not. There isn't one chance in 100 that more local type 1c will appear, they wouldn't have done so in this case, but for the company's having sent the 5,000 stamps from headquarters. Thresher thinks perhaps 10 or 20 were saved in the city, probably a liberal estimate. These emergency city type issues from Bureau using cities are mighty good things to be on the lookout for. The moral seems to be, keep your eyes open and know your stamps.

Another interesting kind of precancels is the mimeographed kind. Frederick Demers sends in some items from his home town, Waterville, Maine, which uses a mimeograph for precancelling. There are three spacings on their current mimeo, viz., 15, 16½, 17½mm, respectively, and all three are collectible. Regular postage collectors recognize the varying spacings of surcharges, and precancels are municipal surcharges, nothing more.

Washington Letter

By PHILIP H. WARD, JR.,
Box 2175, Middle City Sta., Phila., Pa.

(U. S. oddities and varieties will be noted in this department. If reply be necessary, enclose self-addressed stamped envelope.)

Current Happenings

The new method of gumming stamps, as explained in this column several weeks back, is meeting with success, and the reports that the Department is receiving are satisfactory. Under the circumstances, just as soon as the Christmas rush is over, all denominations of the rotary press will be produced by the new method. When they are all available, they will be examined carefully in the hopes that distinct differences will be noted, which will enable the specialist to separate the two issues.

At least a half dozen different designs of the new Air Mail stamp have been made by the Bureau, and are being submitted to the Postmaster General for his approval. He will, no doubt, select one showing an airplane in flight, or the air mail insignia, and this variety will be available after January first. As previously announced, it is not the Department's intention of making a first-day issue, but will put it into the general stock, which will be sent throughout the country just as soon as it is available.

Other new things may be expected shortly after the beginning of the new year.

New Issues

Under date of December 12, the Information Service of the Post Office Department addressed a communication to the daily press, stating that the Postmaster General had before him for consideration, no less than seventy-two requests for the issuance of commemorative stamps.

Many of these requests date back several months and have already been refused. The list includes a recommendation for the commemoration of about every event that the United States has participated in since becoming a nation, as well as commemoration of events of small importance to the American nation. For instance, one correspondent desires to commemorate the 2,000th Anniversary of the birth of Virgil. Those who spent nights working on their Virgil will think otherwise, a stamp to commemorate the Opening of the Ambassador Bridge, Detroit, Michigan, a stamp for the first State Geologist of Michigan, Douglass Houghton, a stamp honoring the Hiding of the Liberty Bell during the Revolution, one for the Oregon Trail, one for the first "Homestead" papers in United States, Beatrice, Nebr., one for the Battle of Rhode Island, another for the Dog-Team Mail between Canada and the United States, a stamp for the Confederate Veterans Encampment, one for Mark Twain—in fact, the list is so long that it takes almost three pages. Possibly one or two stamps mentioned might eventually be issued, but in the case of most suggestions, there appears to be little thought behind the request.

"Around the Horn" Usage

In a recent Chronicle, mention was made of an interesting variety that had been located, showing the "Around the Horn" New York postmark. Dr. S. G. Keller noting the article writes to state that he has been interested in these cancellations for some time, and has so far succeeded in picking up this postmark on the 1851 1c, 3c, 10c and 12c. He has also found the 1857 10c, 12c and 24c. The latter must be unusually scarce. I do not recall seeing this postmark on this denomination.

New Envelopes

Under date of December 14, Mr. F. A. Tilton, Third Assistant Postmaster General, announced changes in prices of stamped envelopes, effective January 1, 1930.

The changes show a slight increase in cost, due to increased cost of manufacturing. There are no changes in price in newspaper wrappers.

The demand for the size 3 envelope has been exceedingly small and this will be discontinued. Extra quality envelopes, which heretofore have been available in white only, may be had after the first of the year in blue and amber, in addition to white. Postmasters are instructed to keep a supply of these three colors on hand to meet a reasonable public demand. They are supposed to have on hand in addition to certain sizes of the colored envelopes, unprinted stocks of the extra quality size 5, 7, 8, and 13 on white. These are to be furnished at the window, unless the purchaser especially desires standard quality envelopes. In this way, the purchaser of odd quantities will receive a much higher grade envelope at no extra cost, for heretofore he has been paying one cent for a single envelope of the standard quality envelope paper.

Beginning with January first, envelopes with the imprint in the corner of the Post Office only, will only be issued in extra quality. In other words, the Department is making every effort to eliminate the use of the standard quality. Return-request envelopes may be obtained at the old figure up until the end of the year.

Filatelic Oddities

Edited by SEVARD.

Canada is still using the cash register mailing strip instead of stamps on parcels post. We have been propagandists for this for many years, and we hope our postal authorities will adopt them, since there are ten advantages to one disadvantage in using them. It is very funny to relate that we received a bundle of these addressed, "For the person saving Canadian stamps," without street number, city, state or country. Some friend in the Washington post office has us spotted for this philatelic junk.

On top of that, Mr. Robert Briggs, Athol, Mass., sends us a few Canadian covers which are stampless but show a handstamp "4" on them, indicating the postage paid. One cover has a "T" in a circle. From the cancel impression found on each cover, we feel certain that the envelopes were empty when received and were forwarded as possible Postage Due originating in Canada. Have you ever mailed out checks and forgotten to put the checks inside the envelope? Mr. Briggs wants to know if stampless covers are coming back? They always do to me.

Mr. Bob Gallup, Albany, New York, sends us a pretty impression of the new square stamp meter, known as type F henceforth. These meters are becoming quite common now, and we are receiving them from all over. Since these meters lack a city permit number, they should be collected entire. Albany always reminds me of the Sheridan monument there which we dedicated in 1917. The State of New York somehow dedicated us with a carload of hams, which we attached to our train, and when we landed in Weehawken, my battery had hams hanging off the horses' ears, from the rifle sight covers, from the captain's sword. It being a field artillery company rather Jewish in character, our march across 42nd Street down to the Long Island Railroad Station made quite a hit in New York City. Hams to the right of them, hams to the left of them, gefuellte fisch had blundered; was there a man dismayed, was there a gun displayed, New York City wondered.

PROF. A. E. GAMBER, VALLEY CITY, N. DAK., IS RAZZING US AGAIN BY SENDING US A TYPE E METER FROM FARGO, N. DAKOTA. THIS IS FARGO NO. 1, METER 8026, UNIVERSAL CREDIT COMPANY. AHA! FRIEND GAMBER, WE TOLD YOU THOSE HARDING PRECANCELS WERE SPECULATIVE.

Mr. A. E. Clattenburg, Jr., former Cynwyd, Penna., has written us fro his new abode in Ellas or Greece, whe he is Vice-Consul. On the strength this adventure, Mr. Clattenburg a nounces his marriage. To link roman to adventure in historic Greece is t much for our subtle brains. We c only gain them by poring over o stamps and wondering if we should leave the stamps on our seered love mi sives, rather than seal them into tomes hinged beings among which they lose little of the tutoyer of Life.

Mr. Clarence Loescher, Menash Wis., sent us a glorious cover of A pleton's First Anniversary. The cak the candle, the trimmings, all as a c chet, are quite interesting. But deci edly not as a cachet. Its worth more in the fact that a small town ca divulge philately beneficially. Stamp make for friends, and advertising the for the sake of our hobby is no mea venture. What Appleton has don every philatelic society in the wor can do. But it takes initiative to sta anything. Therein lies the benefits the cachet.

Mr. R. D. Everard writes us fro London in hurried excitement over a fin a cover with twelve of Fiji 2c on 1d 18 dated August 26, 1872. The earliest da ing in the handbook is September. W never hesitate to get excited, too, whe ever we make a find, or disprove son well published authority. It's an e perience Harry Konwiser loves, as do v all. If only Mr. Everard will stay aw from the lions at Trafalgar Square. La summer, we went punting at the Serpe tine, and boy, how I can punt? I punt ninety yards until a bobby got me wi a boat hook, and fished an English ge tleman out of the water.

AN INTERNATIONAL STAMP?

By D. B. ARMSTRONG.

Amongst the recommendations adopte by the London Postal Congress this ye was one providing for the introducti of an improved type of International R ply Coupon, to be taken into use on Ju 1, 1930, when the new convention com into force. But, so far as can be a certained, no provision has been made f removing several anomalies which exi at present in connexion with the use these by no means perfect attributes international communications.

One of the primary objections to th existing arrangement is that, whereas th coupons can only be exchanged f stamps of equivalent face value to 2½ they are retailed by the post offices different countries at widely varyin prices. For instance, in Australia at o time an International Reply Coupon co 6d to buy, although more recently th cost has been reduced to 4d, as compare with 3d in Great Britain, and somethin less than 2½d in certain continental cou tries. Now that rates for internation postage are more or less stabilised, should be possible for the coupons to b sold in all Postal Union countries f the exact local equivalent of the standar rate upon single letters and to be ex changeable for stamps of the same valu There would seem to be no valid reaso why a 2½d stamp should cost 3d at o post office and twice that amount another.

Nor does the system of exchange wor smoothly, owing to the different inte pretations put upon it by postal official It is not uncommon for a 1½d stamp t be proffered in exchange for an Inte national Reply Coupon emanating fro one of the British Dominions on th grounds that it is the actual postage r quired for a single letter within th Empire.

It is due undoubtedly to these irritatin anachronisms and complications that th public at large does not avail itself mo freely of the facilities apparently ap proved by the International Reply Coupo service. A practical solution of the diff culty suggests itself in the substitution a universal adhesive stamp in lieu of th "Coupon-Réponse International." Th could be printed and issued by the Ber Bureau in the same way as the Repl Coupon, and supplied to the world's po

TURIN EXHIBITION

The Italian National Philatelic Exhibi-on held recently at Turin was according Gibbons' Monthly Journal honorably istinguished by the fact that no special tamp was issued in connection with it. special postmark was, however, used.

So much space was available for ex-ibits that practically all the frames were fixed to the walls, which added greatly the convenience of visitors. The aver-ge philatelic exhibition is like the maze t Hampton Court with closely set stands f frames occupying most of the avail-ble floor space.

Among the rarities shown were Sicily, gr blue, error of colour, used (Dr. hiesa); 80c Parma, used on cover Bona), and complete mint sheet of Par-a, 15c, first issue, showing the tête êche (Dr. Diena).

CAYMAN IDS. No. 30a

We recently stated upon the authority of Mr. Hermann Focke that Cayman Ids. Scott's No. 30a, 1d on 4d black and red on yellow had no postal standing. Mr. Hans Lagerloef of N. Y. C. wrote us as follows:—

"For your information, wish to say that I have this very stamp with double surcharge, together with the unsurcharged stamp and other stamps on a registered cover addressed to Germany and cancelled in Georgetown, so the stamp certainly must exist. This cover is certainly genuine."

In rebuttal Mr. Focke further writes:—

"In the first place I have not said that the 'stamp does not exist', because that would not be the truth; my contention is that it was never issued nor admitted for the purpose of doing service as a postage stamp, but was intended exclusively to serve as a revenue stamp.

The fact that one copy, placed on a cover with a number of other stamps, escaped the postmaster's attention, and may have been cancelled, does not change the stamp's status, and I can assure you that I have seen several copies, on which the stamp was obliterated with a blue pencil, and the letter subjected to payment of postage due by the addressee.

I happened to be an ardent admirer of Cayman Islands stamps in the period of the various provisionals, was very well acquainted with Mr. Bostwick, and if it should interest you, I shall be glad to submit to you authenticated proof, in print, and substantiated by photographs and official correspondence, to convince you that this stamp should not appear in a catalogue for postage stamps."

This is an interesting contribution to Cayman Ids. postal history.

AIR MAIL ITEMS

—The American Lead Pencil Co. of Hoboken is using a very neat air mail meter permit No. 10089.

—A recent United Press dispatch states that the Pan-American Airways, Inc., have announced that Col. Lindbergh will soon blaze the first flight on a new FAM route. This will be an extension from Paramaribo, down the east coast of South America, via Rio de Janeiro, Buenos Aires, and undoubtedly numerous other intermediate points. No other details yet, but this may happen without much advance notice.

—The Postal Bulletin of Dec. 17th, appropriately enough the Wright Anniversary, carries long and detailed announcement of a general reduction in rates over the services on FAM's 5, 6, 7, 8 and 9, effective Jan. 1. Those who wish rate change covers, or who wish to see this detailed statement, can do so by asking their local postmaster to show this Bulletin to them.

ffices at an agreed discount for retail at ie exact equivalent in national currency f 25 gold centimes. Printed in blue and f bold design, the Postal Union stamp ould be recognised and accepted in pre-ayment of international postage by all ountries signatory to the convention. If eed be the name of the country of origin ould be inserted in a blank space pro-ided for that purpose as a form of ontrol.

The scheme would simplify the sending f reply-paid letters to an enormous ex-ent, as the trouble and annoyance of ex-anging coupons would be entirely elimi-ated, the Universal stamp being affixed y the sender to a self-addressed envelope the first instance. In such case the dhesive stamp would not be exchange-ble or redeemable under any conditions hatsoever. The work of the Interna-onal Postal Clearing House should also e materially reduced by the suggested novation.

An obvious objection to the proposed plan lies in the danger of counterfeiting, but that is more apparent than real, for the simple reason that it is common knowledge that the present Reply Coupons have themselves been imitated on an extensive scale. To the master-forgers who can turn out dangerous facsimiles of bank notes, the reproduction of these indifferently printed billets must be a comparatively simple matter: nor would a trifle like a forged postmark be likely to stand in the way. The surest safeguard against successful counterfeiting of postage stamps (International or otherwise) is provided by the vast army of lynx-eyed philatelists, scattered over the surface of the globe and ever watchful for the slightest deviation in the objects of their study and desire.

In the firm belief therefore that the idea of an International stamp is something more than a Utopian dream we respectfully commend it to the mature consideration of the Powers that Be.—Stamp Collecting.

I HAVE KEPT THE FAITH

Charlie Severn at rest

Even the skies shed tears as all that was mortal of our editor left its former home on Loyola Ave., Chicago, for its final resting place in Rose Hill Cemetery. No longer will Charlie Severn speak to us through the columns of this paper, but he will continue to be our inspiration so long as we have mind and memory. It is possible that there may be some who will call these lines a preachment. True, they may be, but they will pay tribute to a beautiful personality.

"So live that when thy summons come"

In these closing lines of Thanatopsis, the poet gives us a ringing challenge to play the part of the man, to do something and be something, to make the life of the unfortunate bearable, to relieve want and radiate kindness. No one ever went to Charles Severn with a hard luck story, but that he gave him something in addition to an attentive ear. In fact, no one will ever know the extent of his benefactions, and none know better than his business associates his unfailing courtesy and fairness.

"Why, Oh Why?"

Such is the cry of anguish sent up by broken hearts. We think of the sundered family ties, the widow left to carry on alone, and conscious of her weakness, a son of 13, just entering in upon young manhood, and so needy of the companionship of "Dad." Quite naturally there surges up in the human breast, "Why, oh why?" How shall one meet such an occasion? There is only one way and that by seeking strength outside of self. We may not go to the same place, and we may not go in the same way, but there are reserves of strength that one can tap in an emergency such as this.

What have I in my closet?

Everyone has a closet for reserve power. It may be full and it may be empty. It all depends upon our own temperament and inclination. When one is facing the eternal verities of life and death, and we tap the resources of the closet shall we find upon the shelves the thing that we need? Will courage be there, or faith, or comfort in prayer, or belief in the hereafter, or remembrance of the goodness of God—if so, we shall not be afraid. No, this is not a sermon, it is a little homily that comes to mind as one thinks of those who mourn and the future seems dark and dismal.

Requiescat in pace

So final public honors were paid the former editor of the WEEKLY, but his name and his service to those who knew him, will be so enshrined in their memory that they will never cease to honor him. Even as he lived in simplicity, so was he laid away. There was no funeral eulogy —he would not have wished it. There was, however, a great outpouring of friends gathered in honor of one whom they loved. If the wide reaches of our mailing list could have responded no church edifice in Chicago would have held the multitude.

WILLARD O. WYLIE.

MR. SEVERN'S ACTIVITIES

It was in 1894 that Mr. Severn first became associated with the WEEKLY. At that time the paper was being published at St. Louis under the editorial management of I. A. Mekeel, who was keen to note the possibilities in the young Chicago philatelist. After serving as Chicago correspondent, he was invited to take the editorship of the WEEKLY, where he has since served with great ability.

With Mr. Severn's interest in philately it was a natural thing for him to become associated in stamp clubs and organizations of various kinds. He became active in the Chicago Philatelic Society, the Society of Philatelic Americans, the American Philatelic Society, the Royal Philatelic Society of London, and others too numerous to mention. To cap his activities and in recognition of his service to philately, he was elected to membership in the world Roll of Distinguished Philatelists.

Mr. Severn was quite active in politics, taking a keen interest in the success of the Republican party and its candidates. He had served as chairman of local organizations, and had frequently been solicited to accept nominations for various offices, but refrained from doing so.

TRIBUTES OF RESPECT

I have just heard the dreadful news of the death of dear old Charlie Severn. I cannot tell you how grieved I am. We all loved him, and a true gentleman has passed on to his reward. The loss will be very great. My sympathy to you all.

CHARLES J. PHILLIPS.

It was indeed a great shock to me to hear of the death of our dear old friend Charles E. Severn, whom I have known for more than thirty years, and held in highest esteem. The WEEKLY and the American Philatelic Society have suffered an irreparable loss. His great ability as a writer and a speaker has enabled him to render great and constant service to Philately as scarcely another has been privileged to do. We will surely miss him for a long time to come and mourn his passing as one of our truest friends.

ITEMS—

"IT would be a good idea for the European auctioneers to circulate their huge catalogues in this country in time for bids to be sent in," says Mr. Harold D. Anderson. "On several occasions catalogues have been received too late to allow of bids to be sent." Furthermore some of the mailing lists of the foreign dealers have obsolete addresses, with a consequent delay in the receipt of the catalogues.

O. S. HART, cashier of the Seiberling Rubber Co., Akron, O., has retired from active business. Mr. Hart has been in the rubber business for more than a quarter of a century. Philately is his hobby, and he was instrumental in organizing the Rubber City Stamp Club, which has just celebrated its 10th anniversary. Thanks to C. A. Bensinger, for clipping.

AN ACCIDENTAL ERROR

The price of 5c for Section 5 of the Marquette Sectional Album of the United Stamp Co. in their ad on page 788 last week's issue of course appeared ridiculous. The proofs were okayed as 75c, but the 7 dropped out of the form when put on the press and was not discovered until entire edition was printed.

(Coöperators will find their names listed each week. If a reply be necessary, enclose a self-addressed stamped envelope.)

The missing covers, intended for the first Argentina northbound flight, finally turned up, postmarked Nov. 29, and reaching here Dec. 12. Nice enough as flown covers, but they surely missed the first trip, all right.The Mexican Aviation Week covers came through in a hurry. Franked with the new stamps, and bearing the special cachet in violet, they make a fine addition to the collection. First day was Dec. 10. According to advance information, but 5,000 of the 40c stamps were to be issued, but plenty of the 20c. I ordered some of each from the Mexico City P. M., but received only the 20c. However, two of my covers were sent registered with the 40c stamp paying the postage, so I probably have my share.A clipping from Mexico City dated Nov. 9 tells of the involved route taken by air mail from Mexico to Quintana Roo. Letters are routed via Brownsville, San Antonio, New Orleans, Atlanta, Miami, Havana, and Belize, and from there by boat to the Mexican coast. I'd surely like a registered first tripper, showing all the transit postmarks!

Effective Dec. 28, the 2 P. M. trip south, and the 10 A. Worth; New York, via Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Columbus and Cincinnati to St. Louis. Don't send covers yet, however.Rockford, Ill., is pretty definitely scheduled for route 9 very soon. If your local postmaster hasn't received any notice yet in the Postal Bulletin, the Chamber of Commerce will doubtless hold covers for you. Same thing goes for Charlotte, N. C., on the authority of Pitcairn Aviation, Inc., contractors for CAM 19.

Tentative announcement, also, is made of service from Mexico City to Acapulco, to start about the first of the year. Nothing definite, but may be worth the chance. Any of you folks on the coast know anything more about it?

Roderic S. Leland tells me that the P. M. at Friedrichshafen, Germany, has notified him that the Graf Zeppelin has been put up for the winter, and will make no more flights till spring.Anna M. Schafer sends a clipping with the first detailed report of plans for the spring polar trip of the Graf. First flight to Tromso, Norway, base. Thence trial flight to Spitzbergen. Third, a flight skirting Spitzbergen, across the Arctic Ocean between Greenland and the pole to Beaufort Sea, thence across Alaska to Fairbanks, where a mast and mooring equipment will be ready. Next flight over the great unexplored area between Alaska and the pole, returning to Alaska. Final flight will be the return to Tromso, via Northern Land and Franz Josef Land. If mail is carried—and it doubtless will be—covers from this trip will rival in interest anything we have had thus far. Can any of our readers in Norway give any of the tentative details of the possibilities from that quarter?

The Marseilles-Beirut air service is soon to be extended via Baghdad to French Indo-China. Don't send covers unless you have a correspondent, as the French postal officials are usually reluctant to handle mail for collectors on these flights.A new Southwest Africa service is soon to be inaugurated between Windhoek and Walvis Bay.A recent non-stop trial air mail carrying flight was made by the Luft Hansa from Berlin to Constantinople and return. Distance each way was covered in a bit over 10 hours!

Johnny's Diary

July 16.—We got even with a dealer today who cheated us a lot of times before we knew what stamps were worth. The 7c Navy in that collection had a hole in the middle, and was blotted there, too, so we put a 3c under it and I took Pop's razor and cut out a piece to fit the hole, and we put it in and got it nice and smooth, and then we put it in a butcher book with some other U. S. and pasted them down flat so he couldn't see the backs, and sold them to him for $4.50. We was tickled to death when he didn't catch the 7c. Now we are even with him. We paid the $2.50 we owed on the bycicle deal and have 2 dollars left for another deal. We're goin' to buy this town before we grow up, if we can just keep on.

July 17.—Gee, neither of us got a stamp all day. Willy was goin' to trade Hoxie Clark a half penny Malta for a first issue Gibraltar, when a feller Willy didn't know, came along and told Hoxie don't you do it. Willy wants me to help lick the kid, but I don't see that he did anything to me. Still, it's mean to go back on a pard and I guess I'll help if he needs it.

July 18.—That 2 dollars came in fine today. Jim Williams is going away for a week and came over and said he'd give us our pick of 20 stamps from his book for 15c each. We beat him down to 20 for $2.50, and then soaked him. We got 3 New Zealand revenues used for postage, and 2 Victorias, a 1 shilling Cape, and some old Canada. We divided even on them, and mine list at $6.80. I borrowed half a dollar from Pop to finish paying him for them.

July 19.—Willy got a couple of good ones today, but I didn't get a thing. I guess it's just as well for I wanted a chance to stick in my new ones and fix up things. I took that first set of Samoa out of the book. That dealer out west says they are all right, but I'd rather collect something that ain't so hard to prove. They are pretty and I'll trade 'em off.

July 20.—We went way over to the other side of town today and tackled every kid we met about stamps. Had a scrap with 2 fellers that said we were fresh, and my nose is right sore, but you bet they both feel like funerals. We managed to find some collectors, and did a good deal of trading. I found a 7c grilled in one feller's book and traded him that set of Samoa for it when he said he didn't think much of grills. We struck one feller who said what good was old stamps. After we talked to him he said he would look at his grandmother's stuff and we could buy any stamps he found.

The Manufacture of Stamps

By BERTRAM W. H. POOLE.

No. 3—Lithography

We have now described the two chief methods of engraving by means of which (1) most of the earliest stamps were produced and (2) most of the modern stamps are printed. The main characteristic of the former is that the lines of the design are cut into the plate (in recess), while in the latter the lines of the design are in relief. We now have to consider another important method that has been fairly extensively used in postage stamp production—that of lithography, or printing from the flat and polished surface of a special kind of limestone. Where this method is used the lines of the design are neither in recess nor relief but are quite level with the printing surface of the limestone so that the "flat" appearance generally ascribed to lithographed stamps is perfectly correct.

The fundamental basis of lithography is the well known scientific fact that grease will not combine with water and the inks used in drawing or transferring a design or for printing are all of a fatty nature.

The limestone used in lithography has to be close grained and free from chalk and other impurities and the better sorts all come from German quarries. To lose as little as possible of the valuable surface suitable for printing, this limestone is quarried with saws. Before leaving the quarries the stones are roughly finished and on reaching the lithographic establishment each stone is ground and polished, great care being exercised that the undersurface is exactly parallel with the printing surface. If the botom surface were left uneven the stone would be liable to crack or break under the pressure applied during the process of printing.

When the stone is ready the design may be drawn direct (in which event it has to be drawn in reverse) or it may be drawn on a specially prepared paper from which it is transferred to the surface of the stone. The latter is the method generally used so far as the production of postage stamps is concerned.

The drawing is made with a special ink in which wax and tallow (both greasy and fatty substances) are important constituents. When ready for transferring, the paper is wetted and laid face downward on the surface of the stone and under pressure the drawing is transferred from the paper to the stone.

A sheet of postage stamps consists of a number of identical copies of the same design so that, as a rule, the impressions are not transferred one at a time—a process at once tedious and presenting difficulties in the way of correct alignment—but in strips or groups usually consisting of from four to ten copies. The original design is transferred to the special paper as many times as are necessary to make up the desired group and this group is re-transferred to the stone as many times as are required. The best and most careful work is done when an engraved die is used for reproducing the design. This is inked with the special greasy composition, impressions taken on the transfer paper, and these are then transferred to the stone. Or an impression from an entire engraved plate may be transferred to a stone in the same manner. But whichever of these several methods is employed, the results are the same—i.e., a design is transferred to a stone with a greasy ink which sinks into the pores of the stone and is perfectly level with its surface. The ink would spread and spoil the design but for the fact that the stone is at once covered with a dilute gummy solution which fills the pores of the surface untouched by the ink. The superfluous gum is washed off after the amount necessary for stopping the pores has dried in.

Solomon's Glory

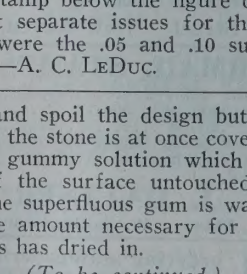
By EVERETT KLAAS.

King Solomon ruled in all his glory
O'er the Hebrew race and so the story
How Balkis, Queen of Sheba, came
To meet this king of world wide tame;
She brought with her much spice and treasure,
Which gave to Solomon keenest pleasure,
But his joy must needs have reached perfection
Had she brought some stamps for his collection.

If the Queen to gain his favor had craved
She should have brought some stamps she'd saved:
Perforates and imperfs, both used and mints,
And blocks of Sheba overprints,
Also a stamp with surcharge inverted,
Then for his favor she need not have flirted;
Instead of dining on wines and nectars,
They'd have traded stamps like other collectors.

Dieu et Mon Droit

This motto appears on the scroll below the shield on the centre of certain of the stamps of Antigua. It forms part of the British Royal coat-of-arms, and is said to have been first used by Richard



Cœur de Lion, in whose time the Royal Arms consisted only of the three lions now shown in the first quarter of the shield. The motto is in French and means "God and my Right."

Comoro Islands

The Comoro Islands consist of a group of four large and a number of smaller islands. They belong to France, and lie to the north of the Mozambique channel between the east coast of Africa and the northwest coast of Madagascar. The four large islands are Great Comoro, Johanna (Anjouan), Mohilla (Moheli), and Mayotte. They have a total area of 760 square miles. They are mountainous and are of volcanic origin. The highest mountain on Great Comoro is still an active volcano. The soil is fertile and produces coffee, cotton, sugar, vanilla, cloves and coconuts. Jewelry, cutlery and coarse clothes are manufactured to some extent. The island of Mayotte was ceded to France in 1842, and a protectorate extended over the remaining ones in 1886. The group is ruled by native sultans who are under the supervision of a French governor.

All of these islands are now a part of the colony of Madagascar, and dependencies, and use the same stamps as in the large island of Madagascar. However, such has not always been the case. Separate stamps for Anjouan were issued in 1892, for Grand Comoro in 1897, for Mayotte in 1892, and for Moheli in 1906. In each case, the stamps were the regular French colonial stamps of the period—the Peace and Commerce type—with the name of each colony inserted at the base of the stamp below the figure of value. The last separate issues for these four islands were the .05 and .10 surcharges of 1912.—A. C. LEDUC.

INDIAN GODS ON POSTAGE STAMPS

By S. V. GULVADI, B.A., L.T.

Gods are immortal—the Sanskrit word for god, amara, means immortal, deathless. But advanced thought, even centuries before the advent of modern science, had begun to ignore, if not exactly to question, their existence—even in this land of gods galore great thinkers were not wanting who said that even if gods existed their power or influence for good or ill on human life was literally nil. And modern rationalism, aided by modern science, has cast them into the melting-pot—the immortals have passed away, unwept, unhonoured, and unsung. But if they have passed away, not so their memory. Some of them have had philatelic immortality bestowed upon them, and it is the purpose of this short paper to draw attention to these.

Taking them in the order in which they appear in that prince of stamp catalogues, the Gibbons Catalogue, first comes Ganesha, the elephant-headed god who figures in the stamps of the Duttia State. Ganesha, or Ganapati, is the eldest son of Mahadeva or Shiva, the chief of the Hindu trinity. For having once seriously angered his father his head was pinched off by the incensed parent; but on the mother Parvati begging with tears that he might be revived, Mahadeva said, "Cut off the head of him who is found sleeping with his head to the north, be he man or beast, and place the head on this body, and the boy shall come back to life and have that head ever after." An elephant was found sleeping in that posture, and thus it came about that Ganesha became elephant-headed. The name literally means lord of the ganas or powers of evil, whom he was appointed to hold in check. At every Hindu ceremony he is first invoked and prayed to that he may see to it that no evil spirit interferes and mars the good that is sought. Homage is rendered first to him before any other god, and it is in the fitness of things that he happens to be the first among the Hindu gods appearing in the Gibbons Catalogue! He is generally represented squatting, with his favourite carrier, the mouse, by his side (though in the Duttia stamps the mouse is non est), holding in one of his four hands (all the chief gods are four-armed, though only two-footed) a piece of one of his tusks which he had intended to hurl at Chandra or the moon-god for having laughed at his queer appearance but desisted at the humble entreaty of the offending god, who made due amende honorable.

Next in order comes Surya, the sun-god, who rides in his seven-steed chariot in the stamps of the Jaipur State. The Jaipur princes are suryavamshis, tracing their descent from the sun-god; it is therefore appropriate that the figure of their traditional ancestor should adorn the stamps of the State. Surya in his chariot is said to be driving round and round the mountain of Meru (not identified), thereby causing day and night. In the summer heat the steeds go slow, hence the days are longer; in the cool nights they make up by galloping faster! (Perhaps in winter the extreme cold of the midnight numbs their feet and they rest awhile, thus lengthening the night.) The seven steeds apparently represent the seven colours of the rainbow. The sun, as a flaming orb, also adorns the centres of the first stamps of Jammu and Kashmir (Types 1 to 3), the princes of Jammu also being suryavamshis, claiming to be descendants of the sun-god. The orb, reduced in size, was later shifted to the top (Types 4 to 11); still later four orbs, much smaller and almost starlike, were placed in the four corners of the low denominations (Types 12 to 15 and 18), and larger ones were placed in the corners of the higher denominations (Types

Did you ever have difficulty in locating the country to which a certain stamp belongs because you couldn't read the foreign language on the stamp or because it was so confusingly like several other countries that you didn't stumble onto the right one, or because the occupational surcharge placed it in another country and you didn't just recall which? Sure you have! Every collector who has sorted a bunch of stamps has wasted five minutes here, thirty minutes there, and has become exasperated and put it away to ask a friend where it went, or to wait until he stumbled across it at some future date.

The Easy Index of Stamps will give you immediate reference from whatever appears on the face of the stamp to the country to which it belongs. If your time is worth anything at all, this index will save you its price in time hundreds of times over.

ATLAS STAMP CO. (P. C. Smith) LEXINGTON, MASS.

Provisional Envelopes

Back in 1925, the postal rate on certain classes of mail matter was increased from 1 cent to 1½ cent, which necessitated the overprinting of the 1-cent green envelopes available at the post-offices throughout the country. Most of the central accounting offices received special dies, which were placed in the cancelling machine and used to overprint the envelopes. In the haste of getting out these new varieties to comply with the new law, many of the offices surcharged all of the loose ends found here and there, resulting in small quantities of certain varieties being issued. Most of these have now been found, are properly catalogued and are recognized by those interested in such varieties.

While this overprinting was going on, I was fortunate in securing certain surcharged envelopes, which were put out at prices considered perfectly fair and justified for the small number existing. In the case of several varieties, I noted that supplies were coming from here and there and was led to believe that certain issues were not as scarce as I had thought. It now turns out that practically all of these later supplies are pronounced by envelope experts to be counterfeits. They were unknowingly sold by many responsible dealers and are now reposing in some of our best collections. If you are the owner of such envelopes, it will be to your advantage to submit them to the A.P.S. Expert Committee or to the A.P.S. counterfeit detector for opinion.

As in the case with all stamps that I offer, they have my full guarantee and I am fortunate in being able to offer these very rare envelopes from the original find at prices which are guaranteed to be fair when the quantity issued is considered. Every one of these envelopes will bear my printed guarantee on the back.

The above prices include the entire envelope in fine unused condition.

If you are looking for any of the other surcharged envelopes, I am likely to have them on hand, as I have just purchased an unusually fine collection, in which the owner had both cut square and entire copies of practically all of the 1½-cent and 2-cent overprints.

A magnificent copy of the 1916 3-cent carmine error on amber, of which less than fifty are known, is available at $50.00. This is, no doubt, the most desirable twentieth century United States envelope, for it is not an error of a clerk overprinting, but is an error made by the great manufacturing company, which has been turning out envelopes for years with very few mistakes.

16 and 17). In Type 19 the orbs are like those in the last, but the stamps of Type 19 were never in use.

Next comes Mahadeva, whose figure forms the central design of the current stamps of Nepal (Type 3). Mahadeva is, as said above, the chief of the Hindu trinity of Brahma, Vishnu, and Mahadeva. The name literally means the great god—he is the god of gods:

"Whom all three worlds obey,
To Him do always pray."

He is generally represented, as in the Nepal stamps, sitting in deep meditation on Mount Kailas (Everest) among the peaks of the Himalayas (=snow-abodes, being ever snow-clad). In one hand he holds his dreaded trident, and in another an antelope. He is not a hunter, neither an antelope-fancier; this antelope has an interesting history. Brahma, as the creator-god, was the father of Saraswati, whom he afterwards married. Mahadeva upbraided him for this incestuous alliance and as a punishment pinched off one of his five heads (the top one)—and since then Brahma has only four heads. The pinched head, however, stuck to Mahadeva's hand and could not be removed, try how he might! (The guilt of murder cannot be washed off—cf., Lady Macbeth washing her hands.) What can't be cured must be endured—and so Mahadeva by his will-power changed the shape of the gruesome thing, and it became an antelope! Round his neck is Mahashesha, or the great cobra, whose spread hood is seen beside his right ear; and in his shikha, or knotted tuft of hair, is Ganga, the goddess from whose mouth proceeds the sacred stream of the Ganges, which curiously enough is shown in the stamp as flowing up and across the mountains! Why are Ganga and Mahashesha there? Well, at the churning of the ocean by the gods and titans to extract amrita, or the immortality-and-youth-giving nectar, when one of the early products, halahala, or poison of poisons, appeared, none could bear its presence, for even from a distance it burnt into the bodies of the gods and titans assembled; Mahadeva, who always had to find a way out whenever the gods were in a quandary, offered to swallow the poison—and swallow he did, but retained it in his throat, not allowing it to go down further; and to cool his burning throat he twined round his neck the great cobra, and also placed in his shikha the goddess Ganga so that the ice-cold head-waters of the stream might have further cooling effect.

These are the only Hindu gods to be seen in the stamps of Indian States. The French, however, have honoured another, viz. Brahma, the four-headed creator-god. He appears in the central design of the French Indian stamps of 1914, and later dates, seated on a swan; the swan, however, is not his proper vahana, or carrier, but that of his wife Saraswati, and to a Hindu it looks incongruous to see Brahma seated on a swan. Three of his heads are seen in the stamps; the fourth is occulted, being dorsal. It was reserved for a European (and reputedly Christian) nation to immortalise a Hindu god whom no Hindu State had cared thus to honour!

The remaining member of the Hindu trinity, Vishnu, who is most popular in his incarnations of Rama and Krishna, has not yet been chosen for this philatelic honour. But he may yet be! —Gibbons' Stamp Monthly.

Alvin Krause of Milwaukee, whose Wisconsin collection is the peer of them all, and deservedly so, sends in some unusual items: Madison U-2, ½c double, one normal, one inverted; Delavan, U-1, old $1 double, one normal, one inverted; Appleton U-12. 20c double, one up, one down; Racine U-1, 50c double, one up, one down; Green Bay U-5, 10c normal double; Marshfield U-3, 1c normal double. Notice that these are all electro doubles, and all from Wisconsin. Now you begin to see why his specialized Wisconsin collection is so widely recognized as the best. To top it off he submits Jersey City U-1, old 8c perf. 10, double, one normal, one inverted, and St. Louis type III, 2c 1912, inverted double.

C. C. Fisher sends in some Tennessee items new to me: Madison, U-82; Martin, U-75; both new towns. Columbia is another new Tennessee town, using the U-75 handstamp. Clarksville is still another one, its type is U-73.

Other new ones are: Wilmette, Ill. U-75; Harvey, Iowa, U-82; Dover, Delaware, U-82; Fitchburg, Mass., see appended cut for this town's striking new type. This is the first time I have seen this type, but there is another one very much like it, but smaller caps, now in use at Akron, Ohio, and West New York, N. J. At first I thought this is a typeset production, but now it appears to be a brand new venture in electro making. Certainly it is welcome, it is to be hoped that many cities will receive samples of these two new types.

A correspondent asks if stamps precancelled in any color but the regulation black ink have more value. If they are electro productions, yes, if handstamp productions, not ordinarily, the various colored ink pads are so near the clerk's hands when he precancels, that almost any color may be used. But where the overprint is printed, the chances are very much against such a thing's happening, to say nothing of the Department's rulings against anything but regulation black. However, once in a while an office turns out one or more colored ink productions. Bangor, Maine, used red ink on five values of the current set a few years ago, but the practice was very quickly stopped. Danvers, Mass., did the same on two or three. Seattle recently turned out the 1c compound and the 12c in a decidedly bluish shade. These colored ink electros are worth hunting for. About the only city I can think of offhand that has used colored inks to any extent is South Manchester, Conn. I don't know if they have a dispensation or a deaf ear for departmental rulings, but purple and green inks have been used to a considerable extent there. The former color is the commoner, both are very striking. In a way it is too bad that colored inks are not allowed, in another way it is a good thing for the hobby.

SPECIALISM OR GENERALISM

By Fred. J. Melville.

"The world is my parish," quoth the eminent John Wesley, and the most distinguished philatelists have been those who, instead of restricting themselves to the stamps of a particular country took the whole world into their sphere of philatelic interest.

It is, however, a common plaint with the philatelist of today that it is impossible to secure a complete set of the postage stamps of the world. The impossibility of the ideal or absolutely complete collection is certain, and on this account many have restricted themselves to the accumulation and study of the stamps of a particular country or group of countries. This form of collecting is termed "specialism" in contrast to the other school of collecting, "generalism," in which are comprised the stamps of all countries.

Unhappily for the social element at the meetings of philatelic societies, specialism has dwindled the attendances and dulled the liveliness that once was a feature at these assemblies. The members who attend are mostly specialists having little or no interest outside their own limited sphere. They are in fact ill roasted eggs "all on the one side." The learned lecturer who takes three-quarters of an hour to read a purely technical paper on the stamps of the first issues of Jhalawar cannot hope to succeed in entertaining the enthusiasts who know no interest outside the stamps of the Dominican Republic or perhaps Bangkok.

To compile a really fine specialised collection of the stamps of one country requires far more philatelic knowledge than to form an interesting and much larger general collection. The specialist, by taking into account the most minute points of difference in his specimens, provides for himself a task as difficult, if not more so, than that of the general collector. Many a would-be specialist has found the long, wearisome hunt for the slightest variations in types and perforations too heavy a tax upon his energies and his purse. He is glad to return to the wider field of generalism as he acknowledges with Mandrake, "This glass is too big, take it away, I'll drink out of the bottle."

The chief objection to the general collector is that he almost necessarily becomes a smatterer, knowing a little of everything yet learned in nothing. As a pastime pure and simple, however, the general collector has the advantage over the specialist in that he may roam whither he will in his philatelic studies and may "Let observation with extensive view Survey mankind from China to Peru."

The collector is often in doubt as to which is the better of these two schools of philatelic study. He has perhaps been a "generalist" for some time, and begins to think he should specialise. But there are so many countries to select from that it is difficult to decide upon one. In this matter no advice can be given; each collector must determine for himself which country he thinks possesses the greatest fascination or interest for him, and act accordingly. If he takes no interest in any particular country then he may as well give up the idea of specialising in the stamps of one nation. Possibly the remarks of Socrates on the selection of a wife would be applicable to the would-be specialist without a notion of any particular country to choose for specialism. "Whether he should choose one or not, he would repent it."

For the beginner in stamp collecting, however, there is but one course to pursue. Everyone should start with a general collection. To become a successful philatelist this is absolutely necessary. The early stages of general collecting form the apprenticeship through which every collector must go if he wishes to become a master craftsman. In the making of the general collection he will acquire very considerable knowledge of the world's stamps, which will stand him in excellent stead when he begins to specialise. Without this groundwork the beginner who launches straightway into specialism will encounter numerous obstacles with which he will be quite unable to cope. After struggling with them for a few weeks or perhaps months, he will lay aside the stamp album and will ever afterwards regard collecting as an inexplicable and inane pastime.

Experience has, however, shown that the one who forms a small general collection is better fitted to make a successful specialist. Such philatelists are the mainstay of the popularity of the hobby, for with them "to be once a collector is to be always a collector."

Used or Unused Stamps? A matter of considerable importance in starting a collection is to decide whether it shall contain used or unused postage stamps or both. Some collectors take only one kind, while others take every stamp that they can get whether used or unused.

As a rule unused stamps are better than used ones in point of value. In only a few cases can unused stamps be procured from dealers at a less sum than used specimens cost. Then the unused stamp is the more perfect for studying the type, the paper, perforation, and the gum. To many the unused stamp appeals because it is not likely to be worth less than its face value and it looks better in the album than the used specimen. Neither of these considerations, however, need carry any weight with the real student of stamps.

Used stamps are, on the whole, much cheaper than unused ones, and many collectors pin their faith to them on account of their having actually done duty through the post. If all stamp collectors had accepted only stamps that had been passed through the post, there would be no speculative or unnecessary commemorative issues created solely for making profit on their sale to collectors. The collector of used stamps should always see that he selects lightly, though clearly, postmarked copies. Some philatelists like to have only stamps on which they can plainly distinguish the postmark, and certainly if the postmark is to be considered part of the used stamp the more perfectly defined it is the better. A smudgy obliteration can have no interest for anyone.

The Expense of Philately. The point is constantly being raised that stamp collecting is a hobby that entails great expense. This very belief has precluded thousands from the knowledge of the great joys of the philatelist in the pursuit of his pastime. Nothing can be more unjust to the hobby, or more distant from the truth. It is true that no one without the wealth of a Carnegie or a Vanderbilt or a Ferrary can attain to anything approaching perfect completeness in a collection of the postage stamps of the world. But the philatelist's pleasure is gained in the determined effort to get together the best and most representative collection that he can in his especial and individual circumstances. The infinity of stamp collecting is its greatest advantage over many another hobby.

The primary object in collecting anything is to secure a complete set of the articles in question. In the case of stamps this is impossible. It is an aim which no philatelist can reach absolutely. But from the endeavour to approach it he can derive incalculable pleasure. The expense of the hobby can therefore be governed by the circumstances of the collector. A small general album is to its humble owner as fascinating as an accumulation of great rarity is to the millionaire collector, who has a secretary to amass his specimens and to arrange them when procured.

The most interesting stamps are the stamps of no great pretentions to rarity or exclusiveness. The only interest attaching to great rarities is that there is perhaps only a single specimen known, and that therefore only one man (he who can afford to pay the highest price) may enjoy the privilege of possessing it. This does not affect the universal pleasure that may be derived from stamps. The fact that one man alone possesses a particular stamp does not preclude the ordinary collector from enjoying the charms of the hobby, which consist not in the exclusive possession of a certain stamp, but in the bringing together of a number, more or less great, of specimens to form a representative collection of the world's postage stamps. The man who spends large sums of money on getting together simply a big collection may not be so true a philatelist as he who, with less means, forms a carefully selected and judiciously arranged one. Indeed, the case of the philatelist is analogous to that of the cook as described by the steward of Molière's miser: "There is no difficulty," said he, "in giving a fine dinner with plenty of money. The really great cook is he who can set out a banquet with no money at all."

The Season for Philately. Stamp collecting is essentially an indoor pastime for the great majority of its disciples. True, there are some enthusiasts who, having their time in their own hands, devote much of that time to travels abroad in search of "fresh fields and pastures new," where they can discover the gems and novelties of the philatelic world. But to stamp collectors generally it is that the chief delight in the album of stampic treasures is to be found. Philately's great season is winter, when the brilliance of the summer's sun no longer charms one out from his domestic shell, when the photographer can no more secure good pictures, and the motorist's iron steed is hibernating in the remoteness of a cellar.

"When dark December glooms the day

But although the active work of the stamp collector is chiefly performed during the winter months, the enthusiast cannot allow himself to be entirely dead to his hobby during the months of summer. The garden amateur's greatest joy is doubtless to see the results of his labour in the time of sunshine; but his hobby keeps him busy for months before the effects of his efforts become apparent. It is so even with the philatelist.

Naturally enough, salable stamps do not procure such high prices in the summer time as they do when in winter thousands of eager eyes are constantly scanning auction catalogues, bargain lists, and club sheets in search of their particular requirements. Thus it happens that the collector who purchases specimens judiciously in the "close season" adds to his collection at a cost much less than the collector who buries his album in summer and brings it out again only when poularity and enthusiasm are both tending to raise prices to their highest point.

The collector who decides to make stamp collecting his winter hobby should, therefore, not scorn bargains that may crop up during the season that he devotes to any outdoor sport. He need not give his albums any attention whatever, but, if he procures stamps cheaply during summer, his pleasure will be heightened in the winter when he comes to arrange his summer acquisitions in his albums.—A B C of Stamp Collecting.

WHY WIVES GROAN

By ELLIS PARKER BUTLER.
Author of "Pigs is Pigs"

I have known women who collected postage stamps, and who were enthusiastic about it, but I have always thought they were like bearded ladies or crowing hens. They found themselves with an urge for collecting stamps, and they could not resist the urge, so they collected stamps, but undoubtedly their female friends thought there must be something queer about them. Women are not natural stamp collectors, as men are.

On the other hand, I believe, almost no wives can think with pleasure of their husbands' stamp collections. It seems to me that most wives hate their husbands' stamp collections and would be glad to have them burned or stolen. This is rather queer, when you come to think of it. Wives often take real pride and pleasure in their husbands' collections of old furniture, oil paintings and Chinese jade. Yet, if they do not actually groan out loud when they see their husbands take up a postage stamp catalogue, they do groan mentally. Why is it that wives detest their husbands' stamp collecting fads?

I have given this considerable thought, because I am like a great many men and do not like to do anything that makes my wife groan, even mentally. On the other hand, I have a stamp-collecting mania that is so strong, and which gives me so much pleasure and satisfaction, that I cannot give it up. Why do so many men—even important men, and strong, wholesome men—have this actual mania for collecting postage stamps, and keep at it even when they are aware that it makes their wives a little unhappy, if not very unhappy?

An answer to this seems to be nestled in the way in which I began collecting stamps the second time over twenty years ago, never to stop again. I had collected stamps when I was a boy, in the usual boyish way, buying from one-cent approval sheets. Presently I got into High School, left High School to go to work, wanted to be an author, worked hard all day and wrote at night. When I was 27 I came to New York, and the next year I was married. I began the publication of a trade magazine with a friend, and in 1906, when I was 36, I had my first really successful story published as a book, which brought me what was, for me, quite a little money.

For 26 years, then, I had been too busy to play much. When I was 10 years old, and collecting stamps, I never had enough money to buy what stamps I needed to complete even one set, let alone one country. This left me with an incompleted desire, which hung about somewhere in the back of my mind, I suppose. I had never had an opportunity to play with stamps as completely as I desired.

When my book was published and I saw I could make a good enough living by writing — and had a good sum of money in hand—I took my wife and little daughter and went to Paris. We spent seven months there, and my small daughter was put in a kindergarten near by where we had an apartment. She was so small that one or another of us always took her to school and went for her, a short walk up Boulevard Raspail. It rained every day. One day, walking home down the Boulevard Raspail with my daughter, I saw a postage stamp on the walk. The rain had loosened it from the envelope, and the stamp lay face down. I stooped and picked it up, and it was a Swiss stamp. I put it in my memorandum book, and put the book in my pocket, and from that moment I was a postage stamp collector again.

My wife and I were collecting cameos in Paris, and she was even more enthusiastic about cameos than I was. She is still interested in them. But I know she does not care at all for my postage stamps, and I often think she hates them. In this she is like all other wives, and I do not blame her or them—but I keep on collecting. What is the answer to all this?

The answer is that all men, no matter how sedate and mature and grandfatherly they may become, have still a lot of boy in them. They reach a time when they have a little leisure and up from the hidden places comes the boyishness—and a good thing, too! It keeps them young to have something boyish to play with. It is the same normal urge that sets the oldest dog leaping now and then. But a girl was never a boy. Girls, even the little tots, have in them a seed of nature that is to find its finest development in motherhood. The future of the girl is to be a mother, and all her natural instincts are toward motherhood. While the boy plays with his stamps the girl plays with dolls. The doll instinct in girls is the motherhood instinct; the collecting instinct in boys is the beginning of the "provider" instinct—getting things.

When the boy grows to manhood he thinks of things that gave him pleasure. He remembers how much he enjoyed stamps but how he was handicapped by lack of means and lack of knowledge, and he wants to try it again, and he finds it is as fascinating as ever. But his wife never did care for stamps—she was caring for dolls—and she is a little jealous of this return of her husband to a period when she did not know him. He is going back to a happiness that was before her day. She feels toward his stamps much as she would feel toward some girl her husband knew in the days before he knew her who is now his wife. I might almost say she feels exactly the same. It is a form of jealousy. Your wife is jealous of your stamps because they are something you liked before you met her. You are bringing an old sweetheart into your home.

I will let someone else tell you how to make all this nice and satisfactory and pleasing to your wife and mine. One way, I have sometimes thought, would be to give your wife twice as much money as you spend on stamps; when you spend a dollar on stamps, give your wife two dollars. That might work. It would tell her that you care at least twice as much for her as for the old stamp sweetheart. But I don't know. I doubt if anyone has yet found an entirely satisfactory way to bring an old sweetheart into the home. I am afraid we boys will just have to be boys, and play with our own playthings, and—now that we understand why our wives are not keen for our stamps—perhaps we need not worry about it. It is merely the difference between male human nature and female human nature. With the ladies it is "Once a woman, always a woman," and with us it is "Once a boy, always something of a boy."

This is all I have time to say now; my stamps are calling me.—New Southern Philatelist.

front of the cover, and French in a similar one on the back, or vice versa, and a few with the same language on both sides have been reported.The Edmonton-Aklavik covers have not arrived as I write this, but they have lots farther to go. Additional flights on this route are to take place approximately Jan. 21 and March 25th, and should certainly be collectible.Miss J. Sutherland, Stamp Vendor, Post Office, Halifax, Nova Scotia, and A. A. M. S. No. 926, says that she will be pleased to fill orders for current Canadian air or regular issues at face. She asks that remittance be sent by money order, and allowance made for return postage on self addressed envelope which should accompany your order.

Airport Dedications, Etc.

A number of you have asked what was the matter with the Western Aircraft Show. Covers in most cases arrived in pretty punk order, and surprise was generally expressed, as it had been announced that Mark Emsley, who so effectively handled the Cleveland Air Races, would have this in charge. I have just been reliably informed that at the last minute, the backers of the show changed their minds, or something, and left Mr. Emsley holding the bag in more ways than one. He did the very best he could with the covers sent to him at Cleveland, and spent a lot of his own money to try to get some satisfactory results. That they were not so is in spite of his efforts, not because of them.

Baltimore Aircraft Show covers apparently came in in good order. Good cachet, different colors daily, Dec. 9-14. Several have reported covers from Hollister, Calif., Dec. 7, either with a cachet, or simply typed, "Dedication of Turner Field, May 11, 1929." The unanimity of covers mailed on this date makes it look like a postponed affair, after covers had been marked for the original day but I'd like authentic information.Belleville, Kans., dedicated Dec. 14, neat cachet in red.Add Portland, Ore., to the list of cities from which we have Armistice Day cachets. About 250 mailed, magenta and blue compound.Portland also used a Dec. 17th cachet, but the letter telling me of it was evidently delayed, reaching here only a few days before that date. The Swan type cachet was used—applied by Multnomah Stamp Co. and Robt. W. Meinhoff, Jr.

Seem to have missed mentioning the dedication at Springfield, Ore., Oct. 6—264 mailed, cachet by P. M.Extension cities on CAM 9 celebrated an anniversary Dec. 15th, and we find cachets from Neenah, Menasha, and Appleton, all with a cachet worded for Appleton; colors blue or magenta.I am corrected on the New Haven, Conn., "dedication" written up a while ago. This was simply a ground breaking ceremony, though reported in many press articles as a dedication. The big event will follow some time in the future.Lawrence, Kans., also reported as a dedication, now turns out to have been a meet only, the dedication having been postponed till spring, when the C. of C. will apply a cachet.

Mark off Detroit Lakes, Minn., Bristol, Conn., Petersburg, Va., and Valdosta, Ga., as not planning anything special. Auburn, Me., C. of C. expresses regret for having pulled the wrong one in returning covers in the mail, but says they will announce it fully when they are ready to dedicate next year.Natchitoches, La., C. of C. will have a cachet for dedication within 2 or 3 months, and asks that covers be sent along at any time. Abilene, Tex., postpones till spring, but will hold covers.Elizabethtown, Tenn., returns covers, and asks that they be sent in after June 1st.Paris, Tex., C. of C. will have a dedicatory cachet quite soon. International Balloon Races go to Cleveland next year, in October.Sacramento, Cal., will dedicate in the spring. C. of C. hasn't decided on a cachet yet.

Selvy A. Davis tells me that the Goodyear blimp en route to winter quarters in Florida carried unofficially 7 letters from Alabama to Florida.Medford, Ore., 1st flight from the new airport, Oct. 2, mailed 15,000 letters! Formal dedication takes place next July 3, 4 and 5.Roswell, N. Mex., figures: Dec. 4—2,235; 5th—1,229. Mr. R. L. Eberhard states that a number of unaddressed covers were received for the special mailing, so if you have missed any of yours, you might write him.

OUR TWO GERMAN BOOKS

Seven of our publications including Goodwin's United States are out of stock, and the supply of two other books, "German States" and "Germany and Colonies" is nearly exhausted. These books were written by B. W. H. Poole, and are marvels of completeness and typographical beauty.

The book "German States" has 110 pages, while its companion has 74 pages. These two books can be obtained from our office at only 25c each—can you wonder at the paucity of book publishing propositions. Some of our readers will wake up when it is too late—better place your order today.

"VARIETIES"

A TALE OF THE RANGE IN WHICH THERE IS A TINGE OF PHILATELY

By EDWIN B. HILL, Ysleta, Tex.

Jimmy O'., true to promise, was at the ranche to greet us. He looked us over, and then the old whimsical smile broke over his face.

"Home again! Interesting trip, you had, I believe?"

Bill grinned as he hung one leg over the door.

"Jimmy O'., it sure was one grand trip. We rode an' rode, an' then we spent two-three days explorin' a cliff dwelling. Ole Timer, here, wouldn't let me write my name on the wall,—said, by heck! it wasn't any autygraft album,—that there wall there. So yuh see, Jimmy O'., posterity loses."

Jimmy O'. looked hard at Bill, who launched forth in a minute description of the ruins which put me to shame. Seemingly, he knew every last feature of the ruin,—describing the rooms accurately, even to the marks of the children's hands on the south wall. I said nothing. Jimmy O'. turned toward the bunkhouse.

"But how under heaven do you know all this, Bill?" I asked, round-eyed.

"Me? Oh, I made one trip up there to look it over and Hank's sister told me the rest. Here you're drug in again. Maybe the sheriff ambles along, later on, and asks questions. That's what I'd call an alibi,—you backin' up my play."

Considering the facts in the case, I saw I was in for some perjury.

Bill immediately got busy looking things over. I parked the flivver under the shed, where they had been parked for years—not this particular flivver, but numerous sisters that had come and gone the way of ancientry. Then I prowled, looking for the old landmarks. All was familiar, after the lapse of years, even to the ruins of a saddle in the mesquite tree. I looked it over. Then a voice aroused me.

"Yep. Same saddle. Ole Poncho 'lowed he'd outgrown it, an' he proceeded to hang it there fifteen-twenty year ago—mebbe thirty. 'Taint much of a saddle, an' it never was."

I turned. There was old Bill, unchanged through the years. I nearly fell upon him,—it was so good to see another familiar face. Twenty years! He had aged none, while I "showed signs," as he expressed it.

Then we talked and talked, renewing old memories of men on and off the range. Bill, it was disclosed, was a sort of man-of-all-work. He could ride when he pleased, aiding the cowboys in a pinch, but his chief job was keeping the equipment up and ready for use, and acting as a secondary cook. In this he was expert. The other duties were assumed.

When dinner was over, and the cookshack cleared of the debris, I ambled over. Old Bill was reading a book, his spectacles on the end of his nose, his face buried in the page. I eyed him curiously. Old Bill looked up. A grin spread over his face as he waved me to a vacant chair.

"This here book here, which same cost me a dollar and a dime, explains how you can be young at seventy. And this here one here"—old Bill fished up a companion from his war-bag—"tells yuh how to live to be a hundred. Heck! What's the use o' bein' a hundred er two when you've seen it all years afore? Now listen t' what yuh got t' drink:

Old Bill studied the page, then he read aloud:

"'Water is essential to life. Do not drink boiled water, it contains lime. Get water from a spring and drink at least two or three quarts a day.'"

"Now what d'ye think o' that? Fine an' grande! But listen to this one."

Here Bill swapped books, thumbed the pages, and began:

"'Water is necessary to life. Do not drink spring water unless it has been boiled', 'et cetery an' so on. Now what d'yuh think o' that? An' yuh mustn't not eat sugar er drink coffee er cooked things er meat—'cept chicken. Think o' that! Chicken! An' biled water—'specially when ye're out on the range an' you've lost yer matches—an' the calves is bawlin' an' their ma's is shore on the peck—an' the dust chokes yuh. An' do yuh pause to bile water,—right then when yuh got a thirst somethin' fierce? Yuh do not! Yuh thank Gawd yuh got a canteen! An' if yuh meet up with one o' them drug-store cowboys strayed from off a dude ranche, an' near dyin' o' thirst, havin' not tied his horse t' th' groun', do yuh stop t' bile water? No, sir! Yuh feed it to him slow an' small. No time t' waste a-bilin'!"

Old Bill chuckled.

"I sure get a fine kick out o' these here discards here,—an' the boys joke about it an' kid me an' think I take it serious. Me? I'm seventy years young, a chap says what rode the range with me three-four months. He wasn't much of a cowboy, an' he knew it. But I tell yuh what—he sure had got a gran' c'lection! It's over in the bunk-house now. He's off somewheres—six-seven day's ride—comes in when he feels the hunch. Kind-a belongs three-four ranches."

As I started toward the bunk-house, Bill called after me:

I read the titles of the volumes on the lower shelves. There was of course "The Virginian"—worn nearly round from much reading; "Arizona Nights," another classic of the range; Will James's books, O. Henry, and perhaps two-score more in various conditions of decrepitude. Old Bill had worked over them and patched their raggedness into semblance of originality. He had built a case for them out of Arbuckle coffee boxes, the lettering showing through the stain. It was a nice bit of cabinet-making, materials considered. And then the "modern stuff!" Four volumes of ruins over which the cowboys chuckled and grew hilarious. They quoted and found meanings where none existed. And after an evening's dissipation and discussion, one would solemnly assure another,—

"The trees sway up!" with the answering assurance,—"Where swims the bloody sun!" It was all too funny for words. The resultant profanity was the sole distinguishable feature of the explanatory high-brow conversation. All this came, however, in days to follow.

"It shore 's plum' scand'lous,—this bunch o' stuff misnamed liter'toor," declared old Bill, who had followed later. Bill then dragged down a volume I had passed, opened it, and looked at me quizzically:

"This here—er—whatever his name is—shore can ladle out langwidge understood by th' e-lect. That lets me out graceful like an' otherwise. Lissen t' this":

Old Bill then proceeded to read from a sadly battered and tattered copy of a nameless ruin a series of descriptions which used up a lot of misplaced words, twisted and distorted into meanings wholly outside the pale Modern. We who continue to use language of older vintage eschew it.

"Yes, sir. One o' the boys goes t' town an' totes back them there four books there—I ain't mended 'em yet—some with the leaves gone, fer which favor we're trooly grateful. But they's enough o' the stuff left t' bring gray hairs in sorrer to th' grave—not havin' any. Yes, sir. That there cowboy 'lows he paid two bits fer them there four of 'em. He shore got stang that time!"

There was a step outside.

"Here he is now—him bein' the lit'ry light o' this here ranche."

It was a youngish cowboy who had just ridden in. He nodded to me, and then turned to old Bill:

"Yuh kin git eddicated down to that there stuff, Bill,—shore yuh kin,—but why spend yer young life experimentin'? Stick to th' classics!"

"Meanin'?"

"Stamps—stamps an' the WEEKLY,—the c'lecter's Bible!"

Then he picked up his forgotten quirt, forked his horse, and rode away, while old Bill fumbled amongst the files to find the next to the last number of the WEEKLY, its successor not having been recovered from Jimmy O's. effects.

"I got a fine c'lection, too, but mine's mainly varieties—different issues, maybe, but sure an interestin' study."

Bill continued his search, his back toward me.

"Come around this evenin' an' I'll show 'em to yuh."

Then, having recovered the next-to-the-last issue, Bill drifted, and I continued to look over the ruins.

Just before sundown young Bill rode in. We talked, and then I asked him of old Bill's collection.

"Like to see it? Come over here." Bill grinned.

We peeped out of the door. There was old Bill, issuing forth from the cookshack, a tin pan in one hand and a spoon in the other. He tapped the tin. From all directions came a coterie of cats—cats everywhere! I had never seen so many cats at one time. The animals swarmed around him, rubbing against his legs. Then he scattered scraps of meat, and the c'lection proceeded to get busy.

I stepped into the open.

"Fine collection you have, Bill. Rare varieties, I take it. What's the name of that sorrel over there?"

"That there one there 's named Delilah, an' this here one here 's name's Samson. An' that one's named fer Bill, an' this one fer Jimmy O'. That one—I ain't sure whether it's Joseph er Josephine. Then there's George Washin'ton an' all the presidents I recollec'—an' Abigail an' Mary an' Martha. An' that there one over there rubbin' agin yer laig I ain't rightly called yet."

Bill studied awhile. Then he grinned.

"B'jinks, Ole Timer,—yes, sir,—I'll name 'im after you-all!"
